Md. Holstein Assn. holds convention

BY LAURA ENGLAND

NORTH EAST, MD. — Holstein breeders from across the state met at the Sandy Cove retreat Tuesday and Wednesday for the 20th annual Maryland Holstein Convention and Sale.

The convention began with the annual meeting in which new officers were elected for the coming year. James R. Hill, Emmitsburg, was elected president, while Joseph Schwartzbeck, Union Bridge, was elected vice president and John L. Morris, Frederick, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Thomas Shaw, Fairplay, was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors. He joins board members Edward Kahler, Keymar, Edward Stanfield Jr, Randallstown, and James A. Stonesifer, Union Bridge.

The Md. Holstein Association noted an increase in membership this year with a total 930 members. Also on a positive note was the increased support of the scholarship fund. A total of $2,500 was donated to the fund with $4,200 worth of scholarships awarded to junior members last year.

In addition to committee reports given during the business meeting, awards were presented to outstanding Holstein breeders. Progressive Breed Registry (PBR), production and All-Maryland awards were presented.

To receive PBR awards, a dairyman must have a herd milk average over 19,261 pounds, a fat average of 692 pounds and a BAA of 102.0 or higher. Qualifying for this honor were: Carl Bender, Accident, with 90 cows averaging 20,032 pounds of milk and 742 pounds of fat; Kingstead Farms, Damascus, 101 cows with 21,158 pounds of milk and 787 pounds of fat; and Maple Lawn Farms Inc., Fulton, 147 cows with 21,696 pounds of milk and 782 pounds of fat.

Also Roger and Jason Myers, Westminster, 41 cows with 21,752 pounds of milk and 752 pounds of fat; C. Renn Remsberg, Middletown, 78 cows with 21,017 pounds of milk and 766 pounds of fat; Schenning Brothers, 102 cows with 19,574 pounds of milk and 712 pounds of fat; and Donald Wilcom, Ijamsville, 149 cows with 19,742 pounds of milk and 701 pounds of fat.

Bender, Myers and Wilcom received the PBR award for the first time, while Kingstead Farms received it for the 29th year. Remsberg for 22, Maple Lawn Farms Inc. for 17 and Schenning Brothers for four years

Farm Show changes, too

End to minimum Pa. milk pricing urged

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HARRISBURG — A review of two state agencies associated with agriculture -- the Pa. Milk Marketing Board and the State Farm Products Show Commission – has recommended their continued existence, but with some very basic changes in their membership and what they do.

The two most important recommended changes in these agencies made in a staff report of the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee as required under sunset legislation to determine if they should remain in existence include:

–The Milk Marketing Board should end its mandatory setting of minimum milk prices at both the wholesale and retail levels in Pennsylvania.

–Membership in the Farm Products Show Commission should be expanded to include members from the general public who have no direct ties to agricultural interests.

The staff audit, which is among the early stages of legislative review of the future of the agencies, contains a number of other recommendations. The termination date for both is Dec. 31 unless the legislature votes to extend their existence.

In its review of the PMMB, the committee staff found that while the board is beneficial to the public health by maintaining the quality and supply of milk, the practice of setting minimum prices at the resale level appears to be overly restrictive.

It recommends that the Legislature consider amending the board's enabling legislation to

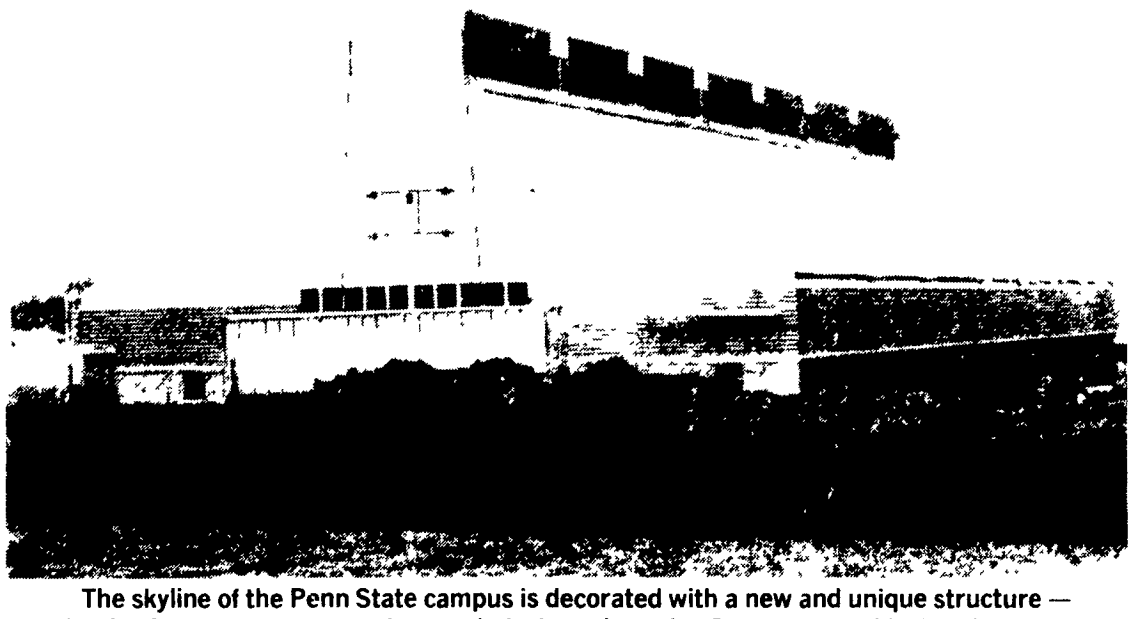
Penn State ag arena takes shape



The skyline of the Penn State campus is decorated with a new and unique structure — the Ag Arena — a cooperative symbol of much of the Commonwealth's farming community.

Exterior construction is virtually completed, except for trim and other final touches, such as landscaping. Inside, electricians, plumbers and other craftsmen are working in various service facilities.

The unique construction features a system of six double louvers found in the "monitor" section of the upper roof area. These louvers are electrically operated and are the heart of an air exchange system that will provide both natural and forced-air ventilation for animals, exhibitors and spectators.

While offical completion is slated by June 1, a number of senior Penn Staters are hoping that Spring's traditional two big show events — the Little I and the Dairy Expo — might possibly be the Arena's inaugural activites.

Pa. Holstein Hall of Fame inducts Hurlbert, Stebbins

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

ALTOONA — Carl Hurlbert and Herman Stebbins are the two newest additions to the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Hall of Fame

The honoring of these two longtime Holstein breeders was the highlight of PHA's annual convention banquet on Feb 23 at the Altoona Sheraton.

Hurlbert and his wife Ruth have farmed for over 50 years at Westford Road, Jamestown, on the home farm where he was born.

Although the Crawford County breeder began with grade cattle, he gradually developed the herd into a registered one. One of the founders of the Crawford County Holstein club, he served as that group's secretary for many years.

A director with the early Western Pennsylvania Breeders Cooperative, later merging into Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, Hurlbert used the pioneer bull stud's Pabst and Rag Apple bloodlines as a breeding basis for his herd

Keystone Ideal Pioneer, bred at the Seipt's Keystone herd near Easton, was used as the farm's herd sire for a number of years. Among his offspring were some of Knoll-Hurst's top daughters, including one top producer with records over 20,000 milk and 800 fat, at a time when production averages were perhaps half that figure.

Many Hurlbert-bred calves help start 4-H and FFA youngsters in the dairy business, as initial herd project animals Merchandising also included consignments to various sales, such as the Pennsylvania state sale at Harrisburg,

Market Comment. Prices are trading in a very wide but lower range. Sales were again light with prices noted from 26-34 cents, mostly 27-28 cents delivered into plants while farm prices ranged from 23-25 cents for birds outside the quarantine area While offerings of live were slightly increased, they were still of such light volume that plants still had to run very limited schedules.

MARKET COMMENT: Prices unchanged to lower. Cartoned egg movement is light to fair, and the only improvement in orders is noted where retail features are in progress. Jumbos and extra large are ample Large are fully adequate, overall ranging from in good balance to heavy. Additional product is available on both graded and ungraded stocks. Mediums are in good balance with additional product available only in spots

Thursday, March 1
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment. Movement on ready to cook whole birds is mixed Some processors find the demand improved and supplies clearing quite satisfactorily. Others find only a modest improvement and some additional product still available. The inquiry for legs and leg quarters has increased for next week's delivery. The demand is fair for the adequate supply of breasts while cutlets and wings are fully adequate under a light call.

Slaughter schedules are moderate. Live supplies are adequate Weights have increased and are at least desirable in most quarters today Undertone steady.

Today's L T.L. asking prices are unchanged on U.S Grade A at 61-67 cents.

Omaha Cattle

Thursday, March 1, 1984

Fed Cattle prices registered very little change on the Omaha terminal this week, with closing levels steady to 50 cents higher than a week ago. Advances in dressed beef realizations and modest salable numbers were the main factors providing strength to the market. Muddy cattle again posed problems in the trade, as did light-weight, under finished offerings. Some relief was provided on the latter category by purchases to return to feedlots. Cows 1.00 lower. Bulls steady.

Estimated 5 day receipts 9400; Actuals last week 7382 and a year ago 10,564. Steers comprised 42 pct of the week's receipts, heifers 41 pct., cows 10 pct.; feeders 6 pct.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: At the close, scattered loads and lots choice 2-4 1050-1300 lbs. 67.00-69.00, load reputation fed 69.25, few choice 2-3 1000-1050 lbs. 66.50-67.00. Mixed good and choice 2-3 1000-1150 lbs. 66.00-67.50. Good 63.00-66.00.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: At the close, scattered loads and lots choice 2-4 925-1125 lbs. 65.00-66.50, package 66.75. Mixed good and choice 2-3 900-1050 lbs. 63.00-65.50. Good 61.00-63.00.

Average of LS-214 detailed quotations for 900-1100 lb. choice steer 67.20; 1100-1300 lbs. 68.20. Average cost steers 67.03, average weight 1125 lbs. as compared 66.36 and 1146 lbs. a week ago. Average cost heifers 64.46, average weight 1007 lbs. as compared 64.63 and 970 lbs. a week ago.

SLAUGHTER COWS. Breaking utility and commercial 2-3 42.00-45.00. Cutter and boning utility 1-2 39.00-44.00. Canner and low cutter 35.00-41.00.

Farm Fairy Tale

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Another bedtime Farm Fairy Tale from Grandma Heidi down on that rock-strewn hillside farm quite a few years ago.

Once upon a time there was an ambitious king with the unusual name of "Cey V. Ag." He ruled over a small rural kingdom made up almost entirely of farms.

Good King Cey was always looking for ways to improve the lives of his farmer subjects. Some said that his continuing efforts to come to the rescue of farming like a make-believe Knight in Shining Armor was how he got his unusual name of "Cey V. Ag."

One day he decreed that every farmer in his realm must plant "artibits" -- a new miracle crop.. The crop didn't require any care, reseeded itself, provided enormous yields and would grow under any conditions. Since noone else grew artibits, Good King Cey saw himself and his new crop as saving ag in his kingdom.

So, all the farmers planted artibits. Pretty soon, the prolific crop literally over-ran even the hedgerows. King Cey V. Ag's little country was soon bulging with artibits. Farmers ran out of places to store them. Good King Cey was faced with an artibit surplus crisis.

He called his ag council together and after long deliberations one old and learned member finally suggested that they study what the artibits are good for and if there is any place to sell them.

Grandma Heidi's Farm Fairy Tale kinda reminds me of the promotions that emerge every now and then in agriculture praising the virtues of new farming pursuits that are going to be the salvation of economically-strapped farmers

Once my previous ag travels took me into areas caught up in the worm farming craze. I just couldn't believe the investments being made in this wiggily livestock and the miracles that were being expected from them.

Agriculture seems to be the only business that jumps headlong into new enterprises without ever making any kind of market study to see if there's any demand or outlets for the products

As Grandma Heidi used to say

"It's bad enough to put the cart before the horse But when you not only hobble the poor animal but put him behind such a big and cumbersome vehicle that he can't see where he's going, you can be sure you're not ever going to get anywhere

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

IMMEDIATELY!
March 4, 1984

Background Scripture: Mark 1.
Devotional Reading: Luke 3:7-17.

There is a recurring word in the Gospel According to Mark that characterizes much of the message that the writer is attempting to communicate with us. The word is "immediately" and it occurs 44 times in the gospel and 9 times in the first chapter alone.

"Immediately" as Jesus came up out of the Jordan at baptism, "he saw the heavens opened..."

"The Spirit immediately drove him out into the wilderness."

"Immediately" after Jesus called Simon and Andrew, they followed him.

"Immediately" Jesus called James and John and they followed him.

"Immediately" on the sabbath in Capernaum, "he entered the synagogue and taught."

"Immediately" in their synagogue there was a man with an unclean spirit."

"Immediately" Jesus left the synagogue at Capernaum to enter the house of Simon and Andrew.

"Immediately" after Jesus touched the leper, he was healed.

"Immediately" they told him of their mother's fever.

THE TIME FULFILLED

This sense of urgency stays with us all the way through the Gospel According to Mark. Even when the word immediately is not used, it is often never less implied. "And at once his fame spread everywhere throughout all the surrounding region of Galilee" (1:28).

It seems apparent that Mark's sense of urgency and immediacy is a reflection upon the gospel iteself. It is obviously no "once-upon-a-time" story. The words with which Jesus began his ministry in Galilee reflect that sense of urgency:

The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repeat and believe in the gospel. (1:15).

The gospel, as Jesus presents it in Mark, is a message of new beginnings. A new day has dawned. The time of waiting is over. The kingdom is here now! And all of this requires an immediate responses: "repent and believe in the gospel."

The message and the immediacy are just as words were first spoken. Today is the day if we are going to make a new beginning. Today is the day to consciously start to live the way we always said we were going to live. If you're going to follow Jesus Christ, NOW is the time.

NETS LEFT BEHIND

Not only is there an urgency to the Gospel message, there is something radical about it too. Simon, Andrew, James and John had all been fisherman. At the call of Jesus, however, they "immediately" left their nets and followed him. And that one response changed their lives forever.

It is with that same urgency that Christ speaks to each of us.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Apply Manure

This is the season of the year that a lot of manure is applied in preparation for corn planting. We need to be concerned with proper application of liquid and solid manure in such a way as to minimize odors and avoid pollution complaints.

Applications should be made from mid-morning to mid-afternoon to allow maximum odor dispersion and manure drying before the calm, nighttime hours when neighbors are home from work. Fields for disposal should be downwind, rather than upwind from neighbors.

Wheneven possible the manure should be plowed under or disked into the soil as soon as possible after spreading. This practice not only minimizes odors but also preserves nutrients and reduces potential for surface run-off that causes water pollution.

To Attend Poultry Progress Day

The second annual Poultry Progress Day will be held on Thursday, March 8 in the auditorium at the Farm and Home Center. Registration will start at 9:00 in the morning and the program will end at 3:00 p.m. Lunch will be available. A real good program has been developed by the Poultry Association Education Committee. This will include Trooper Romaine Edwards of the State Police with the topic "Farm Crime-Protect Your Investment"; computer specialist, Newton Bair, covering "Computer Needs in Your Poultry Business"; Dr. Robert Graves, Agricultural Engineer at Penn State covering "Energy Conservation in the Poultry House"; an Avian Influenza Update; and an important feature titled "Keeping Your Values in Perspective" by Dr. James Van Horn, Extension Family Specialist at Penn State. We expect everyone to practice bio-security before attending any meeting.

To Use Heat Lamps Safely

OUR READERS WRITE,
AND OTHER OPINIONS

We're forgetting about the rules

I have been reading in your fine weekly the sorrowful lamentations of readers concerning such common subjects as farm foreclosures, Avian influenza and pseudorabies in hogs.

Although my first reaction was to feel sorrow for all those who have been stricken with one form or another of bad luck, my second more compulsive emotions lean toward the remonstrative.

In all of life we learn that in order to avoid problems there are certain rules by which we must abide. In like manner, there are certain rules of nature far more forceful than any rules laid down by man, and these are the rules of God's Universal Nature.

Modern man has conquered so very much that he fails to recognize these rules, or has the false confidence that he can conquer, or circumvent them. Sooner or later, however, man is made to realize just how insignificant we really are.

Over the past several years we have had some very clear examples that we cannot long violate the rules of Nature and always come out the winner.

First, we had a pseudorabies outbreak; secondly there was Avian influenza and even now I'm hearing of a deadly devestating disease in large dairy herds in Eastern Pennsylvania.

In all of these cases the victims followed the philosophy with which I was recently admonished: "Speacialize, get in big, mechanize or get out!" This is the modern way. The word is monoculture. God and his nature did not intend this to be so. In monoculture the pathogens have a "field day." We have been shown that alien pathogens can adapt much faster than man can possibly formulate his miracle drugs to combat them.

Far better the farmer heed the rules of Nature (God) than blindly follow the urging of governmental agencies whose purpose is to maintain a stable society through a cheap food policy! Sooner or later, and perhaps not too much later, this strategy is destined to backfire.

Already it is not at all unusual pigs warm, relax aching muscles, or warm crankcases of tractors and automobiles so they'll start easier. The heat lamp can also be used in brooders for small pigs or lambs, or baby chicks or at your workbench to give you quick heat.

But, I'd like to add a word of caution. A heat lamp can be dangerous because the lamp's rays can easily burn you, the same as a sunburn.

Also, if you are using the lamp continously for a long period, use a procelain socket. Brass and most plastic sockets will not be able to stand the heat. Another thing ... in a brooding area use a wire or chain to support the lamp. Dont' hang it by it's cord, the cord was designed to carry the current and not the weight. Remember, a heat lamp can come in handy around the farm or home in cold weather. But handle it with care.

To Develop Good Pesticide Records

The arrival of March means the beginning of a new growing season and warmer weather. And, the use of various spray materials and chemicals will be a common practice. They're all intended for a special purpose, if used correctly. In order to protect the producer from the danger of having excess residues in food and feed crops, it is very important that accurate records be kept. This is true on crops as well as with livestock. In case the producer is charged with excess residues, these written records may save your business. Don't rely on your memory or oral statements; they will not stand up at a hearing or in court. Be sure records list the name of the material, and the rate and date of application.

Kuhn has engineered Mower Conditioners that cut hay up or down, wet or dry, even in toughest conditions. They operate fast, resist clogging, and condition hay thoroughly to speed drying time up to 50%. There's less chance of "rained-on hay," and the palatability is improved with a Kuhn Mower Conditioner.

Highly efficient oval disc cutting system severs crop at base and feeds it through free swinging fingers and reversible conditioning comb. As grass goes through conditioning comb, natural wax is stripped. Conditioner is adjustable to 20 positions to suit crop and weather. Adjustable swathboards provide light fluffy swaths to ensure fast drying times. Cutterbar is height-adjustable to suit terrain and incorporates blade protection features. Built tough to last!

STORMOR EZEE DRY

The EZEE-DRY is the grain drying system thousands of farmers have used. For more than 15 years, farmers have found that the thin drying layer and high volume, low heat airflow lowers drying costs

Drying capacities are available from 100 to 1,000 bu./hr. at 10 pt. removal. And, it doubles as a storage bin after drying is completed

Hinish receives Limestone Institute service award

UNIVERSITY PARK — W. Wayne Hinish was named the 1984 recipient of the National Limestone Institute's Distinguished Service Award for outstanding contribution to American agriculture because of his noteworthy accomplishments and leadership.

"His exceptionally fine record of administrative service, with 30 years of experience in Extension, and an in-depth knowledge of Pennsylvania and its agricultural community make him very deserving of this award," said Samuel H. Smith, dean of the College of Agriculture and director of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service.

"His effective leadership has been of great benefit, not only to the Extension personnel located at University Park but also to those located in each of our 67 counties."

Currently serving as associate director of Cooperative Extension Service, associate dean of the College of Agriculture, and professor of agronomy at Penn State, Hinish has, throughout his career, achieved strong national recognition as a leader in the agronomic field. His understanding of this country's needs in the agriculture area has provided him with a visible national identity, and a strong forum through which sound agronomic practices can be promoted.

Hinish was honored for his work with the Institute as its consulting agronomist. During his tenure in this position, he provided valuable guidance on agricultural matters to the members of the Institute, and to the limestone industry as a whole. In addition, Dr. Hinish assumed an active role in educating farmers and others of the agronmic value of agricultural limestone.

Along with these distinctions, Hinish received the "Man of the Year Award" in 1977 from the Pennsylvania Plant Food and Protectant Educational Society, was a 1978 recipient of the "Extension Award" presented by Gamma Sigma Delta, and received the "Extension-Industry Award" from the Northeast branch of the American Society of Agronomy.

Hinish has been asso[illegible]e dean and associate director of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service for the past two years. Prior to that he was assistant dean and assistant director for administration, management and training for the Penn State Extension Service. He has been a member of the faculty since 1954.

A native of Curryville, Blair County, Hinish graduated from Penn State in 1951 with a bachelor of science degree in agronomy. He received his master of science degree in 1953 and his doctor of philosophy degree in 1955, also from Penn State.

During World War II he served in the U.S. Navy as a pilot. In 1963, Hinish took a leave of absence for one and a half years to serve a chief agronomist on an agricultural development project in West Pakistan.

He is married to the former Janet Emigh of Roaring Springs. They are the parents of two children.

Montgomery plans conference

NORRISTOWN — Montgomery County Conservation District will hold a Conservation Tillage Conference on Tuesday March 13, at 10 a.m. at the Family Heritage Restaurant in Franconia.

The restaurant is located on Route 113 approximately ½ mile north of where Route 113 passes over the northeast extension of the turnpike. Exhibits and coffee and donuts will be available at 9:30 a.m.

This year the Conservation District will be leasing out three pieces of conservation tillage equipment for farmers to try. The equipment includes a John Deere and an International 4 row no-till corn planter and a 10 ft. wide Tye no-till drill.

The program will begin with a review of no-till in Montgomery County in 1983. Types of crops no-tilled in the county will be discussed along with problems and successes. Edward Brzostek of the USDA Soil Conservation Service will show a slide show on crops no-tilled last year. Joseph Way, County Agent, will discuss managing no-till/minimum-till, including fertilization, herbicides and insects. Equipment dealers will show short films and discuss operation of their no-till equipment.

Maynard King, Conservation District Manager will explain the County's 1984 no-till equipment lease and technical assistance program. Evelyn Yeagle, Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will review their agricultural cost-share program.

The morning session will conclude with a panel of farmers that have no-tilled in the county. They will share their no-till experiences. Lunch will be off the menu at your own expense from 1 to 2 p.m. at which time planter signup and exhibits will again be available for review.

After lunch, William Van Fossen, Technician with SCS, will discuss and show slides on how to plow in your own conservation practices. A film covering no-till and minimum till narrated by Peter Meyers, Chief of SCS, will be shown. The film shows many pieces of equipment and Mr. Meyers' viewpoints on them. Tanya Mason, Soil Conservationist with SCS, will conclude the program with a slide show on where and why conservation practices are needed.

Robert E. Little, John Deere Dealer in Zieglersville, and Erb and Henry Inc., International dealership in New Berlinville, are sponsoring a portion of the meeting. Some no-till equipment will be on display outside.

For further details or directions please call the USDA, Soil Conservation Service at 279-1178 or the Montgomery County Conservation District at 278-3618.

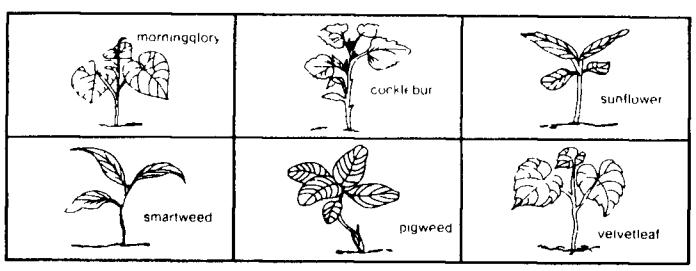
Pick the weeds in your corn you'd like to get rid of...



Then pick Banvel® herbicide... the Big Plus...to do the job.

Pre-emergence: Banvel tank-mixed with *Lasso® to get broadleaf weeds along with grasses ready and waiting when later weeds germinate

Early layby (in corn up to five inches high) use Banvel at a one pint rate Stop weeds before they've had a chance to develop This Banvel overlay controls cocklebur, sunflower, annual morningglory, other troublemakers

Post-emergence (corn up to 36 inches) Banvel herbicide controls the real problems—like smartweed, velvetleaf, bindweed, and seedling Canada thistle

Before buying a less adaptable herbicide that may be short on performance, check out the Big Plus of Banvel from Velsicol

LORSBAN* Insecticides stop cutworms... so you only worry about transplanting once.

It costs enough to transplant your tobacco plants once. You don't want to do it a second time because cutworms got started. And if you use LORSBAN* Insecticides at transplanting you won't need to. That's because LORSBAN Insecticides keep destructive tobacco insects like cutworms from ever getting a start in your newly transplanted tobacco.†

Available in liquid or granular. LORSBAN Insecticides come in two formulations to fit your specific application needs. LORSBAN* 15G Granular Insecticide can be blended with your dry fertilizer; or LORSBAN* 4E Liquid can be tank mixed with herbicides and some soil fungicides.

This year, protect your young tobacco and put an end to the extra cost and work of resetting. Use LORSBAN 15G Granular or LORSBAN 4E Liquid Insecticides, and control cutworms before they've had a chance to start. LORSBAN Insecticides . . . where they fit . . . nothing works better.

†See Special Local Need Labeling.

Regardless of the insecticide you choose, ALWAYS READ THE LABEL BEFORE USE AND CAREFULLY FOLLOW ALL LABEL DIRECTIONS AND PRECAUTIONS for safe use.

Septage program reported

HARRISBURG — Treatment and disposal of septage (septic tank wastes) will be the subject of a two day conference March 28 and 29 at the Grantville (Harrisburg Area) Holiday conducted by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service.

The objective of the program is to provide information to all persons interested in septage management on the most feasible methods available for the treatment and disposal of septage. Topics and speakers are:

A status report on how septage is presently managed.

A panel of haulers who will describe the problems faced with septage treatment and disposal.

Lagoon storage and farmland disposal, Henry Yeska Jr., Northampton County.

Lime stabilization, dewatering, and land application of sludge, Tom Ferrero Jr., Montgomery County.

On-site wastewater management districts, Foster Diodato, Pa. DER

Lagoon settling and dewatering to sand filters, Karen Mancl, Penn State.

Lime stabilization, Russell Tatman, Tatman and Lee.

Other Alternatives, Ken Wiswall, Roy Weston, West Chester.

Acquiring a land utilization permit, Richard Fox, Penn State.

Role of a state wide haulers Association.

In addition, Nicholas De Benedictis, Secretary, Pa. Dept. of Environmental Resources, will address the group Thursday evening on the subject of the role of DER in the Future of Septage Management.

Crop acreage increases

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania farmers intend to plant more acres of corn, oats, barley, hay and soybeans than in 1983, according to the Pennsylvania Crop and Livestock Reporting Service. Intended acreage to the planted and the percentage changes from last year are as follows: corn, 1,800,000 acres — up 13 percent; oats, 350,000 acres — up six percent; barley, 85,000 acres — up 13 percent; all hay, 2,000,000 acres — up two percent; soybeans, 125,000 acres — up 14 percent; tobacco, 12,000 acres - unchanged.

United States farmers intend to plant more acres of corn, all hay, soybeans, and tobacco, but fewer acres of oats and barley. Intended acreage to be planted and percentage changes from last year are as follows: corn, 81.77 million acres — up 36 percent; oats, 13.62 million acres — down 33 percent; barley, 10.57 million acres - down fractionally; all hay, 62.54 million acres - up three percent; soybeans, 65.24 million acres — up three percent; tobacco, 794,000 acres — up one percent.

Hallowell promotes Pa. ag in Middle East

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell this week was in Bahrain for MEFEX '84 in hopes of further stimulating Pennsylvania's foreign trade opportunities for food and agricultural products.

Hallowell, who serves as president of the Eastern United States Agriculture and Food Export Council, took samples of several Pennsylvania food products to be displayed at MEFEX '84, the largest trade show in the Middle East. The show attracts 40 U.S. exhibitors and over 1,000 buyers from the Middle East region.

Those producers exhibited were from Pennsylvania firms, including Winmix Inc., Union County; Ontolaunee Orchards, Berks County; John Rice Fruit Co. and Mountain Orchard Cooperative, both of Adams County; Hanover Brands Inc., York County; Simon Candy Co., Lancaster County; and Colonial Beef Co., Philadelphia.

"Expansion of Pennsylvania's Foreign agricultural trade has been a top initiative of the Thornburgh Administration," said Secretary Hallowell prior to his departure. "Agricultural exports have been a real bright spot for Pennsylvania and this country. U.S. farm products stimulate our employement rate and generate billions of dollars in commerce each year," he added. Pennsylvania's agricultural trade topped $560 million in 1982.

Last week in London, Hallowell attended a trade reception with British trade officials hosted by W. Lybb Abbott, director of the Agricultural Trade Office in the U.S. Embassy.

The secretary, accompanied by Winson Eveland of Winmix, Inc., met with Egyptian agricultural officials and businessmen on Feb. 23 before flying onto Bahrain. The Cairo meeting was hosted by Clancy Jean, U.S. agricultural counselor in Egypt.

"These meetings and the all important food show are key links in our agricultural marketing chain. We hope to reach many customers in the Middle East," said Hallowell, noting that the U.S. has a net export trade balance of more than $1.4 billion each year from trade with countries such Egypt, Bahrain, Oman, Qatar, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.

"We will make every effort to cultivate the opportunities we have in these countries to bring their consumers the finest in Pennsylvania produce and processed products," he said. The secretary was scheduled to return to the U.S. on Friday.

MEFEX '84 is organized by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Potato vote set to begin

DENVER, Col. — "Be sure to vote in the March referendum." This is the message Jack Nielson, of Nebraska, and Keith Masser, of Pennsylvania, co-chairman of the Referendum Committee, want to send all eligible potato growers.

Many other food associations have far larger promotional budgets, often for smaller crops. The Potato Board has had the same budget since 1972, and of course, inflation has drastically reduced its buying power.

In order for the referendum to pass, two-thirds of growers voting must check yes. Last time the Board held a referendum the turnout was low, and "I think some of that was because we did not communicate with growers. This year we are working very hard to make sure growers know the issues involved and how important it is they vote," Nielson concluded.

Ballots will be mailed to all eligible growers by early March and must be returned to the U.S.D.A. by April 4. (An eligible grower is one who has at least five acres devoted to potatoes). In addition, Board Members will have copies of the ballots for anyone who has not received a ballot. Growers are encouraged to contact a Board Member if they have not received their ballots or have any questions concerning the referendum.

The rootworm insecticide built tough enough to last all season long.

Now there's BROOT™ from Union Carbide. It's the corn soil insecticide specially formulated to deliver the full-season rootworm control you need for higher corn yields.

Down deep, no other rootworm insecticide looks like BROOT™...

Unlike conventional soil insecticides, new BROOT is formulated into unique roll-compacted granules. Together with finely-ground gypsum, the active ingredient in BROOT, trimethacarb, is blended evenly throughout each and every granule.

Or works like BROOT™...

Because of this unique formulation, each granule of BROOT gradually releases its active ingredient throughout the rootworm season.

So your corn roots stand a better chance of developing normally.

Or handles like BROOT™...

This advanced formulation also makes BROOT soil insecticide easier to handle. It flows smoothly and evenly out of the hopper box. And BROOT is not abrasive to your application.

Here's proof.

Results from performance trials throughout the Corn Belt prove that BROOT soil insecticide provides the kind of protection you need for top corn yields.

In testing to date, BROOT has been a consistent performer in terms of root ratings and yield response. That's why BROOT is included in university recommendations for effective rootworm control.

So ask your dealer about new BROOT 15GX. He knows that it's more than just another rootworm insecticide. And once you try BROOT, you'll know it too.

Lebanon Extension banquet spotlights 4-H

Assisting with the "Spotlight on 4-H" theme of the Lebanon County Extension banquet were George Cashel, Franklin county 4-H leader, and Deb Bolles, Lebanon county National Winner in Dog Care and Training, and her Leader Dog trainee, Lady.

BY DONNA McCONAUGHEY

PRESCOTT — Lebanon county residents attending the annual extension banquet enjoyed a 'Spotlight on 4-H" The highlight of that spotlight was speaker, George Cashel, a Franklin county 4-H leader.

Cashel has been involved in several aspects of 4-H including speaking on a state level to legislators in support of funding for extension, and particularly 4-H. With a bold directness and a country-style sense of humor, he dug into many facts about 4-H.

Every 4-H leader has thought, Is it really worth it' (all the time given to 4-H)" The answer is a resounding Yes!" after listening to Cashel for only a few minutes. His challenges included, "What would you do without Extension agents?" 'Our county agent gives up many a night with his son to give time to 4-H'ers."

Some of his final comments included, "The good Lord gave us all 24 hours in a day. Farmers have tried to make it 25, but we all have the same amount of time. It's what you do with that time that counts. Don't lose 4-H. It's our future, it's our tomorrow. They're going to make the laws in the future Kids are worth it!"

Another part of the "Spotlight on 4-H" was Deb Bolles and her Leader Dog trainee, Lady Deb was recently named a National Winner in Dog Care and Training In addition to a brief talk about her 4-H involvement, Deb answered questions from the audience about working with a future Leader Dog. Deb also encouraged other families to become involved in this program.

Staff reports included Linda Seigel's report on a leader training program "Build on Your Experience." Over one-third of Lebanon county 4-H leaders attended this program designed and presented by Linda. Leaders increased their knowledge about the 4-H program, viewed new audiovisual materials, reinforced experiences in working with 4-H'ers of all ages, and shared ideas and problem-solving techniques.

Numerous family-oriented training sessions were offered in 1983. 'Raising Responsible Kids" was a popular program with county parents' groups, social service agency personnel, and county parents

As the number of working parents increase, so does the concern for children left to care for themselves on a regular basis. An exciting new program for "latchkey Children" provided simultaneous education for parents and actual practice workshops for the children

Aletta (Letie) Schadler, right, Lebanon County Extension Director, was honored by the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists in recognition of the national Distinguished Award she received in October. Patricia Huff, Dauphin county Extension Home Economist, presents the award.

Dauphin County presents extension leadership awards

HARRISBURG — Expressing the theme "Extension is people helping people," the Dauphin County Extension Service honored three adult leaders during its 66th annual meeting Feb. 25.

Presented awards for years of leadership service to Dauphin County were Vicki Inscho, R1 Etters, Evelyn Dehmey, R3 Halifax, and Calvin Mauser, R1 Elizabethville. The awards were presented by extension home economist Patricia Huff, extension 4-H agent Fred Rudy and extension agriculture agent Bruce Kreider, respectively.

Vicki Inscho, right, receives the Family Living Leadership award from Dauphin County Extension home economist Patricia Huff.

Vicki Inscho, a freelance home economist, received the Family Living Leadership award. Through her work on micro wave cooking, Mrs. Inscho traveled throughout the county last year and contacted 365 people.

As past treasurer of Dauphin County 4-H Clubs Inc., Evelyn Dehmey was presented the 4-H Leadership award. Mrs. Dehmey served as treasurer for eight consecutive years.

Dairyman Calvin Mauser received the Agriculture Leadership award. Mauser, who recently sold his herd of cows to his son, is vice president of the Pa. Guernsey Association and is a member of the corn club.

In other business, the following were nominated to three-year terms on the extension board of directors: Jesse Lenker, Amy Williams, Helen Bleacher, John Johnson and Richard Hann. New directors are Armond Snowdon and Ruth Tallman.

During 1983, the county extension service held 696 educational meetings presented by staff personnel and an additional 389 meetings directed by volunteers. News articles, radio and television broadcasts and educational material were prepared and distributed.

An active 4-H sponsor, the Dauphin County Extension Service sponsored 26 clubs last year, representing 2,396 members. LE and local sales in Butler, Erie and Crawford counties.

Hurlbert is the only living charter member of the Jamestown Fair Board, having served as a director for over 40 years. Active in all phases of the county's Holstein events, he has helped the breed club raise funds for the construction of a youth building at the fairgrounds. He has also assisted as a clerk at the Crawford County fair for many years.

Both Hurlbert and his wife were directors for many years on the Crawford County's extension board, and he served as a township supervisor for 14 years. In 1980, he was named to the Crawford County's Agriculture Hall of Fame.

He's also a lifetime member of Westford Methodist Church and belongs to the Masonic Lodge and Newcastle Scottish Rites Consistery.

Recently, the Hurlberts celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Their son William is an accountant for U.S. Steel and a professional musician, and they have one grandson.

Now semi-retired, Hurlbert no longer maintains a milking herd, but does continue to crop 90 acres on the home farm as well as an additional 35 rented acres.

Herman E. Stebbins and his wife Martha are residents of York where the county Holstein club recently inducted him to their Hall of Fame.

Former manager of the internationally-known Sinking Springs Farm near York, Stebbins was a vo-ag teacher in his native Ohio before taking over the York herd's reins.

Under his leadership, beginning in 1941, the small purebred herd developed into one of the nation's best known breeders of top producers. With the exception of two animals, the herd was all homebred.

During his 40-year tenure with Sinking Springs, 34 of the herd individuals attained production records of over 100,000 pounds of milk and/or 4,000 pounds of fat.

For 12 consecutive years, the herd average was over 400 pounds of fat and in 1977 became the first county herd to break 800, with a production average on 63 cows of 22,095 milk and 818 fat. In that same year, seven individuals topped 1,000 fat, with five others finishing records over 950 pounds fat.

One of the best known herd daughters was Sinking Springs Ivan Bright. In 1966, she led the nation and state in milk production, while ranking second in Pennsylvania and third in the nation for butterfat, with a 365 day, 2X, record of 31,820 milk and 1216 fat.

Thirteen proven sons from the herd have gone into AI service, including Sinking Springs Rocket Mandate, still at Atlantic, and two Performer sons previously with Carnation Genetics. Breeding stock from the herd has also been exported extensively to Europe and South America.

One of the founders of the York Holstein Association in 1946. Stebbins held numerous offices, serving for a period as president of the club.

He was also a charter member of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative and served on the board 37 years continuously from the founding in 1945. From 1967 through 1982, he headed the A.I cooperative as president.

A state legislator for one term, Stebbins was an active civic and farm organization leader, serving as president of the York County Extension, Farmers Forum and the Susquehanna Lions Club.

From 1942 through 1979, Stebbins was farm director of WSBA radio's weekday broadcasts, which ran continously for those 37 years. Among his numerous awards is the Charles Cowan award, presented him in 1979 by the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association for outstanding contributions to the state's dairy industry.

Stebbins, now retired, was represented at the Hall of Fame awards by the son Michael. The couple has two other children, Steve, also of York, and daughter Judy Dunn, who resides in Annapolis.

Mall dairy promotion brings country to city

BY LAURA ENGLAND

ALTOONA — For those who grew up on dairy farms, it would be difficult to imagine what it would be like to have never touched a cow or to have smelled the sweet aroma of freshly cut alfalfa. The cows, milking equipment, feed and tractors are all part of a daily routine that are sometimes taken for granted by farmers themselves.

But for those growing up in cities who have never set foot on a farm, the cows and all the technical farm equipment can be quite a fascination.

This was the case for the more than 1,200 students from the Hollidaysburg and Altoona school districts who participated in a dairy promotion program sponsored by the Pa. Holstein Association during its convention last week Held at the Logan Valley Mall, Altoona, the program involved school students, grades one through four, from parochial and public schools alike.

Co-chaired by Bill and Bertha England, R1 Williamsburg, the dairy promotion exhibit featured educational stations displaying an aspect of the dairy farm operation. Students visited each station where their guide explained the working of the equipment.

Upon entering the Logan Valley Mall, students and teachers were greeted by a "pink" cow who showed them to their tour guides - Future Farmers of America members from area chapters. The guides took the students from station to station and prompted and answered questions.

The stations included a dairy cow and four calves, a commercial bulk tank and commercial milking

"120 is for the man who can make alfalfa pay."

I'm a DEKALB-PFIZER dealer and a dairyman Economics plays a big part in my operation. That's why choosing the right alfalfa is such a big decision.

My alfalfa is DEKALB Brand 120. DEKALB-PFIZER said it was a top performer and they're right. It gives my cows a fine stemmed, leafy hay and more tons per acre.

You can count on 120 for winter hardiness—even after a season of tough weather. This seeding will last me for a few more years.

120 is topping state yield trials all across the country. With that kind of record, and my own experience, I'm proud to recommend it to my customers Sure, I put more money into 120, but I get it back, cutting after cutting So will you.

Who's making your alfalfa investment pay?

I am.

Zoning meeting planned

HONESDALE — An educational meeting on zoning will be held Monday March 12, at 8 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Route 191 South of Honesdale, Pa.

The speaker will be Stanford M. Lembeck, Penn State Extension Community Planning specialist.

Lembeck will poll the audience to determine the local land use issues or problems. Hopefully then he can suggest solutions or techniques which can be used to correct or prevent such problems.

Joseph Macialek, area community development agent with the Extension Service, will also be on the program.

Linking the farmer and consumer is a necessary goal in agriculture today. Helping to promote this relationship were Food Fact Sheets prepared by the extension staff to tell consumers how to pick, store, preserve, and prepare various fruits and vegetables. Many pick-your-own" growers utilized these sheets as a customer service item. 1984 includes plans to expand the variety of sheets available and to use them as a tool to help producers improve marketing and consumer information.

Lebanon county alfalfa growers began utilizing an insect net to determine if potato leaf hoppers were present in numbers great enough to warrant spraying, during the past year. Potential savings have been estimated to exceed $250,000 if all alfalfa growers would use the insect net.

County Extension Director, Lelie Schadler was recognized for her achievement of a Distinguished Award on the national level. She received a special Nittany Lion trophy from Patricia Huff, representing the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists.

In other annual business, all incumbent officers were re-elected with the addition of Dorothy Moyer as Secretary. It was announced that Home Economics, Karen Sandoe has resigned her position following the birth of her child. The county also hopes to have selected a county agent to fill the position vacated by Newton Bair's retirement nearly one year ago.

Pa. milk pricing

provide for discontinuance of setting minimum milk prices, but amend the Milk Marketing Law to protect against below-cost sales in possible price wars.

Pennsylvania is only one of four states that sets milk prices at both the wholesale and retail levels. And, it is the only one of the top ten milk producing states in the country in which the state government controls the price of milk.

The Staff report goes on to say that it doesn't believe that ending the mimimum pricing regulations will cause such problems as higher prices of milk, shortages in certain areas of the state or hardships on small dairies particularly if below-cost sales are prohibited.

Concerning the State Farm Products Show Commission, the staff report urged that membership include non-ag representatives – one of which would particularly represent the interests of consumers.

The Commission provides for a wide variety of input from the agricultural, educational and governmental communities, which contributes to the success of the Farm Show, the staff report says.

But while continuing this representation, a fourth group should also be represented – the non-ag public.

The audit of the Commission and Farm Show points out that for the past three years an annual amount of $1 million has come from the Pa. General Fund to cover losses of the State Farm Products Show Fund.

"Representation on the Commission by members who do not represent agriculture would appear to be in the public interest, the report said.

The Commission is composed of the governor, the secretary of agriculture and one other department officer, an officer of the Department of Public Instruction, Dean of Penn State's Ag School, the Dean of Ag Extension and three members appointed by the governor. All of the appointees were recommended by and came out of the State Farm Show Committee.

In other recommendations concerning the Farm Products Show Commission, the staff report cited:

–The large Show Fund balances that existed at the end of the past two fiscal years in the neighborhood of $900 000

–Whether it is appropriate that two-thirds of the salary of the PDA's Chief of the Show Management Division be paid out of monies that the Pa. Livestock Association and the Pa. Dairy and Allied Industries Association receives out of the General Fund for KILE and the All-American Dairy Show.

–The need for a master plan of capital improvements to the Farm Show Complex, including a safer way to get livestock from stalls to judging areas even if it means reducing stall space to construct an aisle only for animals.

Concerning membership on the Pa. Milk Marketing Board, the staff report explained that a member is not required by law to be a bona dide resident of the Commonwealth and does not have to be knowledgeable about the dairy industry.

Also, the staff report suggested that the consumer member of the board be required to have a background that is similar to that required for public members of licensing boards.

Noorlander challenges dairymen

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

SCHAEFFERSTOWN — Dairymen had the opportunity on Feb. 22, to hear a nationally known author, teacher, inventory, and researcher in the milking equipment field. Dan O. Noorlander, of California, spoke on "Producing Quality Milk," to almost 200 dairymen at an I.B.A. sponsored farmers meeting at the Schaefferstown Fire Hall.

Noorlander's influence is seen on almost every dairy farm today. He invented the California Mastitis test with Oscar W. Schalm, and was extensively involved in the development of techniques to test dairy equipment.

He encouraged the use of balance tanks, low lines, and larger lines nationwide.

He was also a leading researcher on narrow bore liners, silicone liners, and one of the first advocates of dry cow treating. Through his many years of trial and error research, Noorlander developed many patents for teat cup inflations. He has paved the way for a better understanding of how bacteria can invade the udder and believes that the dairy industry needs impartial researchers to develop new and better concepts. concepts.

Noorlander has worked for several different companies and universities researching milking machines. He developed the pulsation recording machine used widely today and also the square silicone inflation extensively marketed by I.B.A.

"Milking machines can be designed to function properly," Noorlander said, "but the best milking machine hasn't been designed yet." The type of researcher who cannot be bought, Noorlander stated that "competition forces people to shape up."

Disheartened by many professors and "degreed" company scientists who refuse to accept his findings, Noorlander stated that his research comes from years and years of observing milking practices and machines and a trial and error approach to ... ... A graduate of California Polytechnic Institute, Noorlander's experiences include managing a 500-cow dairy for several years, in addition to his research experience.

"The inflations are the most critical part of the milking machine. Does the rubber of your inflation permit the teat to collapse," he asked.

He stated that the rubber compound that is used for the inflation is just as important as the design. Neoprene rubber was considered the superior rubber in the early years of milking machines. But, since the government has disallowed the use of this rubber in milking, a substitute had to be found that was soft enough to do the job.

Experimenting with several kinds of rubber, Noorlander found that natural gum rubber and silicone work the best. Because rubber becomes porous, with many cracks after prolonged use, it can harbor a great deal of bacteria in its pores. The rubber inflations can be a major source of bacterial contamination even after sanitizing.

Although it does not last as long as a silicone inflation, natural gum rubber inflations do work beautifully, according to Noorlander. They have a smoother surface than the other kinds of rubber and a stretching ability essential in a proper milking machine. Dairymen can tell if they are using natural gum rubber inflations because natural gum rubber floats and others do not. Noorlander also added that chlorine is hard on rubber and cautioned against soaking inflations in it. After cleaning, they should be thoroughly rinsed.

Although many companies do ... want to work with silicone because it punctures easily, Noorlander is an advocate of silicone inflations. They last long and their surface stays smooth, prohibiting any bacteria from living in cracks. Although they are much more expensive, silicone inflations need only be changed every four to six months depending on the number of milkings used. Shells have been developed for use with silicone inflations to prevent them from being punctured.

Noorlander stated that all I.B.A. salesmen are advised by him in the selling of the silicone inflations. "Don't ever put silicone inflations into a high risk dairy," he stated. They can be utilized with great

*Reg TMs Lasso—Monsanto Co Dual—Ciba Geigy Corp Sutan+—Stauffer Chemical Co

Only Bladex gives you all these advantages in heavy crop residue.

Bladex gives excellent control of surface germinating grasses in heavy crop residue. It stops grasses like fall panicum and foxtails which can germinate in the surface trash and escape from grass herbicides that work through shoot uptake. And because of its root uptake action, Bladex provides more effective residual control of both grasses and broadleaves.

Bladex alone controls 55 weeds—14 grasses and 41 broadleaves—more than any other corn herbicide. The list includes die-hard foxtails, fall panicum, crabgrass, annual morningglory, smartweed, velvetleaf and nightshade.

3.

Bladex with atrazine is the most economical atrazine tank mix you can use. Added savings result because Bladex can end the need for expensive contact herbicides.

Bladex is the only post-emergence corn herbicide labeled for controlling fall panicum after it has emerged.

5.

Bladex delivers excellent burndown of emerged weeds, up to three inches tall, in heavy crop residue. This can be an important advantage on fields which have no spring tillage.

Using Bladex for burndown weed control on no-till acres can end the need for paraquat or other costly contact herbicides. Even hotter burndown is achieved when Bladex is applied with 2-4D and/or liquid fertilizer containing nitrogen.

This year, more than ever, get all the high performance weed control you can muster with Bladex at new federally approved rates. Ask for Bladex 4L or 80W. Always use as directed.

Berks holds dairy herd health school

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT — Seven veterinarians teamed up last week to conduct the first Herd Health School in Berks County at the Agricultural Center at Leesport. To the 55 dairymen attending the two-day program, their repeated message was: "Work out a herd health program for your own farm and get it done right."

Dr. Harry Hutchinson, PSU extension yeterinarian, began the program with "the economics and importance of health care." "Base your costs on a per cow basis," he told dairymen in considering the costs of a health care program. He listed several practices that belong in every herd that can directly bring a dairymen extra returns. The include:

1. Worm pastured heifers, at least twice a year.
2. Vaccinate everything for IBR, PI3, and Lepto at least once yearly.
3. Give calves three quarts of colostrum at birth (Holstein).
4. Keep your somatic cell count under 300,000.
5. Have your veterinarian examine every cow after calving.
6. Trim feet.
7. Review records.

He went on to discuss the most serious herd health problems and the health records a farmer should be keeping. "Try to consider what you can do to prevent diseases," Hutchinson stressed. "They cost us a lot of money," he continued.

Hutchinson advised dairymen to keep individual health cards for each cow in the herd. Work sheets, heat expectancy charts, breeding charts, DHIA records, and mastitis records can all be utilized to save hundreds of dollars each year in a herd. Hutchinson also stressed getting a proper diagnosis on a problem before wasting dollars on the wrong treatment.

Emphasizing the same practises, Dr. Lynn Sammons, Willow Creek Animal Hospital said, "don't use drugs to bail you out. We should be preventing disease conditions." Sammons spoke on the "Dairy Herd Health Cabinet."

Dust-free, dry cabinets, which will not freeze or overheat the drugs, should be used. Treatment records and proper identification of treated animals should be strictly maintained. Sammons also reported on the recent FDA agreement to permit veterinarians to continue to use the drugs needed to maintain the health of your livestock only if a client-doctor relationship is maintained throughout the treatment period. Dairymen will face stiff fines and a possible jail term if these guidelines are not followed Prescription drugs MUST be used with the veterinarian's knowledge and approval. This recent tightening of the rules came about because of the increasing residues found in meat, milk, and eggs. According to Sammons chloroamphenicol and spectinomycin are the two "biggies" that the government is clamping down on.

Dr Dennis Hoshall, Oley, discussed proper calf and heifer management. For the calf he stressed seeing that it gets the right amount of colostrum, adequate nutrition, and proper housing. "It's just so important it makes all the other calf problems easy," he stated concerning proper calf management.

"Let your veterinarian know what you've been using," Dr. William Francisco, R1 Barto, advised on his discussion of vaccines and drugs. He stated that an advantage to using vaccines is that there is no withholding time for milk. He also stated, "it doesn't mean that you won't have problems but it will give you an edge."

The second day of the program was enhanced by the demonstration on foot care by Dr. Dave Nirschl, Willow Creek Animal Hospital. Using actual feet obtained from a butcher shop, Nirschl explained proper foot care and abnormalities.

His general recomendations included:

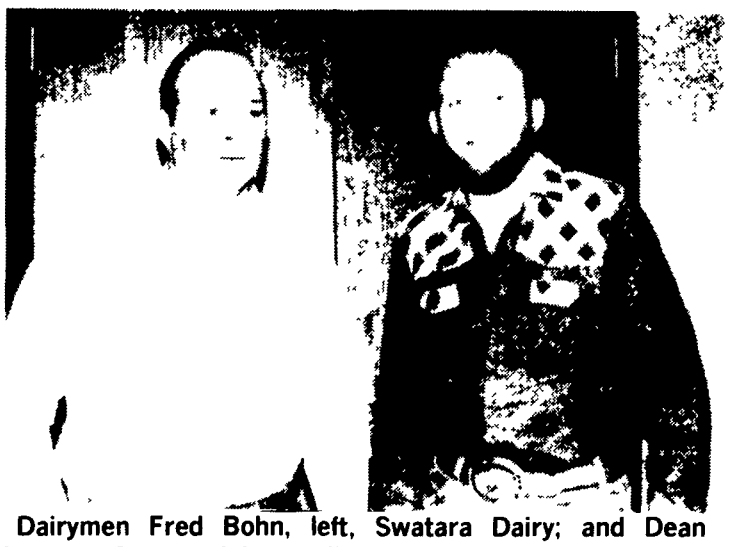
1. Check a lame cow as soon as noticed.
2. Don't try to pull up a cow's hind leg when heavy with calf.
3. Have head and neck of cow well restrained, not with a nose lead, but a rope halter or in a stanchion.
4. Place the cow in an area where there is good footing.
5. Have good lighting available.
6. Keep tools sharp. (hoof knives, hoof nippers, flat and rat tail files).

Dr. Mark Dewitte, Shillington, discussed mastitis and various treatments and preventions. "Treatment of chronic mastitis is most effective at drying off," he stated. He stressed protection of the teat canal and the following preventative measures:

1. Prevent physical injury to the teat end.
2. Guard against chapping, sunburn, and freezing.
3. Use only approved teat dips.
4. Have milking machines in good operating condition. Use recommended milking procedures. Do not overmilk.

A panel discussion was also included in the session. Fred Bohn, Swatara Dairy, and Dean Hartmen, Scattered Acres, were the dairymen on the panel along with the veterinarians, Drs. Dewitte, Hutchinson, and Nirschl. Dairymen were encouraged to ask "questions you always wanted to ask your vet but didn't want to be charged for."

The school was sponsored by the Berks County Extension which also provided notebooks and copies of each session for the participants.



Dairymen Fred Bohn, left, Swatara Dairy; and Dean Hartman, Scattered Acres, discussed their health programs at Berks school.

Vets participating in Berks dairy herd health school include, from the left, Drs. Dennis Hoshall, Oley; Larry Hutchinson, Penn State; Mark DeWitte, Shillington; and Lynn Sammons, Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Leesport.

Even the earthworms favor no-till farming

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — In Knox County, Ohio, even the earthworms are in favor of no-till farming.

Now, this may be stretching the no-till endorsements expressed Tuesday at Lancaster County's Conservation Tillage Conference a bit, but a significant relationship was drawn between no-till and earthworms by the visiting featured speaker from Knox County, Ohio.

Raymond J. Adamski, district conservationist in Knox County, in a 10-year intensive experience with no-till in his county, has fine-tuned his studies to the point that he has found that no-till ground contains about nine times more earthworms in it than the conventionally-tilled soil.

And the worth of this earthworm information goes well beyond being another bit of agricultural trivia. For the higher earthworm population in the no-till ground may be directly related to a better pH balance throughout the soil profile, which also translates into better crop rooting and moisture utilization for improved stands of anything from alfalfa to corn.

"I think the increased earthworms and their holes has improved the pH right down through the soil profile," Adamski said.

"The lime gets into the wormholes and gets deeper to improve the pH. This means better crop rooting and better utilization of water at greater depths."

On his own farm, Adamski started out with a pH of 4.9. In his no-till ground, the pH has been built up to about 7 at or near the surface and is still about 6.5 at a depth well below what would be the plowing layer in conventionally-tilled ground. In fact in a comparison of soil profiles, the pH level in nearby conventionally-tilled ground below plowing depth has shown levels of about 5.5.

"The plowing layer appears to shear off the wormholes and prevents the lime from going deeper and improving the pH," he said.

Adamski listed some other general findings and recommendations concerning no-till in Knox County, where some 62 percent of corn, 25 percent of soybeans and 80 percent of pastures are planted in this system designed to reduce erosion:

–To combat Fall panicum make certain the pH is 6 or above so that the triazines can work.

–Split applications of nitrogen have worked best and have helped to increase yields of corn by 20 or 30 bushels per acre.

Under no circumstances, use urea to apply nitrogen.

–High populations are favored – around 28,000 plants per acre.

–Earlier planting appears best about the last week in April or the first week in May as long as conditions are not too cold or too wet.

–Crop rotation is still important and if the land is rotated out of corn just one year yields can be boosted 15 or 20 bushels.

Adamski traced his experience with introducing and promoting no-till in Knox County. He started with just six farmers some 10 years ago and worked very closely with them, paying attention to the smallest of details and making any corrections that were necessary as they went along.

"Today, the conventional-tillage farmers in Knox County are in the minority," he said.

"And, all of the top farmers are no-till farmers."

He credits the holding of a no-till yield contest in the county as the means to really get the practice going and the way to encourage farmers to put their better ground into no-till.

Adamski stressed that trying no-till can't be on a one-time, one-field basis, but must include thorough follow-through to be successful.

"Always be prepared to go back and see what is right and what is wrong and make the necessary changes and adjustments," he said.

"And get out their early to make your evaluations just when the corn is starting to come up."

The day-long Conservation Tillage Conference, sponsored by the Lancaster County Conservation District and Extension Service, also featured a four-farmer panel of long-time no-tillers. The panel included:

David E. Buckwalter, of Lititz – He follows a no-till manure management program in which relatively high rates of steer manure are applied after wheat is harvested from fields into which clover has been sown as a cover. Clover is harvested in September and then burned back with Paraquat the next spring for no-till corn planting.

He plows down clover sometimes that many would like to bale but the cover provides the basis for the manure management.

C. Martin Greenleaf Jr., R1 Oxford – His no-tilling of corn, soybeans, barley, wheat, alfalfa and mixed hay has prompted some significant savings in recent years.

With no-till, his equipment has been cut back from seven tractors, three above 100 H.P., to just three, all below 100 H.P. By reducing his "recreational plowing" he has saved $3,000 in fuel and some $19,000 in labor costs by replacing two full-time hired men with parttime seasonal help. His chemical use has risen 10 to 20 percent and fertilizer utilization is up slightly.

Hugh Lesley, R2 Oxford – He utilizes a crop rotation of no-till corn, barley and soybeans. Even in the drought last year some of his corn yielded 125 bushels an acre.

Robert Berkheimer, R2 Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County – "The more cover you have, the better it is. We didn't have much rain last year, but where there was cover we had corn."

Manure from some 350 Holsteins – milkers, replacements and beef bulls – goes on no-till corn. Strawy manure goes on fields with less crop residue and liquid manure goes on heavy crop residues. He avoids soil compaction and no corn is planted before May 15.

Blue Mountain FFA opens banquet season

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — The Blue Mountain Chapter of the Future Farmers of America celebrated it's members achievements Thursday evening, Feb. 23, at the annual awards banquet.

Brian Krepps, McKeansburg, was awarded the Star Greenhand plaque. The son of Russell and Barbara Krepps, 14-year-old Brian began his agricultural projects in January. Hoping to continue on to computers, Brian is currently looking for work experience on nearby farms. "He helped with all our activities," stated advisor, Charles Heim. "He came out and did everything for us."

Saying that Paul Laubenstein, Freidensburg, has the most potential, Heim awarded him with the Star Chapter Farmer honors. Sixteen-year-old Paul is the son of Paul and Teresa Laubenstein. He currently works on a dairy farm. His goal is to travel to Montana and become an outfitter and guide.

"I want to become a dairy farmer," stated Rich Fryer who won the plaque in Ag Production. The honors in Dairy Production went to Tom Fidler, who hopes to remain on his home dairy farm.

Floyd Seltzer, Schuylkill Haven, won honors in Diversified Livestock and was also awarded the Production Credit County Award. Hoping to run for state office in the future, 17-year-old Floyd currently works with goats, pigs, and beans.

Other winners include:

County project book winners — Jeff Shoener Tom Ritchie Lester Hartranft Tom Fidler Robert Umbrell Jr Rich Fryer Ronald Fidler Paul Laubenstein Mike Schrack and Floyd Seltzer

State project book contest — Floyd Seltzer Jeff Schoener and Tom Fidler

FFA Week contest pins — Jeff Shoener public speaking Floyd Seltzer land judging Ronald Fidler livestock judging Howard Harig livestock judging

Foundation Awards — Brian Kreps recreation Mark Killian beef production Nelson Moyer dairy production Dave Snyder and Jim Wosochlo public speaking Lester Hartranft home improvement Jay Fenninger landscape and turf management

ADA to discuss dairy bill

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The recently enacted national dairy bill will be a key topic for discussion during the 24th Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council at the Hotel Syracuse on March 13, beginning at 10:00 a.m. Over 350 farmers and industry leaders are expected to attend in order to review their farmer funded and directed milk promotion program.

The theme of this year's meeting is "Our Keys to the Future" focusing on advertising and promotion as a key solution to today's dairy surplus. Featured will be the new milk advertising theme, "Milk's Got More."

James P. Camerlo, Chairman of the United Dairy Industry Association, will be the keynote speaker during the evening banquet.

The morning program will contain the main business meeting, providing an overview of ADA/DC's 1984 promotion program. The luncheon address entitled "Technology in the Dairy Industry" will be delivered by David Call, Dean of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cornell University.

The afternoon will focus on Dairy Council's nutrition education program. Highlighted will be A. Elizabeth Sloan, Ph.D., Director of the Good Housekeeping Institute. Her talk, entitled "The Consumer Speaks," will focus on today's food issues and marketing trends.

York Holstein Assn. plans meeting & bus trip

YORK — York County Holstein Association will hold its annual spring barn meeting at Smysers' Richlawn farm on Tuesday beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Program plans for the meeting include a presentation on dry cow management, with the opportunity to view the Smyser's recently-constructed dry cow and maternity facility.

The Smyser farm, operated by Richard, Robert and Rodney Smyser, is located west of York on the East Berlin Road (Route 234). Last year, the Richlawn herd topped the county's DHIA production list with a herd average on 68 head of 21,485 milk and 792 fat, and won top protein production honors with 690 pounds. Individuals in the herd also won 305-day milk and fat record awards.

Richard Smyser began dairying on the century farm in 1947, and his two sons comprise the fifth generation of family farmers.

County Holstein club members and all interested dairymen are invited to attend the annual barn meeting.

Holstein club trip committee chairmen have announced plans for the club to organize a spring bus trip to visit several top registered Holstein herds in the area of Toronto, Canada.

Dates of the bus trip are April 10 through 12, with overnight stops at Niagara Falls, on the United States side, and at Toronto. Tentative plans include possible stops at such noted herds as Ron... Hanover Hill, Roundtree, Roybrook, E.B. Holmes and Browndale.

Estimated cost of the bus and accomodations is $135, with a $50 down payment per person required when reservations are made. Reservations may be made, with downpayment, at the barn meeting, or be sending to Thomas Boyer, 110 Biesecker Road, York, 17404. More details on the bus trip will be available following the barn meeting program. — J.B.

Dum named Holstein consultant

BRATTLE BORO, Vt. — Thomas G. Dum, Jr., a native of Pennsylvania, has been named by the Holstein Association to serve as field consultant to dairy breeders in western Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia.

Prior to his new position, Dum was a herd classifier for the national Association.

Consultant Dum will assist dairymen with on-the-farm corrective mating programs, sire development, cattle merchandising and many of the other Association services available to herd owners.

Thomas G. Dum Jr.

Raised on the family dairy farm, Dum started his own Holstein herd in 1952, progressing from a grade herd to an all-registered herd in 1965, when he went on official test. classified the animals and began to show in local, state and Pennsylvania All-American shows.

Dum has been a member of the West Perry Young Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, and elected as delegate to national Holstein conventions.

He has been a director of the county Holstein club and the DHIA board. His community work has included promotion of the Perry County Princess sale.

Dum and his wife Nellie are parents of five children and reside at Elliottsburg. Contact him through the Holstein Association area office in Harrisburg at 717-657-8800.

Sidders gets Holstein post

BRATTLE BORO, Vt. — Tommy L. Sidders, a new part-time Holstein Association herd classifier, has finished his field training and has joined the permanent field staff serving dairy breeders in the Eastern regional states.

Sidders will work out of the Harrisburg, national Association office, classifying Holstein herds in states as far north as New England and as far south as Virginia.

Holstein classifiers provide functional type evaluation services for herd owners, a program that requires scoring individual animals against the ideal cow of the breed.

Classification information can be used as a herd management improvement tool, as well as providing information for merchandising cattle.

Sidders has received intensive technical training in the linear method of measuring type traits of Holstein animals, a system implemented by the Association in 1983.

The Ohio native has owned and bred registered Holsteins and participated in most aspects of the dairy industry in the last 18 years.

Sidders and his wife Jane have two children, Emily and Lucas. He can be reached through the Holstein Association area office in Harrisburg at 717-657-8800.

Highlights of the Md. Holstein convention

Individual Holstein Production Awards went to: John L. King Jr., Church Hill, high record 2-year-old; Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, high record 3-year-old; Dennis Patrick and Richard Wotthlie, high record 4-year-old; Marlin Hoff, high record for cow between five and 10 years; and Charles T. Dean Jr., Ridgely, high record cow 10 years and over.

Production awards for herd lactation records were presented to: Roger and Jason Myers, Westminster, high lactaction herd 90 cows or under; Maple Lawn Farms Inc., high lactation herd over 90 cows; Daniel Hollingsworth III, Denton, high herd 90 cows and under; Harry L. Schrader and Sons, Chestertown, high herd over 90 cows; and Charles Smith and Sons, Jefferson, highest individual lifetime production records for both milk and fat.

Holstein breeders receiving All-Maryland honors included: Hills-Hope Farm, Frederick County; Remvale Farm, Frederick County; Roger Wright, Montgomery County; Roger and Jason Myers, Carroll County; Donald Keller, Frederick County; Kingstead Farms, Montgomery County; Jill Smith, Kent County; Audra Debnam, Kent County; G. Raney Debnam, Kent County; Marlin Hoff, Carroll County; Marion Andrew, Queens Anne County; Fishlyn Holsteins, Frederick County; Edgar Yoder, Garrett County; and the University of Maryland, Howard County.

CONVENTION SALE

Highlighting the Maryland Holstein Convention was the selling of 58 head of high quality Holsteins during the convention sale Wednesday.

Topping the list of cattle sold, a majority of which were calves and heifers, was a 3-year-old cow consigned by Savage-Leigh Farms, Boyds. Savage-Leigh Chief Honey was bought by James Holler, Jamestown, Pa., for $10,000.

Second high-seller, sold for $8,400, was 3-year-old Fair-Hill Glendell Roxy-ET. Consigned by Fair Hill Farm, Chestertown, the cow was sold to Cal Andring of Washington, D.C.

Coldsprings Chairman Nohow-ET, a September 1983 heifer, was third high-seller at $8,200. Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, consigned the heifer which was bought by Brigeen Farms Inc., Turner, Maine.

Other animals selling for over $5,000 were: Maple-G Fire Fancy-Red, consigned by Blue Bell Dairy Farm, Grantsville, and bought by Steven and Jane Bowen, Byron Center, Mich., for $5,000; My Ladys Fond Lady-ET, consigned by Ross Smith, Monkton, and bought by James Holler for $5,100; and Kingstead Valiant Amy, consigned by Ron Heffner, Jefferson, and sold to Norman Voss, Clayton, Del., for $5,100.

The sale total was $160,150 for an average of $2,708 per head.

Maryland juniors receive awards

BY LAURA ENGLAND

NORTH EAST, MD. — Junior members of the Maryland Holstein Association capped off a successful year in 1983 and were recognized for their efforts Tuesday night during the Md. Holstein Convention banquet.

Recalling last year's junior activities, Bobbie King, junior committee chairman, said the highlight of 1983 was the presentation of 16 record book awards as well as three production awards. Other activites included participation at the National Holstein Convention, state fairs and support for 4-H and FFA dairy programs and shows.

The junior production awards went to Kenny King, Church Hill, Scott Stanford, Gaithersburg, and Susan Stonesifer, Union Bridge. The plaques were sponsored by Del-Myr Farm, Peace and Plenty Farm and Frank G. Remsberg, respectively.

Kenny received the 2-year-old award. His cow, Kinglea Bootmaker produced 21,265 pounds of milk. Scott's 3-year-old cow, Md. Crystaldale Starlite Lea, produced

Lancaster Dairy Days on Monday & Tuesday

LANCASTER — The dairy outlook for 1984-1985, managing cows in hot dry weather, getting a greater return on the feed dollar, mastitis and herd health are some of the major concerns of dairymen. They are also the major topics to be addressed at this year's Lancaster County Dairy Days.

The two-day event is scheduled for Monday and Tuesday at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The event is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service and local agricultural industires. Exhibits will be on display and refreshments will be served starting at 9 a.m. both days.

Monday's topics and speakers are:

The Best The Land Can Give, movie.

How Much Can You Afford to Pay for Feeds? - Glenn Shirk, dairy agent.

Dairy Outlook for 1984-1985 - U.S.D.A. representative.

What's New in Insect and Weed Control? (Farmers desiring recertification as a private applicator of restricted use pesticides should attend this talk, and bring their "pesticide card"). - Arnold Lueck, county agent.

Using Alternative Feeds and Additives Effectively - Darwin Braund.

Getting A Better Return on Your Feed Dollar - Darwin Braund.

How I Feed For Profit, Farmer panel - Fred Garber, James Hershey, Robert L. Kauffman, Keith Zurin.

Tuesday's program will focus more on managing cows in hot weather and on dairy herd health. Topics include:

Johnes Disease and What To Do About It - Robert Whitlock, New Bolton Center.

Summer Sterility Problems - Terry Blanchard, New Bolton Center.

High Somatic Cell Counts, Nature and Causes - Robert Eberhart, Penn State veterinary science.

Keeping Cell Counts Down, Farmer panel - Curtis Akers, Donald Trimble and D. Lamar Witmer.

Milking Systems - What's New? - Stephen Spencer.

Anyone interested in dairying is invited to attend. Lunch will be available and tickets can be purchased until 11:00 a.m.

Grahn to speak at NFO dinner

PLUMSTEADVILLE — Brynolf Grahn, director of budget and finance for the National Farmers Organization, will be the speaker at the annual dinner of the Bucks Co. Unit of the National Farmers Organization to be held March 24 at 7 p.m. at the Plumsteadville Fire House, Plumsteadville.

The dinner will be family style and tickets are $6.50 each. For tickets, call Bill Garges at 348-5514, Raymond Gross at 766-8785, or Web Singer at 346-7749.

You load 10.7 tons and what have you got?
A darn good alfalfa yield.

We got it with Saranac AR in an official measured trial—10.7 tons per acre. That's because Saranac AR is Northeast-Bred to stand up to harsh winters and come on early and strong each spring. Bred to produce consistent top yields and long-lived stands.

Anthracnose resistant...Race 1 and 2
What's more, Saranac AR is the only one to plant where anthracnose, Race 1 and 2 is a threat. Saranac AR is resistant to both strains of this crop killer.

Plus, Verti-Clean™ for Verticillium wilt protection.
There's been another threat to alfalfa show up in the Northeast recently—Verticillium wilt. This disease can be introduced to your fields by infected equipment or the seed you plant, even if "wilt-resistant." Then it goes on to reduce yields and cut stands dramatically.

Saranac AR seed is treated by the Verti-Clean process for the purpose of controlling the Verticillium wilt spores. Look for the Verti-Clean tag. You'll find it only on Northeast-Bred alfalfa.

This seed is treated
Verti-Clean™ Process
for the control of verticillium wilt.
This certified seed has been treated with a fungicide
DO NOT USE FOR FOOD FEED OR OIL PROCESSING
Handling of this treated seed should be done only in a well ventilated area and only when protected with appropriate mask, goggles and gloves
NOT SUITABLE FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION

When you plant Saranac AR, you're planting the seed for better performance, higher yields and greater value.

Franklin County quarantine lifted

BY KIMBERLY HERR

LANCASTER — The Avian Influenza Task Force announced this week that Franklin County has been released from the general quarantine restricting the movement of live birds and hatching eggs.

Dr. John Jefferies, USDA director of the task force, and Dr. Earl Neufer, state co-director, announced Wednesday that the general quarantine was removed in a 200 square mile area of Franklin County because an intense surveillance of the area had yielded no signs of avian influenza infection.

This marks the first time that the quarantine zone has been reduced in Pennyslvania since it was instituted on Nov. 4

Tim Allwein, Pa. Poultry Federation spokesman, reported Friday that 281 flocks have been declared to have the influenza and all of those flocks have been depopulated, for a total of 11,396,118 birds.

Allwein described the situation for this week as "pretty quiet." However, there was, according to Allwein, one new flock, consisting of less than 700 birds, found to be diseased in the Frystown area, near the Lebanon and Berks County border.

Two other new flocks are considered suspicious at this time. They are located in the Fredericksburg area of Lebanon County and the Ronks area of Lancaster County. The Ronks flock is made up of pullets.

"The last thing we need right now is to have more pullets get sick," Allwein said, commenting on the scarcity of pullets.

In a rundown of the repopulated flocks, Allwein reported that one flock has been declared to have the disease. Allwein explained that the Lititz 25,000-bird flock was replaced on Feb. 8 and was declared with the disease on Feb. 23. The initial flock of 24,000 birds had been depopulated in November.

The second case in which a repopulated flock was declared sick was a result of a USDA computer error, according to Allwein, resulting in birds that already had the avian influenza being sold before the disease was detected. This case, Allwein explained, is not being counted as a repopulated flock.

Of the one repopulated flock that did contract the influenza Allwein said, "It is a bad sign as far as the fact that it is another break," however, he added that any disease control effort expects to have some repopulated flocks come down with the disease.

Out of the 45 repopulated flocks, there has only been one influenza outbreak.

Allwein announced that the advisory committee, made up of poultry and influenza experts, that has been working with the USDA will meet with poultry producers and industry personnel on March 8 at the Host Farm to answer questions on such topics as vaccination, how the influenza started and how it spread.

Powers gets market post

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr., has announced the appointment of Bradley H. Powers as Chief of Marketing Services for the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Powers joined M.D.A. in 1976 as the Department's first field crops Marketing Specialist. In 1982, he was named Assistant Chief of Marketing and has also been serving as Acting Chief since that time. Most recently, Powers was appointed Acting Executive Secretary of the State Tobacco Authority.

Many of M.D.A.'s most popular marketing programs were developed under the direction of Powers. "He is highly respected among his peers for his marketing expertise and enjoys an excellent reputation with the state's agricultural community", Cawley said.

Powers came to M.D.A. from the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service where he was assigned to Talbot County as a 4-H and Youth Agent also responsible for horticulture and livestock and dairy programs from 1969 to 1976.

He received his B.S. degree in Animal Science from the University of Maryland in 1969 and continued with graduate studies in animal nutrition at Maryland while employed as an Extension Agent.

The son of Miles and Beryl Powers, of Indian Springs Farm in Harford County, Md., he now resides in Easton with his wife Shari and son Scott.

Soil conservation session on Thursday

LEWISBURG — The first Annual Soil Conservation Society Technical Session scheduled for Thursday at the Country Cupboard Restaurant, Lewisburg, will include timely topics on conservation tillage.

The keynote address on Conservation Tillage will be presented by Lynn Hoffman, Research Association in Agronomy and Manager of the Penn State Agronomy Farm. Hoffman will relate recent research and practical experience in discussing conservation tillage in today's modern agriculture.

Other timely subjects relating to conservation tillage include a discussion of Soil Fertility Management in Conservation Tillage by Ray Shipp, Associate Professor of Agronomy Extension The subject of Soil Compaction has become a very common topic for discussion recently. Daniel Fritton, Professor of Soil Physics, will relate this subject to conservation tillage.

Remote sensing has been recognized for a number of years as being an excellent tool to gather data about land cover and soil characteristics. Gary Peterson, Co-Director of the Office for Remote Sensing of Earth Resources, will discuss the relationship of remote sensing to Conservation Tillage.

The afternoon part of the Session will include an update by Harry Pionke, Director of the North East Regional Watershed Research Center, ARS, on current ARS research relating to conservation tillage.

The Session is scheduled for Thursday and will start promptly at 9:30 a.m. for the Country Cupboard Restaurant, North of Lewisburg on Route 15.

Potato meeting on Mar. 14

ALLENTOWN – Commercial potato growers from southeast Pennsylvania will gather in Lehigh County on March 14 to learn "what's new" in the potato industry.

The meeting will feature 19 different commercial exhibitors displaying products useful to potato growers.

Agway entomologist Norm Gauthier from Syracuse, N.Y., will give us a look at what's happening with the Colorado potato beetle. Dick Cole, Penn State Extension potato specialist, will discuss seed handling. Other Penn State specialists include entomologist Stan Gesell; John Skelly, head of the plant pathology department and Barb Christ, our new potato geneticist.

Lunch reservations are required by Wednesday and can be made by calling the Lehigh County Extension Service at (215) 820-3085. The meeting will be held at the Schnecksville Grange Hall on Wednesday, March 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Lehigh Valley Potato Growers Association will hold their annual meeting at this event.

The rules

for a married couple to be paying more in taxes than they do for food, which is the very most essential sustenance of life. Many of these taxes now support those whose livelihood was destroyed by the very policy which is to maintain stability.

As to farm foreclosures, most and perhaps all of these took their advice from governmental agents who could care less for the individuals concerned. In fact, here too, I suspect a simister Master Plan. Already, large financial institutions are heavily buying into farm real estate.

Next, the farm computer, this too has the possibility of being a valuable tool or a crutch upon which the farmer leans for his decisions until he finds that the crutch has been kicked from under himself.

Please, I love the soil, I love life and I value highly the independence of mankind. Nowhere can we learn more about all three than in a keen observation of the environment which we inherited as a birthright. All the money in the world cannot substitute for these three once we have lost them from ourselves. Think!

equipment, an educational display on dairy products, a tractor, a cow model with information on feeds, and a dairy princess exhibit where students saw a slide show on Blair County dairy farms and received a carton of milk and educational materials.

The dairy exhibit was "well received by teachers and students," England said, and many teachers had explained to their students ahead of time what dairy farming is. Several teachers, he added, asked to schedule on-farm visits for their classes.

While the program was geared to elementary students, the public was invited to visit the displays. Overall, England said about 1,600 students visited the dairy stations.

Joel Wineland, left, of Wineland Farm Equipment, Martinsburg, lends a hand to this youngster who sat on a tractor seat for the first time.

"CECIL COUNTY'S LEADING AUCTION SERVICE"

Noorlander

benefits on a daily with good practices and a low line, 13 inches of mercury or less, a 60-40 ratio or 55-45 on other standard rubber, alternating pulsations, and narrow bore soft liners.

Asked throughout the day for his opinion on the best equipment to use, Noorlander gave these quidelines to follow, when selecting inflations.

1. The rubber should be soft.

2. Narrow bore liners should be used. The bore should not exceed 7/8 inch in diameter. A narrow bore inflation will milk below the udder tissue without crawling up the udder. It will reduce the area of the teat that is exposed to vacuum.

3. The inflation should stretch.

To the dairymen, Noorlander gave his unbiased findings and opinions. When he knew of a problem with one particular design, he named the company or the inventory, even if it was his own invention. He also stated that if he were to attempt to put together the best machine today, it would consist of parts from each of the major milking machine manufacturers.

Noorlander cited several problems with pulsations and milk tubes. "It's almost impossible to avoid mastitis in a barn using a surge bucket milker if you're going to milk a cow with a low udder," he said. "You bend that milk tube over, your vacuum goes up and you're going to have tremendous pumping action," he described.

Noorlander explained that when the pressure increases on cows teats, the blood gets congested and it is much easier to have bacteria pumped up the teat by the pulsation. The higher the vacuum and the longer the machine stays on the cow, the easier it is to pump bacteria back up the teat according to Noorlander. He recommends that dairymen use lower vacuum levels, with alternating pulsation of 60-40 ratio. He also stressed keeping pulsation boxes clean and properly maintained. A pulsation shut-off valve should also be used and vacuum regulators should be checked.

Also discussing high leucocyte counts and proper refrigeration, Noorlander said, "all these contribute to to poor milk quality." "If you suspect you have a problem, don't wait for your plant manager, check it out," he stressed. "Sit there and watch," he continued, "it's the simple things."

He reminded dairymen to make sure air vents are open, the ferrules in the claw are clean, and the vacuum pump is big enough to remove the air promptly. Noorlander advised 11 to 12 inches of vacuum. He stated that the size of the pump depends how much air the operator lets into the system. For claw units with some fall-off, he advises one horsepower for every machine. A good operator could get by with one-half.

"I think it's time the dairy industry starts challenging the milking machine manufacturers," Noorlander said.

He continued to stress to dairymen when they have a problem to check techniques - twisting macines when removing them or removing in a rough manner add to mastitis; check equipment - proper cleaning with the correct cleaners and proper maintenance saves money; and question something that does not do the job the way it should - teat end damage and high somatic cell counts are signals.

According to Noorlander, the major companies are making progress and new and better machines are being developed every year. But, he added, many dairymen have more cows than they can handle properly. In producing a quality product, the environment must also be healthful. Proper equipment and techniques are defeated in a stressful, dirty, environment. "If you haven't got the time to do it right, when are you going to get the time to do it over?" he asked the farmers.

Noorlander has become increasingly involved in helping impoverished countries do a better job of farming. He is currently helping Guatemalan farmers to improve their soil conditions and plans to return there later this year to continue his work. He also plans to join the Peace Corps to continue his efforts. "We take for granted the tremendous things given to us by technology in this country," Noorlander told dairymen in his closing remarks. He finished his presentation with slides on the Guatemala natives and their farming practices.

Pa. Ayrshire breeders to meet

The Fasnacht Tradition Continues with the Musser Family

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

This Tuesday will be Fasnacht Day for most Lancaster Countians, a tradition observed as the start of the Lenten season which officially begins on Ash Wednesday. Fasnachts, delicious little balls of dough either with a hole in them like doughnuts or cut in squares with no holes, are the traditional means by which Pennsylvania German hausfraus used up the last of the fat in the house before beginning the Lenten season and its tradition of fasting.

The Musser family recommends eating fasnachts warm, with butter and King's syrup. This does look irrestible, doesn't it? Imagine being in a room with 20 dozen fasnachts!

Pat Zeamer has begun the mixing job which is quickly taken over by her father, Ken Musser. This tub holds one half batch of the total, which will yield about 20 dozen delicious fasnachts.

There are few treats to compare with a freshly made fasnacht, still hot from the deep fat in which it is fried. Although it is no longer used as a method for using up the old fat, it is small wonder that the custom continues from the sheer delight of it.

Ken and Dottie Musser, Columbia, and Ken's daughter, Pat Zeamer, carry on the tradition which is not just a family affair, but for a while became a community affair for the town of Mountville.

The recipe they use originated with a friend of Mrs. Alvin Musser, Aunt Clara, who joins in the rolling and frying of the fasnachts, but it practically became community property when members of the Mountville Church of the Brethren began selling fasnachts as a fundraiser for a new church building.

Aunt Clara got the recipe from a friend, Lizzie Lockard Smith. "She convinced me to make them with her and use her recipe. She used to make them for market. We sold some and we cooled them on the back porch," Clara recalls.

Making them in Clara's home was a forerunner to actually baking them in the basement of the old church. "It got too big to do at home," Clara says. Ken recalls that he used to help fry them in the big iron kettles with wood fires under them. "With wood you have to be on the ball," he points out. "We would make 2 1/2 to 3 dozen in each kettle." Pat still has a newspaper clipping with his picture, as he cooked the fasnachts.

Clara laughs, "We got the men on that job. We had fun. I was one of the pushers. Sometimes I worked through the night from Monday morning until Tuesday dinner when we would be done."

Ken and Dottie recall making the fasnachts for several weeks prior to Lent, and Pat says, "I remember doing it when I was a kid." Ken adds, "I bought tons of flour." They would sell the doughnuts for $.50 to $.60 a dozen, and it slowly moved up to $1.20. The number of doughnuts sold ran into the thousands.

Since it was a church project, the work began at midnight on Sunday, they couldn't after all, work on Sunday, even to mix up the

Dottie Musser pours yeast mixture into one of the two tubs that will be used to mix the fasnachts.

Ken Musser is responsible for mixing the two tubs of ingredients that will make the fasnachts. He carefully kneads and works the 20 pounds of flour into the dough. It will rise for about nine hours, with one kneading down after about five hours.

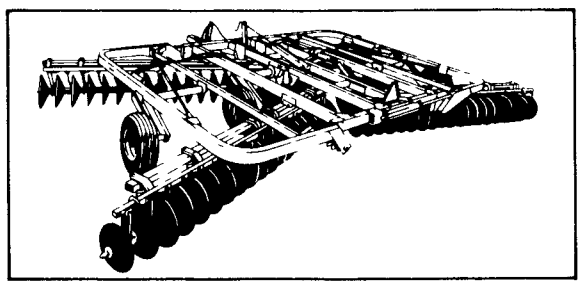
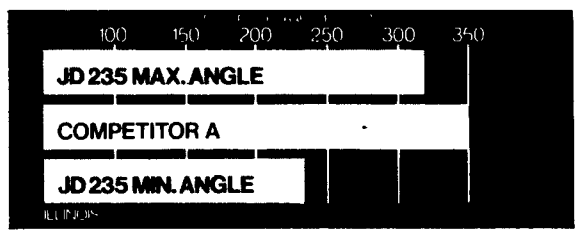
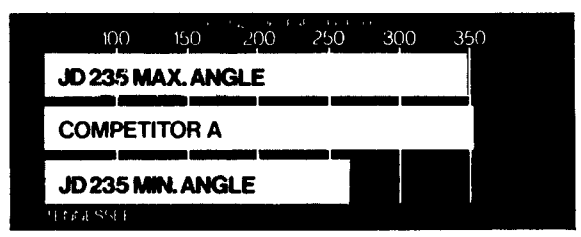
JOHN DEERE DISK DRAFT TESTS PROVE

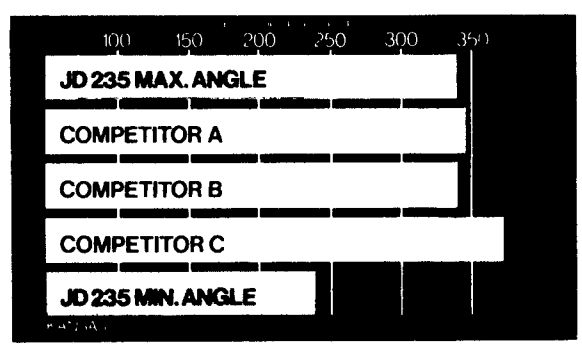
WE DON'T HAVE THE PULL YOU THINK WE DO

The chart below shows the results of disk draft tests John Deere engineers ran in Illinois, Tennessee and Kansas against our major full-line competitor. In the Kansas test we also took on two of the major short-line disks. These tests help dispel the rumor that our disks pull harder. Sophisticated computer equipment accurately measured the results of side-by-side runs. The drawbar pull required by our disk at maximum gang angle was less than, or equal to, that of the competition At no time did we pull harder. When we went to minimum gang angle (the competition's fixed gang angle couldn't match this ideal adjustment for less-aggressive seedbed tillage work), we required far less pull. Stop by and let us give you all the details on these draft tests. And we can point out all the features that make John Deere Level-Action disks your best buy.





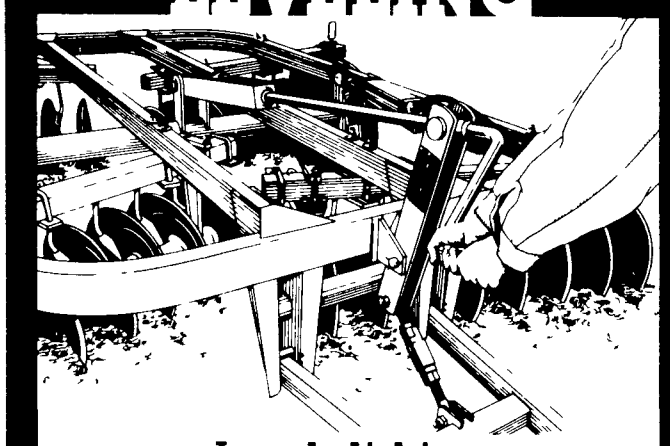




TODAY'S JOHN DEERE LEVEL-ACTION™ DISKS—1ST IN QUALITY

JOHN DEERE

SIMPLE LEVELING



Level disking is quick and easy . . . turning one crank is all it takes

Leave your wrenches in the tractor: drawn Level-Action™ disks have a simple crank adjustment.

Eliminate a center ridge or valley by rotating this crank. It's the only adjustment needed in most fields.

These disks also put virtually 100 percent of their working weight on the blades, thanks to the Level-Action hitch linkage. See us for details on John Deere disks in widths and weights that match your needs.

Pat Zeamer works at the pan in which the fasnachts are fried. It is up to her to turn them at the proper time and to take them out when they are done.

This container will hold up to a dozen fasnachts. The thermometer is a quick way to check and make sure the fat is not becoming too hot or cold as the process continues.

Fasnacht Tradition

dough. The crews worked round the clock to sell the doughnuts on Tuesday.

Eventually, Dottie remembers that her father, Freeman Lenhart, made a mechanized mixer to help with the process at church. Dottie says, "If he could make something to make it easier he did it. He wanted to save wear and tear."

After the new church was built, Aunt Clara continued the tradition in her home, on a small scale, and when she decided it was too much for her several years ago, Ken and Dottie took over. The work is now done in their spacious farm house at Musser Farms Dairy near Columbia.

This ambitious family does not wait until Fasnacht Day, but actually makes the delicious morsels several weeks before. In fact, Dottie stresses that they do not do it to use old fat, because she very purposefully buys new lard so it makes fresh, delicious fasnachts. She also buys the freshest cake yeasts she can find, so that all her efforts are not in vain.

The family members have an organization to the way they tackle the task, born of years of working together. The night before, Ken, Dottie and Pat met in the spacious farm kitchen and mix the dough.

Since they are mixing it in a batch which takes 20 pounds of flour, this step is not a small one. From experience, however, they divided the batch between two large plastic pails, purchased specifically for the job from a farm supply business.

They then measure the ingredients carefully, and Ken takes over as the mixer. Asked how he got that job, he jokes, "I opened my mouth." He places the tubs in a low position which allows him to really get into the work, and proceeds to mix and knead it for 10-12 minutes. He does it until it feels just right, then he and Dottie work together to grease the top of the dough and the sides of the bowl so the finished dough doesn't stick.

The two enormous containers are covered and allowed to stand overnight (by this time it is 9:30

(Turn to Page B5)

Rolling and re-rolling, Dottie works her dough to use up every possible morsel. The recipe makes aboue 20 dozen fasnachts.

p.m.), and Ken is assigned the job of getting up at 3:00 a.m. to knead it down. After that the dough rises a second time before being rolled into fasnachts.

Bright and early on the big day, Dottie gets up and turns on the gas oven in the basement of the farm house to heat the small basement area where they will work. About 7:00 a.m. the work of rolling and cutting begins. At this point, Aunt Clara who lives down the road, arrives to do her share. Dottie and Clara roll and cut, roll and cut.

The Musser family makes fasnachts with holes in them, because that is their tradition. They keep just a few of the "holes" for deep frying, and the rest are rolled up for additional doughnuts. Pretty quickly the basement begins to look, feel and smell like bakery. There are cloth-covered plywood boards everywhere, filled with doughnuts which are now rising for the third time. The room is toasty warm, and the doughnuts do their work while the two men set the lard on the stove to begin to heat.

Lard is preferred by Aunt Clara who adds, "I didn't get used to these oils. I don't use too many substitutes."

Dottie uses a long pan, about eight inches deep for the actual cooking of the fasnachts. It covers two burners of the stove, and will hold about a dozen fasnachts. She has a thermometer in it at all times. After all, she doesn't want them ruined at this stage of the game.

This basement room, spotlessly clean, with a cement floor which lends itself to hosing down, is perfect for fasnachts, but also perfect for preparing sweet corn for the freezer. Aunt Clara is in on that one, too, in fact wouldn't miss it. "I enjoy doing it," she says.

With the oil is hot, a fasnacht is put in for testing. The oil does not quite react as it should, so the women wait. Soon though, they drop the raised fasnachts into the lard, and the familiar sizzle tells them it is perfect. Pat's job is to watch the fasnachts, turning them once, and taking them out when they are done. Dottie says, "Pat has a good eye." As she takes them out she puts a few in a bowl with paper toweling, to get off excess fat and hands them over to Dottie and Aunt Clara who spread them out to dry on paper toweling on top of newspapers which cover every available surface.

Clara says they are only good when they have a "white belly," meaning the doughnuts should be raised so high that a small ring in the middle doesn't quite get browned by the lard as the fasnachts cook.

Presently Ken shows up from the work he is doing at the dairy, and gets the pleasure of tasting the first fasnacht fresh from the fat. As Dottie pulls it open, it appears perfect, and Ken happily goes off to eat the delicacy.

Soon Dottie insists that the helpers (this includes me, who has done nothing but take pictures and a relative who dropped in with her small son to watch the proceedings) taste the fasnachts. She says that her family eats it with lots of butter and King's syrup. Since I have never eaten them this way, she gives me a demonstration, and I happily munch on this wonderful taste treat. Is there anything quite so good as a fresh fasnacht literally dripping with butter and syrup? This is no time to count calories.

As the cooking continues the atmosphere is jovial. Dottie says, "We have to have a system." And so these three women each know their job and by 10:30 a.m. the last of the fasnachts have been dipped from the hot fat, the stove turned off and the outside door opened to get some fresh air.

There is only the cleaning up to be done, and the best part of all - packing them in dozens and half dozens to be delivered to relatives who benefit from all this work. And, Dottie adds that she doesn't believe in waiting until Fasnacht Day to eat them, though they do freeze well.

And so, the Mussers have carried out the tradition for yet another year, a tradition which is not just fun, but also delicious!

Celebrate March with a Cake

It's March and, hopefully, the beginning of the end to winter. Why not forget your diet, just for this week, and celebrate spring with a scrumptious, new cake recipe?

The recipes we received from our readers sound great. Try them!

CARROT CAKE

2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cup Wesson Oil
4 eggs

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Then add:

1/2 cup chopped walnuts
3 cups grated carrots

Bake in oblong pan at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes and top with cream cheese frosting, as follows:

Mix:

1 (8-oz.) package cream cheese
1/2 cup margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
enough 10X sugar to make it right to spread

R. Riehl
Gordonville

The next three recipes come from Betty Biehl, Mertztown.

CRUMB CAKE

1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup shortening
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
dash of cinnamon
melted butter

Sift together sugar, salt, flour and baking powder. Add shortening and crumb well with a fork. Take out 1/2 cup of crumbs and to the remaining crumbs add eggs and milk. Mix well. Pour into a well-greased 8X8X2-inch pan. Sprinkle the top with the reserved crumbs and top with cinnamon and a little melted butter. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

NUT CAKE

1/3 cup shortening
1/3 cup butter
1 2/3 cups sugar
3 eggs
2 3/4 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
little salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/3 cup walnuts, cut up

Mix all ingredients together. Fold in the walnuts last. Pour batter into 2 nine-inch layer cake pans that are well greased. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Spread with following frosting:

Mocha Frosting
1 1/2 cups confectioners sugar
1 large egg
1/3 cup strong brewed coffee
3/4 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 1/2 tablespoon butter

Mix all of above ingredients and spread on cake.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE

2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons sugar

Mix together and add:

5 tablespoons butter

Work mixture like pie dough and then add:

1 egg
1/3 cup milk

Beat together and then top with 1 1/2 tablespoons melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until done and top with following:

Topping
4 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Mix and put on top of cake.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

2 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup oil
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon salt

Beat until smooth and sift:

3 cups flour
1/2 cup cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda

Add to mixture, plus one cup of boiling water. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Use a 9X13 pan.

Vera M. Scott
Cortland R1, New York

TASTY CAKES

4 eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
pinch of salt

Beat eggs until thick. Add sugar and beat well. Add milk, vanilla and dry ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes in a greased jelly roll pan, 13X15. While hot spread one cup of peanut butter over cake and let cool. Spread a melted 8 oz. chocolate bar over peanut butter. Cut in squares.

SOUR CREAM SPICE CAKE

1/4 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg

Treat your sweet tooth to one of this week's recipes. Whether you prefer spice, chocolate, fruit or coffee cakes, you won't be disappointed there is a recipe that features each of these.

3/4 cup thick sour cream
1 3/4 cups sifted cake flour
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cloves
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually. Add egg and beat well. Add sour cream. Sift flour with baking soda, baking powder, salt, cloves and cinnamon. Add two tablespoons of the dry ingredients to the creamed mixture. Beat thoroughly. Add dry ingredients to the first mixture, beating well. Pour into a well greased and floured pan 8X12X2 inches. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

TOMATO SOUP CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon powdered cloves
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon or mace
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup seedless raisins
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 well beaten eggs
1 can (1 1/4 cups) condensed tomato soup

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and spices. Wash and cut raisins. Roll in a small amount of the flour mixture. Cream shortening; add sugar gradually; then eggs, mixing thoroughly. Add flour mixture alternately with soup; stir until smooth. Fold in raisins. Pour into two greased and floured 8-inch layer pans. Bake in 375 degree oven for 35 minutes or until done.

BANANA UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
3 medium bananas, cut in quarters
1/2 cup raisins
walnut halves
1/4 cup shortening
2/3 cup sugar
2 beaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup milk

Melt butter. Add brown sugar, and stir until well blended. Pat into the bottom of a square 8-inch baking pan. Arrange bananas, raisins and nuts over this and pat down gently. Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Add eggs and beat well. Add vanilla. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add flour mixture alternately with milk to creamed mixture, stirring and blending after each addition. Beat slightly to make smooth. Pour batter carefully over bananas. Bake in 350-degree oven until done, about 55 minutes. Turn out upside down.

Featured Recipes

This week's featured recipe is a special one, not only because Fasnacht Day is Tuesday, but also because this recipe has been personally taste-tested by this home editor. Years ago, long before I learned to worry about calories, I would sit in a friend's kitchen munching on fasnacht after fashnacht, each of them coated with a healthy helping of molasses. The baker of those delicious treats was Stanley Haverstick, who has graciously agreed to share his recipe with us. Enjoy it as much as I did!

Fasnachts

3 medium potatoes
2 cups flour
1 yeast cake
2 cups flour
2 cups lukewarm milk
4 beaten eggs
1/2 cup melted butter
1 cup sugar

Boil potatoes in enough water to cover. When soft remove potatoes and mash. With potato water scald two cups of flour, add mashed potatoes. When cool, add yeast cake dissolved in a little lukewarm water. Later, mix 2 cups of flour with milk, making a batter that will drop easily from a spoon, add first mixture and let rise overnight. In the morning, add eggs, butter and sugar. Knead stiff enough to roll and let rises until dough has doubled in size. Roll, cut out and let rise again. When light, fry in hot fat. Makes about 10 dozen.

If 10 dozen sounds like more than your family can use, the Haverstick family also volunteered this recipe, which makes only three dozen.

Fasnachts

1 1/4 cup milk
1/4 cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 small yeast cake
3 eggs, beaten
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
4 1/2 to 5 cups sifted flour

Scald the milk, add shortening and salt. Cool milk until it is lukewarm, then add crumbled yeast cake and stir. Gradually add 2 2/3 cups sifted flour, heating batter thoroughly. Put in a warm place and allow to stand until filled with bubbles. Mix sugar and nutmeg and combine with beaten eggs. Stir into first mixture and add remaining flour. Knead well, cover and let rise in a warm place for about one hour. Turn out lightly on floured board and roll 3/4 inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter. Cover with a thin cloth and let rise on board until top is springy to touch of finger. Drop into 365-degree fat with the raised side down so the top side will rise, while underside cools. Drain on paper towels.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

On my Caribbean Cruise, we anchored off Palm Island the second day and tenders or lifeboats took us ashore. There were 58 people in what appeared to be a very large rowboat.

We were greeted by the beat of steel drums on this 110-acre tropical paradise. After a barbecue, we had the opportunity to swim and sunbathe in this world of sun, sand, and crystal-clear waters.

In the afternoon, I had signed up for a four-hour sailing tour in the Tobago Cays. The captain, a young Frenchman, and his crew were kept busy handling the sails. We were taken ashore by motorboat to an uninhabited island. Here we had a chance to swim and I was first introduced to snorkeling. We saw some beautiful coral here.

I was very surprised to meet a doctor and his wife from Lancaster County on the sailboat. They were also passengers on the Sun Princess. And long ago, my sister had been his medical secretary. As they say, it is a small world. I hadn't seen them for years and years.

On the return trip our sailboat dipped and rocked quite a bit. I talked to ladies from Georgia, Mississippi and two from Ireland. Rum punch is served continually as it is produced here in the islands from sugar cane.

I ate my meals on the ship at the main seating at 6:45 p.m. The other half of the passengers ate at 8:45 p.m. The dining room was decorated each day according to the country whose food was served that night. The men waiters also dressed in Italian, French, British or American clothing.

We used the elevators quite a lot as we moved from our room on the Baja Deck to the other activities. The pool was on the Lido Deck and the International Lounge was on the Rivera Deck. Then again we'd go to the Continental Dining Room on the Promenade Deck. The lobby was on the Aurora Deck and it took some time to become accustomed to where everything was located.

4-H Dairy Club

The Perry County 4-H Dairy Club held a reorganizational meeting recently. John Harris, County Extension agent, showed a slide presentation on "Good Management Practices for Raising Heifers." New members were enrolled and officers were elected, as follows: President-Irene Benner, Vice-President-Ben Dum Jr., Secretary-Brenda Hummel, Treasurer-Judy Kriebel, News Reporter-Jenny Kriebel, and Game Leaders-Joe Albright and John Brofee. Irene Benner reported on the trip that she and Dan Albright took to the North American International Livestock Exposition in Kentucky.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

One thing that farmers soon learn to depend on in this business is not to depend on anything.

That includes anything from fickle government policies to a normally gentle animal that turns vicious with a newborn by her side, from the July thundercloud that materializes instantly over a field of dried hay to the brief flurry that develops into the decade's worst blizzard.

Even something so seemingly simple as a trip hauling cattle can be fraught with unexpected surprises.

Like a recent expedition experienced by a dairyman friend from a neighboring county.

For this delivery trip, he loaded up one large, old bull, and one little bull calf. Midway through the journey, the old bull's head suddenly appeared where it had no business being, about the same time a passing motorist honked a horn alert.

Charging back to the trailer after a screeching halt, the dismayed dairymen found one open door, and one big bull, but no little bull. Spinning around with the rig at the first handy spot, he retraced his tracks back through town.

Sure enough, there by the side of the road stood two young ladies, bull calf in tow. Gratefully offering them a small reward, the dairyman reclaimed the errant passenger and continued on his trip.

His recounting to us of that story brought back similar memories of the farmer's about a trip he, too, made sometime ago that took an unexpected twist.

Coming to a stop at a town traffic light, he noticed the cattle trailer door swinging open about the same second a stranger appeared with the same news. Before he could dash back and slam shut the door that had popped open, out jumped a bovine not necessarily known for her calm and gentle disposition.

In the ensuing excitement of the next several minutes, she toured neighboring urban yards, parking lots and startled her share of innocents passing by.

About a half-dozen hardy volunteer chasers seemed to appear from thin air and a plan emerged. The hauling rig would be backed up to a yard where a handy gap in a border hedge would serve as a makeshift loading chute.

Needless to say, everyone concurred on this idea but the cow, who managed to slip by the roadblocks and depart once again through the neighborhood, heels flying.

By the time at least a dozen urban cowboys, as well as local law enforcement officials, had turned up on the scene of the chase.

Eventually, the escapee was surrounded by this group of overwhelming numbers, aided by a resourceful truck driver who maneuvered his rig into the spot where the fleeing bovine had previously split.

Thus, the cross-country marathon of beast and man came to a satisfactory, and blessedly relieved, conclusion, and all went their own way.

So, while a fast-food chain has made this phrse national catchword, it was probably a farmer, spotting an open door on his cattle hauling rig, who said it first:

"Where's the beef?"

Cattle lotteries scheduled

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture will hold two lotteries March 15 to allocated quarantine space for importing breeding cattle: one for cattle originating in South America and another for those originating in Europe.

However, the lotteries will take place only if people request space for at least 50 animals, said John K. Atwell, deputy administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. He said the maximum number of spaces that will be allotted is 230.

Applications to take part in the lottery are due March 10. Applicants or their certified representatives must attend the lottery, which will be held at 9 a.m. March 15 in Room 643A, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md., near Washington, D.C.

The import center is a special quarantine facility operated by the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service on an island near Key West, Fla. Operation of the center permits the importation of healthy breeding stock from countries that have foreign animal diseases — such as foot-and-mouth disease — that are not present in the United States. Animals are quarantined there for 90 days.

Steak-Yielding Tractor Catches on in the U.S.

WASHINGTOHN — The water buffalo, an animal long associated with Asia and other remote parts of the world, is doing well in the United States.

The 162 buffaloes imported since 1978 have increased in 325, and scientists at the University of Florida's Center for Tropical Agriculture are undertaking research that, if successful, would sharply increase their numbers.

That's good news to water buffalo enthusiasts. The uninformed may be intimidated by the animal's great bulk and sweptback horns, but its admirers contend that the water buffalo loves small children, herds as docilely as sheep, is as loyal as a dog, and loves to wallow in the mud like a playful pig.

Tasty as Beef

Tastings by beef experts in the United States have confirmed what has been known in countries such as the Philippines and Australia for a long time. The flavor of water buffalo steaks equals and sometimes surpasses meat from ordinary cattle.

Few extol the animal's virtues more than Wiland S. Cripe, an assistant dean of veterinary medicine at the University of Florida. Cripe helped bring the first herd of commercial water buffalo to the United States.

"I envision water buffaloes complementing rather than competing with domestic cattle," says Cripe. "Their real advantage is the ability to flourish in marginal lands such as swampy or semi-arid areas where cattle would have a hard time finding enough forage."

Small herds of water buffalo are thriving in Texas, Louisiana, and Arkansas, where A.P. "Tony" Leonards, a private owner, is trying to improve the animals' genetic qualities through careful selective breeding.

Despite the promising start, it's unlikely that water buffaloes will ever become widespread in the United States, unless the University of Florida work is successful. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has cut off imports of foreign cattle and water buffaloes to protect domestic herds against hoof and mouth and other diseases.

Cattle as Surrogate Mothers

The Florida researchers hope to increase domestic herds by implanting water buffalo embryos in surrogate mothers from domestic cattle herds. An embryo has been successfully transplanted from one water buffalo to another, but it remains to be seen whether an ordinary cow could carry a water buffalo embryo.

"Using hormones, it's possible to superovulate a water buffalo cow and get 20 to 30 embryos a year," says Dr. Hugh Popenoe, director of the Center. "Sizable herds of the animals could theoretically be established in a relatively short time."

The United States is one of the few large countries in the world where water buffaloes don't roam in sizable numbers. The domesticated water buffalo numbers an estimated 180 million — one ninth of the total cattle in the world.

Prized for its meat and milk in many countries, it is also a rich source of cheese. Mozzarella, one of the most popular cheeses in Europe, comes from buffaloes in Italy.

Besides its nutritional contributions, the creature earns its keep in some places by serving as a "living tractor" that pulls plows, harrows, and heavily laden carts.

In Brazil's Amazon basin, buffalo teams haul boats filled with cargo and tourists through shallows and swamps. Shedding its image as a tropical animal, a harde breed of water buffalo pulls snow plows in Bulgaria.

No Spare Parts

Although its average walking speed is not quite two miles an hour, the buffalo, unlike its mechanical competition, doesn't need gasoline or spare parts, and if treated properly, stays in good working condition for as long as 20 years or more.

One of the gentlest of farm animals, the family water buffalo is often cared for by small boys and girls in rural Asia, who treat it like a family pet. It is not uncommon to see a water buffalo feeding while a young friend lies snoozing on its broad gray back.

An elderly woman in Taiwan told a visiting livestock expert the significance of the water buffalo in many parts of the world: "To my family the buffalo is more important than I am. When I die, they'll weep for me; but if our buffalo dies, they may starve."

People have depended on water buffaloes for centuries. Their crescent horns, coarse skin, wide muzzles, and low-carried heads are depicted on seals struck in the Indus Valley 5,000 years ago.

Father and daughter hitch a ride on a water buffalo in the wetlands of Malaysia. One of the gentlest of farm animals, the water buffalo is an important source of milk, cheese, and meat in many parts of the world. It also serves as a "tractor" by pulling heavy loads. Small herds thrive in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas.

Round Valley Riders

Members of the Round Valley Riders 4-H Club discussed topics for their county demonstrations. Many of the club members plan to participate in the contest, scheduled for March 16. Michelle Smigelsky and Jennifer Roy are chairpersons for the club's display at 4-H Day at the Mall. The group also plans to set up a window display for the county contest in May. Final work for their presentations will be done at their next meeting, which will take place March 5 at the Lewis residence on Valley Crest Road in Lebanon.

"Family Enrichment"

"Is there something wrong with your marriage?", my husband was asked when he explained that we were going to a "Marriage Enrichment" weekend. "We're hoping to make a good marriage better," was his response.

Having recently returned from that weekend event I feel enriched personally and in my marriage. In retrospect, I recognize that ideas I grasped not only related to marriage but to families and family life. And yes, we can probably make a good family life better. There doesn't have to be anything wrong to inspire us to improve our family situation.

Take for example communication, an important part of a healthy marriage. A Penn State University study reveals that communication is also a key to strong families. It has been determined that 80% of our working hours are spent communicating, and 45% of that time is spent listening. Sixty-five percent of your time is spent listening if you are a student.

After attending seminars, reading books and practicing with listening tapes, I felt confident when asked to do a communication exercise with my husband at Marriage Enrichment. "Look at hime when you speak," encouraged the coach (advisor) from the sidelines. Not once, but often I was reminded to maintain eye contact.

Eye contact – amazingly I realized I had almost forgotten the special hazel sparkle of my husband's eyes. Eye contact benefits both the listener and the speaker. It indicates that the message is important and that the listener cares about what the sender is saying. Eye contact may mean looking up between mouthfuls at the dinner table to seek the eyes of the one who is speaking or stooping to a lower level to meet the eyes of a child.

Another communication skill for strenghtening families is appreciation. Your husband fixes the leaky faucet and the children play together without quarreling all evening. We appreciate these things but often fail to put it into words. We're much more likely to mention the coats that never got hung up or the unfinished homework.

Enriching our families means letting each other know we are appreciated and focusing on the positive things of each family member. "I'm delighted when you do the dishes," or "I'm pleased that you did your chores," are examples of expressing appreciation.

Communication and appreciation are two ways we can strengthen our families. "Celebrate Your Family" available through the Extension Service, is a program of eighteen family activites designed to enrich your family.

Why not try a "Family Enrichment" in your household?!

Grab the Teachable Moment

NEWARK, Del. — When it comes to teaching children, parents sometimes have an advantage over professional educators The parents are apt to be on hand for more of the child's crucial "teachable moments" — thoses opportune times when the child is most ready, willing, and able to learn. Many prime teachable moments occur long before the child starts school.

Teachable moments can be found whenever parents and children are together, says Delaware Extension Family Living Agent Debbie Walker. Parents who are on the ball can find teachable moments in the most common situations, such as a visit to the grocery store or even the family dinner table. To a toddler, a supermarket is a treasure trove of colors, sizes, shapes, letters, and numbers to learn. And the dinner table is a great place to learn about good eating habits, tastes, textures, and abstract concepts like large and small, empty and full.

Mealtime is also a good time to teach sharing and helping skills Some children enjoy helping prepare the meal and seeing that everything is in order. Routines such as washing hands and setting and clearing the table can help to encourage a child's sense of being a contributing member of the family. Setting the table can also become a counting game.

What turns an everyday situation into a teachable moment where learning takes place? First of all, the parent must be ready to jump in with the mini-lesson at the moment the child seems curious and eager to learn. And second, the lesson must be appropriate to the child's age and level of development.

Frustration results when parents try to teach a lesson the child is not mature enough to master. Take toilet training, for example. To master that skill, the child must first learn to control the bladder, and then to associate the pressure feelings in the bladder with the need to go to the bathroom. While the tiniest of tykes should have the opportunity to see what a toilet is and does, and true teachable moment for toilet training does not occur until the child is old enough to have mastered the necessary muscle control.

Young children are curious explorers who look to their parents for guidance and information. It is up to the parents to guide them in their explorations, protecting them from harm and keeping up with their voracious appetites for knowledge As important as this task is, it is one that any parent can do. It does not require a fancy education, but only the parent's loving attention.

March is National Nutrition Month

BY KIMBERLY HERR

LITITZ — March is National Nutrition Month, so what better time could there be to spruce up your family's eating habits?

"Choose foods that provide your body with a wide variety of nutrients," advised Martha Harvey Webster, of the Penn State Nutrition Information and Resource Center

According to Ms. Webster, foods that are high in nutrients are referred to as "protective foods" or "nutrient dense foods." These foods can be found in the four basic food groups.

The first group is meat and meat substitutes. According to Ms. Webster, this group includes things such as meat, eggs, fish and nuts. The second group is dairy products, containing foods such as cottage cheese, milk and ice cream.

The third group consists of fruits and vegetables.

"Citrus fruits are particularly good because they are high in vitamin C," Ms. Webster explained.

And the fourth group is that which contains breads and cereals.

"Some dieters tend to ignore this group, but they are a rich source of a whole bunch of nutrients," Ms. Webster said.

In keeping with the effort to improve your nutrition knowledge, Ms. Webster volunteered these tips.

"Eat a variety of food and watch portion size to maintain desired body weight," she said. "Be a little creative with food."

She recommended trying foods that contain less sugar, less fat and less salt. "Just see how they taste," she advised.

In addition to trying new foods, there are also ways to prepare family favorites in a way that can provide a nutritional edge. For example, try stir-frying or steaming vegetables, which according to Penn State Extension Service, preserve those natural nutrients in the vegetables.

It is also important to remember that nutritional foods can be served when your hunger calls for a snack or when hungry young students want a snack after school.

Following are some ideas for snacks for both children and adults. They are provided by the University of Maryland Extension Service.

–Blend one small or medium carrot with 1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice for a carrot-pineapple drink. Add two or three ice cubes at high speed.

–Make a parfait of cottage cheese, yogurt or ice-milk combined with fruit and sprinkled with chopped nuts, wheat germ or crisp cereal.

–Toast raisin bread and spread with peanut butter or spread cream cheese on a date-nut roll.

--Freeze unsweetened applesauce in small paper cups.

–Sprinkle a tomato half with bread crumbs and grated cheddar cheese and broil.

Try some of the following recipes during March and celebrate your family's right to nutritious meals.

Peanut Butter Vegetable Sandwich

1/2 cup smooth peanut butter
1/4 cup shredded cabbage
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped raisins
8 slices of bread

Mix all ingredients except bread. Spread one-fourth of mixture on each of 4 bread slices. Top with remaining bread. Calories per sandwich are 365 with white bread, 350 with whole wheat.

Chili Macaroni

1/2 pound regular ground beef
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
16-oz. can tomatoes
2 cups dry kidney beans, cooked, unsalted and drained
1 cup elbow macaroni
1 1/2 cups water
2 to 3 teaspoons chili powder
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

Cook beef, onion and celery until beef is well browned. Drain. Break up large pieces of tomatoes. Add with remaining ingredients to

Clean Colors For '84

The Scandinavians ward off winter gloom by filling their homes with bright colors like red and yellow. This year's colors are designed to create a similar effect. American homes are going to look more cheerful than they have in a long time, according to the reports of home textile color forecasters I have received.

Pastels are clean and clear The dusty look is out. Dark colors are rich and sparkling. Materials have a saturated luster.

The pastels of '84 may be bright, but more sophisticated than the bright shades of a few years ago. New pastels are fruity, like the insides of a cantaloupe, lemon, lime, mango. Creamy yellow, salmony apricot and blue lavender are also on the market. These pastels are bright, but soft, too.

The shades are ideal for linens since fashionable dinnerware is dark. The new pastels also accent dark menswear hues like plummy navy or golden khaki. They create a new impression when used with a lost of white in primitive or contemporary prints.

The plush, pile, corduroy and velour items such as bath rugs, towels and decorative pillows are no longer in dusty neutrals. They appear in rich or leather colors. Sheets, too, are in deep colors accented by brights Kitchens, on the other hand, will be bright.

Furnishings come in the same colors as apparel. Purple, for example, is seen both in clothing and in the home. If you like to wear certain colors, you should enjoy living with them, too.

Logically enough, black is an important element in the large spectrum of colors for '84. It is used for contrast, to accent the brightness of the new pastels, or it may be seen on its own, in shimmery and sensuous fabrics like satins, velvets and suedes.

Bright brights are scattered throughout homes like jewels. Colors, like turquoise, that draw the eye, add a sparkle to rooms otherwise furnished with pastels and saturated darks. Bursts of colors like those in a sunrise or sunset also make an appearance. The colors of '84 create startling effects.

The color forecast is bright and happy, and you will not tire of the new color spectrum because it produces some exciting looks. And like the Scandinavians, we Americans will be able to chase away the winter gloom

Nutrition Program Available

YORK — Do you have the midwinter blahs about exercise? Do all your meals seem the same? Do you wonder about the effect of what you eat has on your health?

Well, Dr. Lynn Brown, Extension nutrition specialist from Penn State, has developed a nutrition calendar and four learn at home lessons for National Nutrition Month which is March. Each date on the calendar gives a nutrition or health hint for the day.

The learn at home lessons cover Dietary Fiber, Foods and Your Health, Weight Control and Smart Shopping. Each lesson contains a pre and post test and evaluation form that must be returned after the lesson is completed. The cost of the learn at home lessons is $2. To enroll in the nutrition learn at home program, send your name, address and check made payable to extension Service Special Fund to the York County Extension Office, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402 by March 12th.

meat mixture. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and boil gently, uncovered, until mixture is thickened and macaroni is tender, about 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings. Calories per serving are 390.

Orange Fluff

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 1/2 cups orange juice
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup instant nonfat dry milk

Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup of the orange juice for five minutes. Heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in sugar and remaining orange juice. Chill until mixture is the consistency of egg white. Whip with an electric mixer until frothy Add vanilla. Slowly sprinkle nonfat dry milk on mixture, continuing to whip at high speed until very airy and light in color, about three minutes. Volume should measure about five cups, if not, beat several minutes longer Pour into 1 1/2-quart mold or bowl. Chill until set. Makes four servings with 75 calories per serving.

Equipment Dealers Volunteer to Save Lives

BY KIMBERLY HERR

EPHRATA — Shaking hands reach for the phone to dial 911. There has been a farm accident.

An ambulance, rescue squad and fire company are immediately dispatched. Within one minute another call is made. The phone rings at the office of a local farm equipment dealer. And soon, he too is on his way to the accident.

This scene is part of the new Farm Equipment Rescue Program, which was initiated March 1 by the Lancaster County Fireman's Association, in cooperation with the Lancaster Farmer's Association.

"Vehicle accident rescues we see almost on a weekly basis," said Randall Gockley, Lancaster County fire service coordinator. "But with farm accidents you are only talking five or six in one year."

Consequently, according to Gockley, rescue personnel sometimes do not have the experience or the knowledge of the equipment which is necessary in helping the accident victim as quickly as possible. The person who does have that experience and knowledge is the farm equipment dealer. He or she may be the one to help the most during a farm accident.

Raymond Rutt, mechanic at Binkley and Hurst Bros., Inc., Lititz, stands next to a harvester, a piece of equipment that could be involved in a farm accident, if not handled properly. Binkley and Hurst Bros., Inc., is one of the dealerships participating in the new Farm Equipment Rescue Program.

Randall Gockley, Lancaster County fire services coordinator, was instrumental in getting the Farm Equipment Rescue Program off the ground. Gockley, shown here with some of his fire equipment collections, explained that Lancaster County was the only county he knew of that had such a program.

In a letter drafted to farm equipment dealers, Gockley explained how the dealer can be of assistance

"The current concept of rescue procedures is not to remove the victim from the wreckage, but to remove the wreckage from around the victim," he said. "By having a representative of a farm equipment firm responding, we are gaining that knowledge and expertise in equipment. The advice and guidance you may give will help speed rescue and possibly save lives."

According to Gockley, there were five or six farm accidents in Lancaster County last year. Most of them occurred during the spring, summer and early fall months, but this program will not be limited to the accident-prone seasons.

"This is a year-long, 24-hour a day program," Gockley explained.

For accidents that may occur when the dealer's office is closed, Gockley explained each dealer has provided him with home phone numbers of some of their employees who would be willing to go on after-hours calls.

Gockley emphasized that when the dealers arrive on the accident scene and report to the officer in

Sculptural cables & set-in sleeves

Cable-knit patterns, as we know them today, first originated in the coastal fishing towns of Ireland. where cable designs reminded the villagers of fishing ropes. Since each village developed its own distinctive cable patterns, you could usually tell where a fisherman lived by the sweater he wore.

The yarn used for fishermen's sweaters, like the "Blarneyspun" in the Irish wool V-neck shown, by tradition was a rugged textured, unscoured wool. Because of its ability to resist rain and spray, while remaining warm and dry, unscoured wool yarns have always been ideal for fishermen.

The beauty of the yarns, however, make Irish wool sweaters valuable to anyone with a sense of fashion. Even in high-quality acrylic, cabled sweaters are distinctive

The cable patterned V-neck shown here is available in a kit, complete with instructions and Bernat wool or acrylic yarns. To order a kit, simply write to the address that follows this column.

To knit the sweater, you'll need to understand cable kitting. Since you'll also have to attach sleeves, information about setting sleeves into this or any other sweater follows

Setting a sleeve into a sweater is an important part of the finish. Two different shapes must be fitted together neatly and smoothly, requiring care for best results.

The first step for many sweaters, including this one, is to join the left shoulder seam with a backstitch as described below. Then, knit the neck edge and join the right shoulder seam.

If sleeves need easing, run a thread along the edge and gather. Position sleeves in armholes, matching right side of sleeves to right side of sweater. Match underarm seems and pin. Match center of sleeve to shoulder seam and pin.

Pin sleeves all around, gathering in the extra fullness at the top. Sew sleeves in place with a backstitch seam.

To backstitch seams, thread a blunt-pointed yarn needle with sweater yarn. If your yarn is too heavy, separate the strands.

Fasten yarn in place by making two small stitches on top of one another. Bring needle out slightly in front of the fastening stitches. Bring needle back toward the fastening stitches, insert it beside the last stitch, and bring it out again a little further in front.

Continue the seam by inserting needle back beside the last stitch and out again a little farther in front. Work stitches in a straight line, close to the edges, but far enough away to keep any decrease marks from showing. Make sure all stitches touch and don't pull yarn too tightly.

THE IRISH WOOL SWEATER KIT, containing complete sweater instructions and "Blarneyspun" luxury imported 100 percent wool yarns, is available in natural (off-white), claret heather (red wine), gray flannel, chestnut brown heather, loden green heather, denim blue mist, or barley (tan/white mixture).

Kit W-294: small (8-10) $42; medium (12-14) $46; or large (16-18) $50, plus $2 postage and handling.

THE BERELLA SWEATER KIT, containing complete sweater instructions and "Berella 4" 4-plyu machine washable and dryable acrylic yarn, is available in natural (off-white), claret heather (red wine), oxford gray heather, chestnut brown heather, moss green, denim blue heather, flax (tan/white mixture), sandstone heather (tan), or navy.

Kit A-294: small (8-10) $12); medium (12-14) $12; or large (16-18) $15, plus $2 postage and handling.

Save Lives

charge, they will not be asked to give any "hands on" rescue.

"They will be there to answer any questions and concerns that may come up and to give advice," Gockley said.

One of the dealerships participating in the new program is Binkley and Hurst Bros., Inc., Lititz.

"I think it is a good program," said Amos Hurst, co-owner of the dealership. "It is a part of saving lives and that is the biggest thing "

Hurst explained that in the Rothsville Fire Company, of which he is a member, there are many farmers, but some areas do not have farmers in the fire company and that is where the program will be especially important.

There are currently 10 dealers involved in the program. They are Adamstown Equipment, Inc , Adamstown; Binkley and Hurst Bros., Inc., Lititz; L.H. Brubaker, Inc , Lancaster; A.L Herr and Brothers, Quarryville, N.G Hershey and Son, Inc., Manheim, R.S. Hollinger and Son, Inc , Mountville; C.B Hoober and Son, Inc , Intercourse; Landis Bros , Inc , Lancaster; Messicks, Rheems; and M.M Weaver and Sons, Inc., Leola.

Each of the above dealers, according to Gockley, is responsible for assisting five to 10 fire companies in their area.

"More dealers would cut the size of their response area down," Gockley explained. For more information on participating in the program, contact Gockley at (717) 733-1095.

Get Down to Basics for Gardening Success

You can enjoy Gardening, one of the most popular hobbies, whether you're a senior citizen, youngster or any age in between. Whatever the size of your garden — big, small or, perhaps, just a few pots on a patio — it's fun to grow some tasty vegetables and pretty flowers. To get you started on the right path to success, follow these good gardening practices:

Garden Plan. . . The best gardens usually start with a plan on paper. It's easy to draw a layout to scale on graph paper, showing rows or spaces for each variety of vegetable and flower you want to grow from spring to fall.

Correct Garden Location. . . Choose a sunny spot that gets sunshine at least 6 hours a day (for most varieties) away from tree and shrub roots and free from puddles after heavy rain. Leafy vegetables (loosehead lettuce, parsley, spinach and Swiss Chard) are worth trying in partial shade. Begonias, coleus and impatiens thrive in shady areas.

Correct Soil Preparation. . . Thoroughly spade or till the soil when it's dry enough to crumble easily and not stick together in big clods. Work in compost, peat moss or some other organic material to improve the general condition (tilth) of the soil. Rake or hoe to make the surface smooth and level.

Adequate Nutrition. . . At soil preparation time, apply ground limestone (except in alkaline soil areas) and a balanced garden fertilizer according to soil test recommendations or package directions.

Proper Planting. . . Sow seeds or set out plants according to instructions on seed packets. Put tall growers like sweet corn, pole beans, staked tomatoes and big sunflowers on the north or west side of a garden so they won't shade shorter varieties.

Adequate Growing Space. . . Thin or transplant seedlings to the spacing recommended on seed packets. Crowded plants are apt to be weak, spindly and produce or flower poorly.

Enough Moisture. . . Water evenly and deeply about once a week during very dry weather, more often just after seeds are sown. It's especially important to watch germinating (sprouting) seeds and young seedlings; don't ever let them dry out completely. Burpee's new garden watering sets are easy to use, save work and supply water where needed, without waste.

Weed Control. . . Hoe occasionally to remove weeds while they're small and easy to eliminate. Better yet, use a work-saving, moisture-saving mulch such as sheet plastic, or organic types, including wood chips, straw, grass clippings, composted (partially decomposed) leaves and others. Mulches smother weeds.

Insect and Disease Control. . . Select and plant disease-resistant varieties. Rotate vegetables in your garden from year to year. In other words, if possible, don't plant tomatoes this year in the same place where you had them last year. Remove sick-looking plants and throw them in the trash. Spray or dust sick-looking plants and throw them in the trash. Spray or dust with insecticides or fungicides when a problem is first noticed.

Timely Harvest. . . Pick and use fruits and vegetables at their peak of flavor and goodness. Watch cucumbers and zucchini squash especially. Don't let them get overgrown. Store peas and sweet corn in the refrigerator if you aren't going to cook and serve them promptly. This chilling helps preserve their sweetness and flavor. Can, freeze or otherwise store surplus produce for future meals.

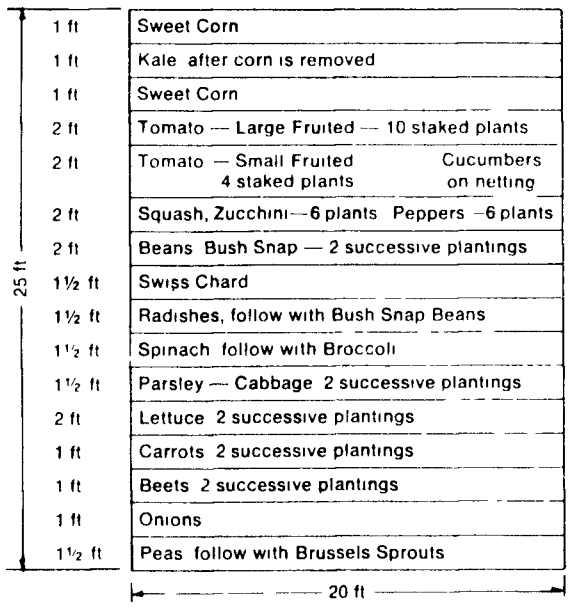
Compost Garden Refuse . . . Make a compost pile with leaves, vegetable tops and peelings, grass clippings, fruit skins and other organic material. Composting breaks down these materials into humus, which improves the condition of the soil, makes plants grow and produce better. Compost bins are neat, space-saving ways to compost garden and kitchen waste, if you don't have room for a large pile.

Succession Planting. . . Sow a summer crop—for instance, bush snap beans—in a place vacated by an early, fast-maturing vegetable—such as radishes. Sow broccoli, loosehead lettuce, carrots or beets to replace crops harvested in early summer. This will keep all your garden space busy and producing tasty vegetables from early spring to late fall.

Remove Faded Flowers. . . To keep flower gardens tidy and blooming all summer, pick and enjoy lots of blossoms in bouquets. Also, remove faded flowers from garden plantings. Picking fresh flowers and removing dead heads helps stimulate continuous blooms.

Proper Conditions for Container Gardening. . . Use a light, porous planting medium. One part sieved garden soil to two parts compost, peat moss or vermiculite works well. Water often enough to keep the plants from drying out completely, especially in hot, windy weather. On the other hand, don't waterlog the planting material. Feed the plants about once a week with a water-soluble fertilizer, according to package directions.

FAVORITE VEGETABLES FOR A PRODUCTIVE GARDEN
From Spring to Fall — 20 x 25 Feet



25 ft
1 ft Sweet Corn
1 ft Kale after corn is removed

Why use a big tractor on a job a small tractor can do just as well? And for less.

Our B Series Kubota tractors range from 12 to 19 hp, have 2- or 4-wheel drive and handle a variety of implements. All have hydraulic 3-point hitch, front and rear PTO, and a dependable diesel engine. Choose from a variety of transmissions. Standard shift models offer the right speeds to match your job. The hydrostatic models give you all this plus the ease of no-shift, one pedal control.

So if you want to get the job done right, get the right tractor for the job. We've got one in your size.

Learn How to be a Clown

HONESDALE — The art of bringing happiness and laughter to other people is a rare and cherished gift in our troubled world.

For many years, clowns have brought smiles to the faces of circus goers and parade watchers. Their silly antics, raggedy hair, and painted faces bring sunshine into the gloomiest days. In some cases, clowns save lives. More than once, a rodeo clown has lured an angry bull or a bucking bronco away from the fallen rodeo rider.

How does a person become a clown? Pennsylvania teens will have the opportunity to learn the art of clowning as a part of the first Annual 4-H Clown Camp.

The dates for the teen camp are the afternoon of March 10 at St. John's Lutheran Church, S. Wilkes-Barre, and the evening of March 14 at the Pomeroy's Community Room, Wyoming Valley Mall, Rt. 315, Wilkes-Barre. The final session in which all the participating clowns will perform for friends and family will occur the evening of March 23 at St. John's Lutheran Church, S. Wilkes-Barre.

Participants will learn the basis of clowning, including: learning to design and apply their makeup to produce a distinctive and original clown face; selection of costumes and props and development of pantomimes and routines. Clowning inevitably brings forth unexpected creativity and a great deal of fun while learning!

Clowning has side benefits: it seems to bring out the dormant leadership qualities in many individuals. While they are working with the clowning group, their inhibitions seem to float away. They feel a sense of accomplishment and achievement. Many people who don't feel comfortable in something else really open up and take charge of situations, when they're in costume.

Many participants also overcome their shyness through clowning. They develop their self confidence and communicate more openly after their clowning experience.

Other benefits produced are: the participants gain in creativity, using a lot of imagination in designing their "act", costumes, props, and routines; the community discovers new human resources, fun, and education available locally.

To participate in the 4-H Clown Camp teens need no previous clown experience and do not need to be current 4-H members. A desire to learn about clowning while having fun is the main requirement.

To receive a free flyer describing the 4-H CLOWN CAMP please contact the Wayne County 4-H Club Office at 253-5970, ext. 114 or write The Pennsylvania State University Cooperative Extension Service of Wayne County at Courthouse, Honesdale, Pa. 18431

fertilizer can get your corn crop off to a super start:

It has a high concentration of water-soluble Phosphorus that gets to young seedlings quickly Helps plants establish a good root system – the starting point for top yields Its quick-acting and long-lasting Nitrogen team up to feed the young plants for full yield potential, continually from sprouting to harvest.

This is the Starter Special that corn growers know from good experience. It's highly effective as a banded starter. And it's SAFE . . . no chance of ammonia damage to tender, young seedlings when used as a "pop up" and applied directly with the seed at 50 lbs /acre.

How can we fit UNIPEL 13-34-10 into your corn fertility program?

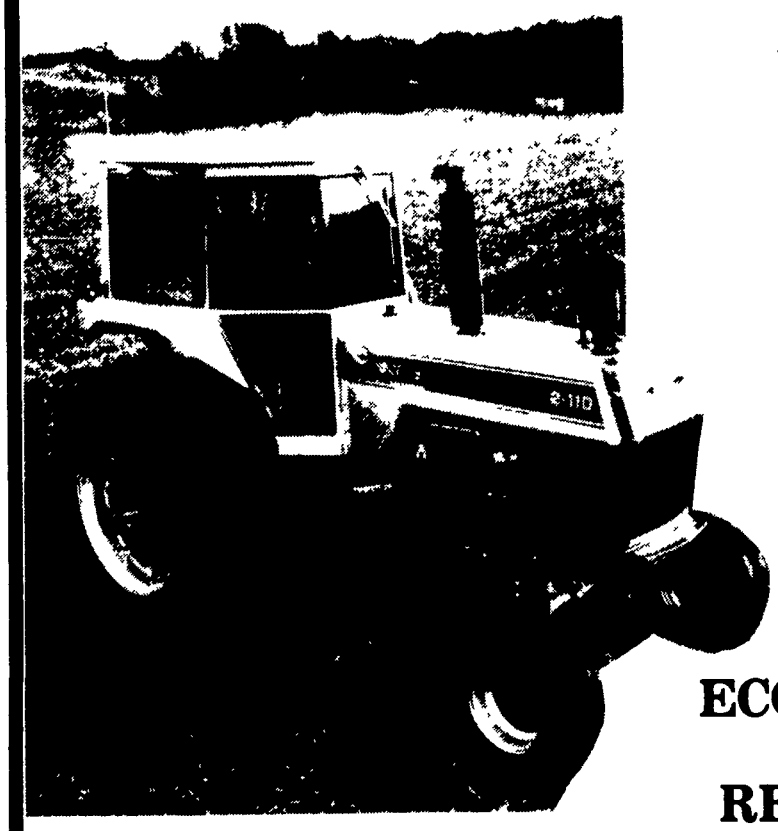
WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT

THE FINEST TRACTORS
For All Your Needs



WHITE FARM SETS A NEW FUEL ECONOMY RECORD

Nobody builds a more fuel efficient 100-120 hp. tractor than the 2-110 Field Boss® . Not Deere. Not Deutz. Not anybody.

Because in nationally recognized official tests, the 2-110 beat every current production tractor in its class with a record 16.77 hp-hrs/gallon at rated speed.

So now-along with nine field speeds between 2 and 7 mph, one of the industry's most comfortable cabs, and our proven three-speed powershift — you also get the most fuel efficient diesel tractor in the 100-120 hp. class.

The 2-110 Field Boss. A perfect match of power, performance and economy.

PULL THROUGH THE TOUGH SPOTS WITH A POWER FRONT AXLE

When wet spots or other tough areas slow you down, a quick shift into four wheel drive can make all the difference. And all it takes is a Power Front Axle option on your 2-70, 2-110, 2-135, 2-155 or 2-180 Field Boss® tractor.

4WD is not created equal. If you think all Power Front Axles are the same, look again. Most tractors use the engine as part of the structural frame, Adding four wheel drive puts a lot of stress on the engine block. We think too much stress.

It's one reason why every Field Boss has a separate main frame casting. The engine is cradled inside it. Besides adding hundreds of pounds of working weight to the tractor, this separate main frame handles the extra stress of the four-wheel-drive.

See what over 21 years of success in four-wheel drive tractors can mean. Drop into the dealership for a look at a Field Boss with Power Front Axle. Today.

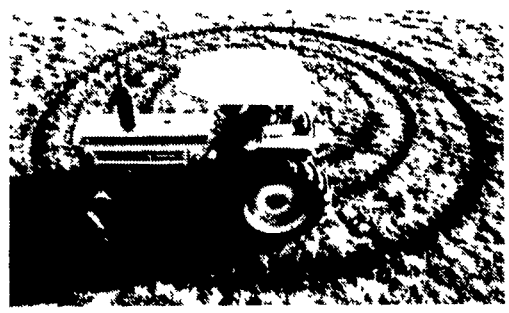
TWO LOADER TRACTORS DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR STOCKMEN!

Livestock means loader tractors. And the new 2-55 and 2-65 Field Boss® utility tractors were designed with livestock operations in mind. They come with a lot of standard features (extra-cost options on most other makes) that can save you time and effort.



The new 2-55 and 2-65 Field Boss utility tractors — with or without a loader — are packed with features to save time and effort around livestock operations.

Shift-on-the-go. Our new synchromesh transmission lets you shift through four ranges without stopping. To let you choose from 16 forward speeds.

Tighter turning. You'll like the quickness and agility of the 2-55 and 2-65, too. Even the four wheel drive models turn almost as tight as most other two wheel drives. A big plus in feedlots and other tight spots.

These new tractors have so many work-saving features we can't list them all here. So come on in and count them up for yourself. It'll be worth the tip.

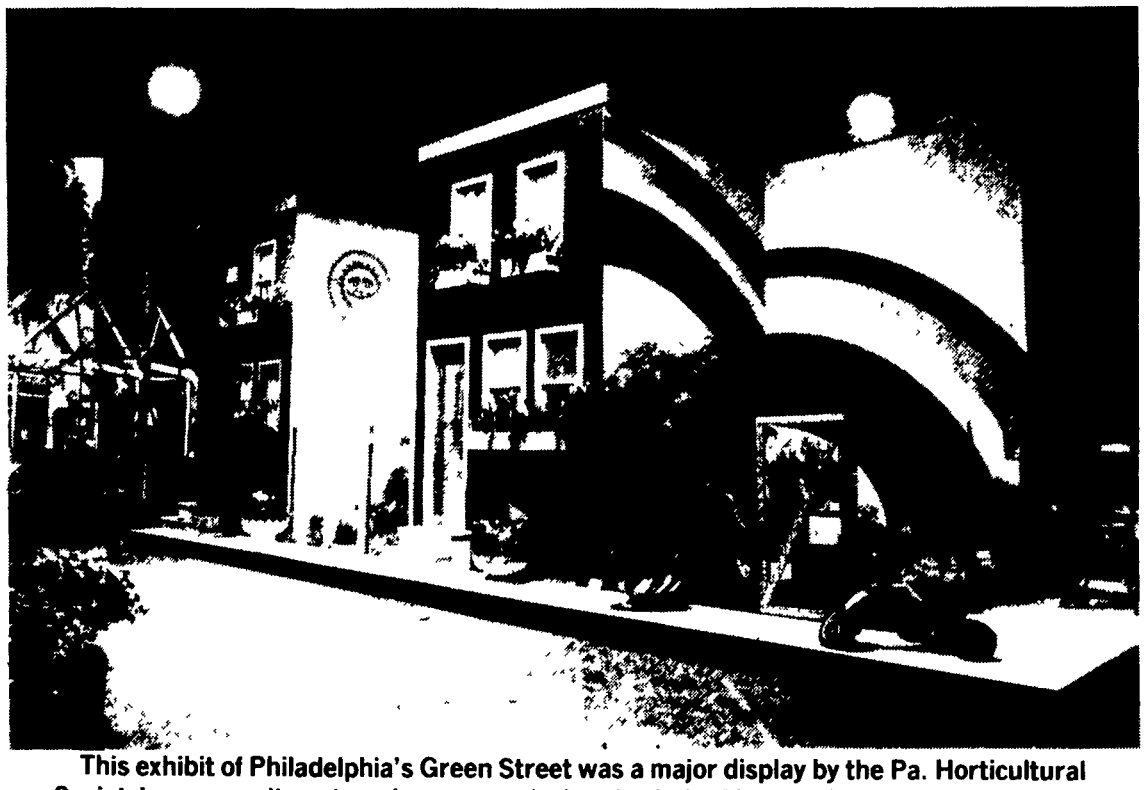
Experience the World of Flowers

PHILADELPHIA — On March 11-18, it will be possible to leave the Philadelphia winter behind and pass through exquisite tile gates to enter a world of oriental enchantment as the 1984 Philadelphia Flower Show takes you on "A Trip to the Orient" right under the five-acre roof of the Philadelphia Civic Center.

Here, East will meet West as flora from both hemispheres combine to form one exhuberant display of life and color. Descending by escalator onto this heavenly flower bed, visitors will see before they a courtyard celebrating ikebana, the ancient Japanese art of flower arrangement. A central platform hovering over a pool will be the setting for the dramatic centerstage arrangements while more examples of this spiritual art will frame the courtyard within walls set with large round windows. All the creations here will be made by ikebana masters of the highest order, some of whom are journeying all the way from Japan to demonstrate and display their art.

Moving forward into the next area, visitors will be treated to an outstanding display of priceless trees including rare specimens given to the National Arboretum by the emperor of Japan during the U.S. bicentennial and never before exhibited outside their Washington, D.C. home. Also on display will be an incredible bonsai "forest" and other specimens by a renowned California master of bonsai along with exhibits by area horticulturists.

These two islands of breathtaking oriental artistry will be surrounded by 53 major exhibits by the leading florists and landscape nurseries in the Delaware Valley, university horticultural departments and world-famous gardeners and gardens including Winterthur Museum and Gardens and Morris Arboretum of the University of Pennsylvania. Winterthur's exhibit, "Asia, Mother of Gardens," recalls how the opening of trade with the Orient influenced the decorative arts and the very composition of gardens in the West, and will feature a garden seat modeled after an actual piece of chinoiserie in the garden of a Wilmington trader, surrounded by banks of oriental trees, shrubs and plants. Morris Arboretum, long a major force in popularizing Eastern plants in this area, will display a buddhist temple admidst a collection of woodland plants native in China, Japan and Korea to illustrate their adaptability and ornamental value in American gardens.



This exhibit of Philadelphia's Green Street was a major display by the Pa. Horticultural Society's community outreach program during the 1983 Philadelphia Flower Show. This year's show promises exhibits that are equally creative and interesting.

Many of the other exhibits will likewise echo the theme of the Show with settings that include an oriental flower market: a Japanese rain forest brimming with orchids; a fanciful look at the entrance to a Japanese-American restaurant decorated with Eastern plants; a pond garden with moon-viewing platform; a study of the diversity and beauty of Chinese, Japanese and Korean plants in a Western garden; and a look at a party following a trip to the Orient when new treasures from the East are combined with mementoes at home in the West.

All this exotica is just one part of the dazzling display of flora awakened early from winter sleep by flower "forcing" techniques. The Show will be ablaze with flowers of fuchsia, purple and red blooming everywhere. Some of the flowers will be new specimens with coloring never before seen in the species.

The Philadelphia Flower Show, the largest indoor flower show in the world, is produced annually by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, a non-profit organization dedicated to the promotion of horticulture in the mid-Atlantic states. The Show is an American tradition dating back to 1829 and today welcomes over one quarter of a million visitors from all over the country and the world.

In addition to being a visual delight, the Show is also a competitor's paradise. Competitive classes in table settings, decorated rooms, flower arrangements, miniatures and horticulture attract over 1500 individual and organizational entires which are judged by 160 national experts.

The Show is also highly educational and will this year feature a series of ikebana and bonsai lectures and demonstrations by the visiting masters. These seminars have a separate admission charge, but there will be several free gardening and flower-arranging demonstrations on the Show floor and many exhibitors and staff members of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be available to answer gardening questions.

J. Liddon Pennock, Jr. of Meadowbrook, is chairman of the 1984 Flower Show. Jane Pepper, executive director of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, is Show manager and Ed Lindemann is the Show designer.

Show hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., and Sundays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Adult tickets are $6 and children under 12 pay $3. Advance group sale tickets are $5.25 from the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, 325 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106. Tickets are also available at the door, Ticketron and other leading ticket agencies. The public is encouraged to take public transportation to the Flower Show and to visit on weekdays between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. when crowds are smaller.

Ewe may find this un-baa-lievable

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Ewe may find this tale almost un-baa-lievable.

Mabel, a two-year-old purebred Hampshire ewe, gave birth last week to quadruplet lambs.

All four of the tiny, black-curl-covered infants are lively and growing well.

What's even more incredible, Mabel's capacious udder is equipped not with the usual two, but four, productive teats, evidence that Mother Nature plans well. With the exception of a few booster bottles given the tiniest infants soon after birth, Mama and babies are handling the feeding situation quite well all by themselves.

Owner Judy Waltersdorff woke the Bob Waltersdorff household on Hollywood Drive early on the morning of Feb. 15 with the news that Mabel had given birth to triplets. Shortly thereafter, she revised that announcement with the discovery of the fourth arrival.

While twin lambs are commonplace, and even triplets a fairly frequent occurrence in modern, well-fed flocks, quadruplet births are relatively, rare among most breeds of sheep.

Ewes with four teats are also fairly uncommon, and for all four to be milk-producing is downright unlikely. But last year Mabel delivered twins, then raised them on three milk-producing teats, while the fourth was flind , or unproductive.

Thus the odds on a ewe raising her own quads have been uncalculated at this point, Mabel seems to have set out to beat the records.

The productive ewe was purchased from the purebred Hampshire flock of Stewart and Steve Ebersole, Red Lion R3. One of the Ebersole's former show champions sired the rare quads.

Former egg producers, the Waltersdorff family acquired their first lambs a dozen years ago when daughter Chris joined the county's 4-H lamb club. Her younger sisters Judy and Linda followed into the 4-H lamb program. While the chicken houses are now all empty, and the family "graduated" from the 4-H, Judy has maintained a small flock for open-class competition.

"I had five - now all of a sudden I have ten," she grins as she points out still another newcomer in an adjoining pen, a 16-pound lamb a few days younger than the quadruplets.

Judy plans to keep the lone female of the four, named Shiney, to raise for open-class showing, while the trio of males, Bo, Booker and Bingo, will most likely be sold to 4-H club members for market lamb projects.

Already the suspense about next year's lambing season is starting.

What in the world will Mabel do for an encore?

Mother Mabel, purebred Hamp ewe, and her four new offspring pose with their owner Judy Waltersdorff for family portrait.

LANCASTER — The New Jersey Morgan Horse Club in conjunction with the United Professional Horsemen's Association, Chapter 15, will sponsor a "Day With The Experts" next Saturday at the Quality Inn, Centerville Road, Lancaster.

The day-long seminar will feature Dr. Stanley Brown, DVM, of New Bolton Center, who will discuss natural and artificial breeding. Dressage interests will be addressed by Mrs. Lazelle Knocke, noted dressage authority, who will speak on schooling the dressage horse and rider. Dr. Lengel, DVM, representing the American Horse Shows Association will explain the importance of the Drug and Medication Program. Claude Bailey, Equine Dentist, who will speak on proper equine dental care and Dr. Evans, DVM, well-known expert on horse lameness, will round out the days program speaking on acute laminitis.

The evening hours will be devoted to a dinner-dance and an auction of horse related articles.

Apple Blossom Festival Scheduled

GETTYSBURG — Adams County will be the site of the 34th annual Apple Blossom Festival which will be held Sat., May 5 and Sun., May 6.

Highlights of this year's festival include: Live entertainment, chicken dinners, free orchard tours (10 a.m.-4 p.m.) crafts show and sale, petting baby barnyard, livestock and agricultural exhibits, and the crowning of the Apple Blossom Queen. Features this year include an apple butter boil and a wider selection of taste-tempting food treats.

The Apple Blossom Festival is held each year at the South Mountain Fairgrounds located 10 miles northwest of historic Gettysburg on Rt. 234 near Arendtsville. The Fairgrounds are situated in the middle of scenic Adams County's 20,000 acres of fruit orchards. The festival gates will open each day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and admission is $1 for adults, children under age 16 are free and there is plenty of free parking.

Visitors from a six state area are attracted to this special annual event to enjoy the festival and to view the beautiful blossoms of the apple, peach and cherry trees which are usually in full bloom during festival week.

Adams County Fruitgrowers, who produce over five million bushels of apples each year, would like to invite you to view, enjoy, and learn about their apple industry.

Attractions, both days, promise to delight both young and old. Other attractions include: a display of antique cars, helicopter rides, large group of antique steam engines, antique corn-sheller demonstration, homemade crafts, plus much, much, more.

The highlight of Sunday's activities will be the crowning of the 1984 Apple Blossom Queen. Preceding the crowning will be an apple pie baking contest, apple pie eating contests and apple bobbing contests. A wide variety of food products will be available for purchase such as fresh apples, apple cider, apple butter, candied apples, apple dumplings, apple strudel, apple pies, chicken in the basket (Saturday only), chicken barbeque dinners (Sunday only), homemade scrapple and country sausage.

The Apple Blossom Festival is sponsored by the Adams County Fruitgrowers Association, and coordinated by the Gettysburg, Adams County Area Chamber of Commerce. For further information contact: the Gettysburg Travel Council, Dept. M-19, 35 Carlisle Street, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania 17325.

Lower Dauphin FFA holds events

HUMMELSTOWN — "Keeping America on the Grow" was the theme for this year's National FFA Week which was celebrated from February 18 - 24 by Future Farmers of America throughout the nation.

At the Lower Dauphin FFA Chapter, activities were varied beginning with a demonstration to the school board. At the board meeting, members from the FFA recited essays on "What the FFA has done for Me". The chapter sponsored the essay contest during the previous week for its members and was later judged by Mrs. Pennington, Senior High English Teacher and Mr. Staver, Dean of Students.

The winner on each grade level won an FFA Vest and the over-all winner of the contest won a feeder pig. Winners were Dave Erdman, ninth grade and Greenhand; Joe Halbleib, tenth grade and Chapter Farmer; Jay Fleck, eleventh grade and CDP Area Degree winner; and Cindy Baker, senior and Keystone Degree Winner. The over-all winner was Larry Peyton, Greenhand.

To promote the FFA throughout the school, the Chapter put up several window displays, had the creed recited over the Public Address system during the morning announcements, and sponsored a coffee and donut hour for the faculty members during the morning.

The Chapter also sponsored a market hog-weight-guessing contest for all students and faculty. The correct winner in the student division was Dave Cheris, an FFA member and the winner in the Faculty division was Mr. Rhodes, a sophomore guidance counselor.

The Chapter has already started to make plans for next year's FFA Week during which the chapter will be 25 years old.

Program signup

DES MOINES, Ia. — Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block has extended the sign-up period for 1984 cotton, feed grain, rice and wheat programs by three weeks, through March 16.

Block also said he has changed summer fallow rules so that the requirements would be the same as they were in 1983 and previous programs. Prior to this action, acreage designated for the 1984 programs could not have been land intended for summer fallow in the current year. Other provisions of the 1984 programs will remain unchanged, he said.

Block said he took these actions to clear away some of the obstacles which made it difficult for farmers to make sound decisions about the programs. Also, many farmers have not been able to finalize crop operating plans including financing and lease arrangements. Since producers must sign a binding contract in the 1984 acreage reduction programs, with liquidated damages for failure to comply, they are reluctant to sign up until their operating plans are more complete, he said.

"Both USDA and private sector analysts say that when most farmers compare these programs with their own operating plans, they will find participation is to their advantage," Block said. "This extension will give producers the time needed to weigh the benefits of participation agains the risks of no price protection which they would otherwise face."

Block encouraged farmers to avoid a last-minute rush to USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service county offices so that they can better serve each farmer

Read Seed Packages for Success

MEDIA — Select by fact not fantasy. Pictures on the front of seed packages are almost always appealing, but, read the package before you get carried away. Packages for flowers, vegetables, grasses, and agricultural crops all have valuable information you need to know before you plant, says C. R. Bryan, Jr., Delaware Co. Extension agent.

The 1939 Federal Seed Act requires agricultural seeds sold across state lines to have specific information about variety, germination and purity. While originally intended to protect buyers of agricultural seeds, some flower and vegetable packages for home gardening carry much the same information.

If you are buying and ordering seeds, here are some things to look for to make the best selection for your garden:

—Date—be sure your seed is fresh. If you are buying for this year's garden, don't plant with last year's seed unless it's free or so far reduced in price, you don't really care if a good many don't germinate. Some seeds are viable much longer than others, but how old seeds have been stored—a fact you won't know unless you packed them away yourself—has a major influence on seed germination. The date is usually listed on the back flap: Packed for 1984. Look for it.

—Purity—agricultural crops and grass seeds must indicate the percentage of each kind of seed in excess of 5%Weed seeds, inert matter (chaff, dirt, stones) must be also listed. Most flower and vegetable seeds packaged for home gardens are 100%the variety listed and therefore, do not have purity information. But, if you are buying a "garden mix" read the contents thoroughly.

—Noxious-weed seeds—states and the federal government maintain lists of noxious weeds and no package of agricultural crops can contain more of these than a certain percent. If any are present, the percentage must be stated.

—Weight—unless you are buying seeds loose by weight, you can be misled by the size and type of packaging. Read the weight to figure your costs and yield.

—Origin—certain agricultural crop seeds such as alfalfa, clover, and non-hybrid corn grown in one area do not grow well in another so these seed packages list origin.

—Germination—if listed on the package, this percentage tells you how many seeds will produce plants under ideal conditions. The age of the seeds, how and when you plant them, also affects germination so this figure should be read with some caution. Home gardeners should probably count on a germination rate of about 85 to 75 percent when planting most seeds directly into the ground. Planting inside, in flats, under ideal conditions will probably produce higher germination figures.

—Variety—Most flower and vegetable seeds packaged for home garden usually list the variety, whether the seed is an annual, bi-annual, or perennial. If the seed is a hybrid, that information is also on the package.

—Culture—nearly all seed packages have important information about how and when to plant, including the number of days to seed germination. Vegetable seed packages list number of days to maturity under ideal conditions. Most packages note spacing, height and spread at maturity, thinning directions, special care instructions, and growth habit.

—Packaging—some seeds are sold in more than one way. Traditionalists will, no doubt, prefer standard packages but if you are impatient or less than confident of your planting abilities, you may want to try pre-packaged seed planting pots, seed strips, and other units that favor seed germination.

Computer booklet available

NEWARK, Del. — Farmers who have decided to buy a computer to help manage their farming operations face a bewildering array of choices and claims for equipment and programs. To make an intelligent selection, they must be familiar with machine capabilities and the language used to describe computer functions.

University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer Jim Scarborough has written a fact sheet which explains such basic terms as BYTE, RAM, ROM, FLOPPY DISK, HARDWARE, SOFTWARE, MODEM and BASIC. The two-page publication also provides advice on some of the features to look for when buying a computer for farm use.

Copies of "Choosing a Computer for Your Farm Business" are available free from county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (736-1448) and Georgetown (856-5250).

Is Your Bull Milking Your Profits?

Daughter Superiority Of Active AI Sires

January 1984 USDA Information

	No. Sires	$$ Value	PDM
Active-AI	705	+$62	+507M
Non-AI	8,664	−$63	−535M
AI Advantage		+$125	+1,042M

The daughters of active AI sires outproduced the Non-AI sired daughters by $125 per cow per lactation. If your breeding costs per cow average $18 this would still leave $107 more milk income per cow.

In a 50-cow herd this would be $5,350 more milk income per year!

In a 100-cow herd this would be $10,700 more milk income per year!

BEACON

KALF AD-LIB

Designed to duplicate Mother Nature.

Mother Nature knows that calves need a flexible feeding time. Now Beacon has developed an acidified milk replacer system that duplicates her way of nursing.

Designed for self-feeding calves, it's an all-milk formulation with a mix of 20% protein and 14% fat. You'll appreciate the ease with which it mixes in cold water and the fact that it stays fresh for 3 to 5 days. It reduces the risk of nutritional scours, and it lowers housing costs because it allows grouping up to 5 calves.

Your calves will respond to Kalf Ad-Lib with improved weight gains, feed conversion and calf "livability."

See for yourself! Start 'em right. Ask your Beacon dealer or adivsor for additional information.

Amazing research results prove the merits of cold Kalf Ad-Lib feeding.

February 28:

Do you know where your corn is? Apparently some participants in the P.I.K. program don't. Rumors are that up to 200 thousand bushels of corn have not been redeemed from the P.I.K. program. If you have corn in storage and have not taken assignment, March 15 is the deadline to notify ASCS that you want your corn. If you really don't want the grains from the P.I.K. program, I would be happy to dispose of it for you.

It is apparent now that South Africa will be purchasing a substanial amount of corn, possibly 200 - 400 million tons and Zimbabwe, their northeastern neighbor, 500 thousand tons. As most of you are aware, some Americans would have us control South Africa's politics by cutting trade relations with them. If you prefer that South Africa buy Argentine corn rather than American corn, encourage our liberal friends to once again bite the hand that feeds us.

We are still consuming grain at a rate which will give us a very tight carryout this summer. Corn, old crop, wheat and soybeans should move up substantially in value, as we approach July. In addition, even a minor weather scare could have a significant impact on new crop corn and soybeans.

The cattle and hog markets had been working lower over the past few weeks due to an excess supply of red meat products. This too may change rapidly. Cattle feeders have been marketing cattle at a consistent pace and we appear to be headed for a temporary shortage of fat cattle. The April cattle futures have had difficulty maintaining a close above $70.00. If this occurs, it is possible although unlikely that cattle will go to $74.00.

The hog market has been very soft due to the excess of pork products on the market and it is not unlikely that hogs will go down as low as $42.00 before rebounding. In conjunction with this, remember that we experienced a massive liquidation of sows late last summer and even today the sow kill is running 30% over last year. Into spring and summer we should experience a decline in hog marketings, pushing prices higher.

As the snow melts, so will the problems of 1983. There is a tremendous opportunity for grain prices to improve and for cattle and hog producers to make reasonable profits. The first crocuses are blooming and we will soon be ruining pen knife blades, impatiently looking for corn sprouts. Each season has its own emotions and I look forward to the spring of 1984 with enthusiasm and optimism for farmers.

Farm marketers to meet

LEWISBURG — Anyone interested in selling farm products directly to consumers is invited to the fourth Annual Susquehanna Valley Retail Farm Marketers Meeting and Trade Show on Monday, March 12, at the Country Cupboard Restaurant in Lewisburg.

After check-in between 9:30 and 10 a.m., Alvi Voigt, Penn State marketing specialist, will begin the program with a discussion about selling plants and flowers and use of a greenhouse to help your business.

Jeanine Bender Davis, Director of Ag Employee Programs, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, will present information on workman's compensation, unemployment compensation and wage and hour laws. Robert Labenberg, Schuylkill County farmer, will talk about his experience in organizing, operation and selling produce in public farmers markets.

Luncheon reservations are necessary by March 5. Cost is $5 per person. Make checks payable to Snyder County Extension Special Account and mail to P.O. Box 126, Middleburg, Pa. 17842.

MADISON

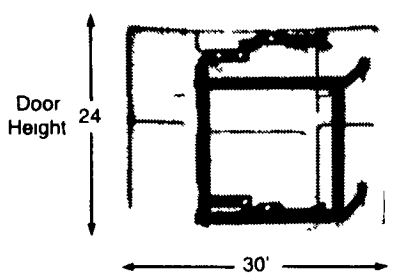
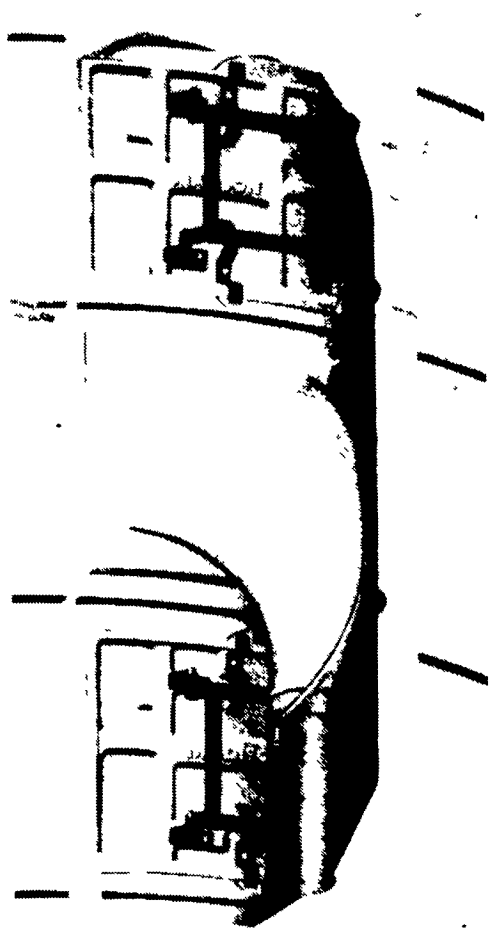
ONLY FROM MADISON SILOS...

CURVED FIBERGLASS DOORS

New larger, curved, one-piece door assembly—Madison's new one- piece door assembly provides greater strength so your new silo doors will last longer and cause fewer problems Because the door is curved, your unloader will operate more freely and efficiently. Chipper wheels aren't obstructed as they are with the old fashioned flat doors.

This exclusive new Madison door is larger so access is easier, and changing the discharge chute can be accomplished more efficiently. You'll love it!





MADISON ZIPCHUTE

The new, exclusive, permanent Zipchute™—Unique, simple, the best answer yet for any silo. Here's how it works:

1. Unzip the flexible tube to below the next door opening.
2. Move the hood to the new door opening.
3. Zip the Zipchute up around the base of the hood.

That's all there is to it! Nothing could be simpler—or more trouble free.

Because of the zipper concept, this new Zipchute System is infinitely adjustable. Works equally well, no matter where the unloader is located at the time. Tough construction. A minimum of parts. A minimum of effort needed. New Zipchute—the best answer for the busy dairyman

Ends Forever The Dirty Chute!

LANCASTER, PA 17601

CONCRETE STAVE FARM SILOS

5 YEAR SILO DEPRECIATION

IMPORTANT !!!

The Economic Tax Recovery Act of 1981 makes it more advantageous than ever to buy a new concrete tower silo this year! Now you can completely depreciate the structure in only 5 years! Not over 12 or 25 years as in the past

Faster depreciation means Uncle Sam takes less of your hard earned profit And a lower tax bite means more money in your pocket

And a new concrete silo qualifies for a 10% investment tax credit, too

First with its Water-Reel Customers.

Ag-Rain, the leading traveling sprinkler manufacturer in the U.S. for over 15 years, now is first again with the most complete line of Water-Reel hard hose travelers ever offered.

Over the years Ag-Rain has earned a reputation for high value and dependability. With this continued dedication to product quality and service, Ag-Rain continues to offer the latest in engineering design, product improvements, simplicity and ease of operation

With 19 models to choose from, you can irrigate from under 10 to nearly 150 acres. Select the unit that's best for your acreage and crops.

Some of the many advantages:
- Low, one-man labor requirements.
- Ideal for odd shaped fields — easily moved.
- Swivel reel turntable on most units.
- Wide range of constant travel speeds

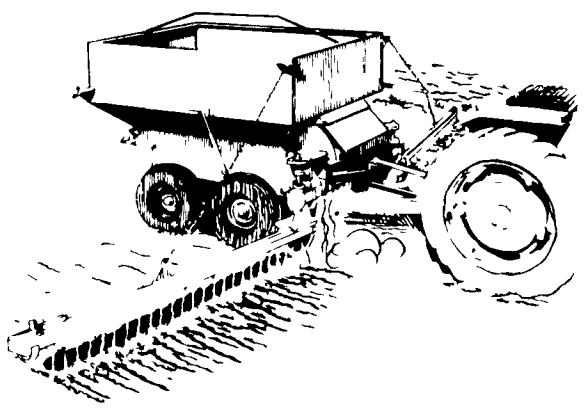
Don't be fooled by lower prices on "will-fit" parts. The management of other brand dealerships recognize the value put into genuine Sperry New Holland parts and service. This is what made Sperry New Holland the leader and No. 1 in hay and forage equipment. When a problem arises or you need parts or service, call your authorized Sperry New Holland dealer.

STOLTZFUS SPREADERS

WET LIME SPREADER

SAVE: Farmers in some areas can get lime as much as $16 per ton cheaper if they spread it themselves. LESS HEADACHES: Spread it when you want it spread.
— 24" wide bottom } to keep stockpile lime from bridging
— 53° sloped sides }
— Rugged construction
— 5 & 8 Ton tractor drawn models
— Also spreads fertilizer, poultry waste, etc.
— Truck mounted or tractor drawn



SOWER SPREADER

Why Waste Fertilizer With Today's Prices?

No need to fertilize the fence rows or spread it unevenly.
With a Stoltzfus Sower Spreader you put it where you want it.

— Excellent for dry, free-flowing materials such as: dry lime, rock phosphate, fertilizer
— Extremely accurate
— Tractor drawn or truck mounted

295 AMP-AC/250 AMP-DC

1. Smooth - AC Welding
2. Force - AC Welding
3. Straight Polarity - DC Welding
4. Cutting Tap - DC Welding
5. Reverse Polarity - DC Welding

Model 110-078-000
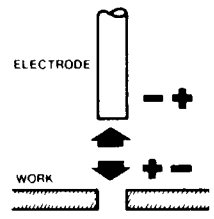
INCLUDES: Instruction book, wall receptacle, wide vision helmet, electrode cable with holder, ground cable w clamp

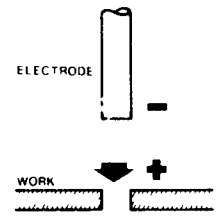
What's the difference between AC and DC Welding?



AC CURRENT
AC continuously changes polarity since direction of flow is reversed 120 times per second for common 60 cycle electricity

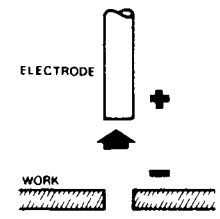
AC Current Ideal for
- Downhand Heavy Plate
- Fast Fill
- Aluminum T I G Welding with Hi Freq
- Carbon Arc Torch

This welder has two types of AC Current
1. Smooth Arc - for general purpose work
2. Force Arc - for carbon arc, T I G attachments and new fabrication



DC STRAIGHT POLARITY
With DC straight polarity (DCSP) the electrode is negative and the current flows in the opposite direction electrode to work

DC Straight Polarity Ideal for
- Hard Facing
- Single Carbon Brazing
- Build up Heavy Deposits
- Stainless Steel T I G Welding
- Cutting Tap Cuts like 400 Amps



DC REVERSE POLARITY
With DC reverse polarity (DCRP) the electrode is positive and the current flows from the work to the electrode

DC Reverse Polarity Ideal for
- Overhead Welding
- Vertical Welding
- Cast Iron Welding
- Heavy Aluminum
- Rivet Welding
- Sheet Metal
- Low Hydrogen Welding
- Arc Bronze Rod

SLURRY BUGGY VACUUM TANK LIQUID MANURE SPREADER

1500 gal tank will load in approx 1½ minutes

2900 gal tank will load in approx 2½ minutes

1500 & 2900 gal tank spreaders designed to load and unload fast to save you time

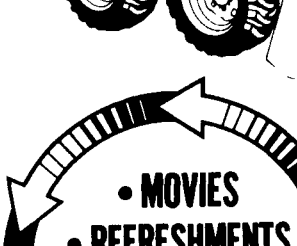
Standard.
* Large 192 CFM model M 10 MORO pump
* 6" hose inlet for fast loading
* Hydraulic rear valve and indicator
* Moisture trap and secondary trap for pump protection
* Load level indicator and sight glass
* Heavy duty walking beam suspension on 2900 gal model

Option:
* Giant vacuum pump, 350 CFM for loading heavier liquid manure (Wally model 750)
* 6" hand side valve for easy loading
* 2 and 4 tooth injectors for injecting your manure

Buy your own spreader and you can
1 - Haul your manure when and where you want to
2 - Help keep your farm disease free by hauling your own manure
3 - Use spreader in summer time for hauling water to water your crops or garden
4 - Use spreader for hauling liquid fertilizer or feed
5 - Put on injectors and inject your manure, save on fertilizer $ and keep your neighbors smiling (less smell)

Look at our Prices
1500 gal spreader with used 1000-20 truck tire - $5,375
With new 26 ply air craft tire - $5,695
2900 gal spreader with new flotation tires - $7,300
Prices include 14 foot of suction line

Farmers replace your old pump with one of ours



- Rotor Speed 1000 RPM's
- Air Capacity 192 cfm
- PTO Speed 540 RPM's
- Built in two way value to change pump from vacuum to pressure
- Built-in oiler to lubricate pump

VACUUM PUMPS, HOSES, TRAPS, VALVES, ACCESSORIES

Now You Can Haul Liquid Manure All Day Without Getting Off The Tractor Seat - Using The SLURRY BUGGY EASY LOADER!!

1.) Back up to pit or lagoon. Lower easy loader (boom) from tractor (by hydraulic)

2.) Engage PTO. Switch pump to vacuum (350 CFM pump).

3.) Float level indicator shows when tank is full (2900 gal.)

4.) Stop PTO. Raise boom and head for the field.

5.) In field. Switch pump to pressure. Start PTO. Open Valve and unload.

HERE IS THE SPREADER THAT LOADS & UNLOADS AND HAS NO CHAINS, BEARINGS OR AUGERS THAT TOUCH MANURE.

We have 6" and 8" Tapered Brass Valves For Your Liquid Manure Handling Needs

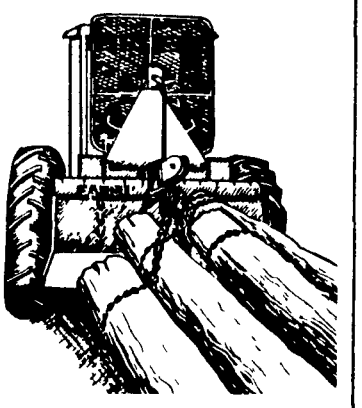
DRAG IN THE PROFITS!



Make your tractor a productive forest machine with a Farmi Logging Winch!

Your tractor and the Farmi winch is a low cost solution for winching in and skidding out your firewood, pulpwood and logs.

FARMI MODEL	LINE PULL	TRACTOR SIZE
JL250	5500 lbs.	18-30 HP
JL306	6600 lbs.	25-50 HP
JL456 -JL50	10000 lbs.	50-140 HP
JL60	15000 lbs.	80 HP & Up

The winches fit any 3-point hitch. Several logs can be winched in at one time.

The cable is locked when the logs have been winched to the tractor. The 3-point hitch is raised to lift the logs off the ground when the logs are transported to the landing.

Farmi winches are sold and serviced by:

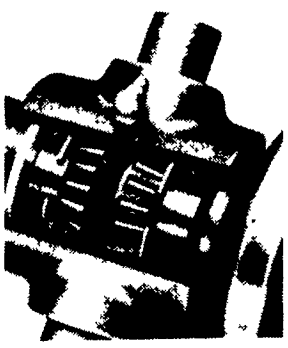
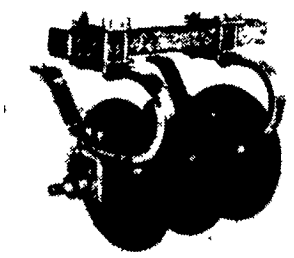
Free Floating Wings
Trunnion Mounted Bearings with Spring Hangers
Heavy Duty Long Narrow Tongue
Precision Machined Spacer Spools
Universal Clevis
22" Disc Blades
Quadra Seal Regreasable Tapered Roller Bearings



Guaranteed Quadraseal Bearings. The unique Rhino double-row tapered roller bearing is guaranteed for two years and provides greater life and dependability than competitive bearings The Quadraseal double row tapered roller bearings offer more capacity than single row ball bearings



Spring Bearing Hangers reduce shockloads to the blade, axles, bearings and frame when working in fields with rocks or stumps. The Rhino 1"x2" spring bearing hangers provide maximum strength, add protection, and reduce downtime expenses. The Rhino Quadraseal gang bearings are trunnion mounted to the spring bearing hangers to allow the gangs to flex freely without undue stress being placed on the gang axle

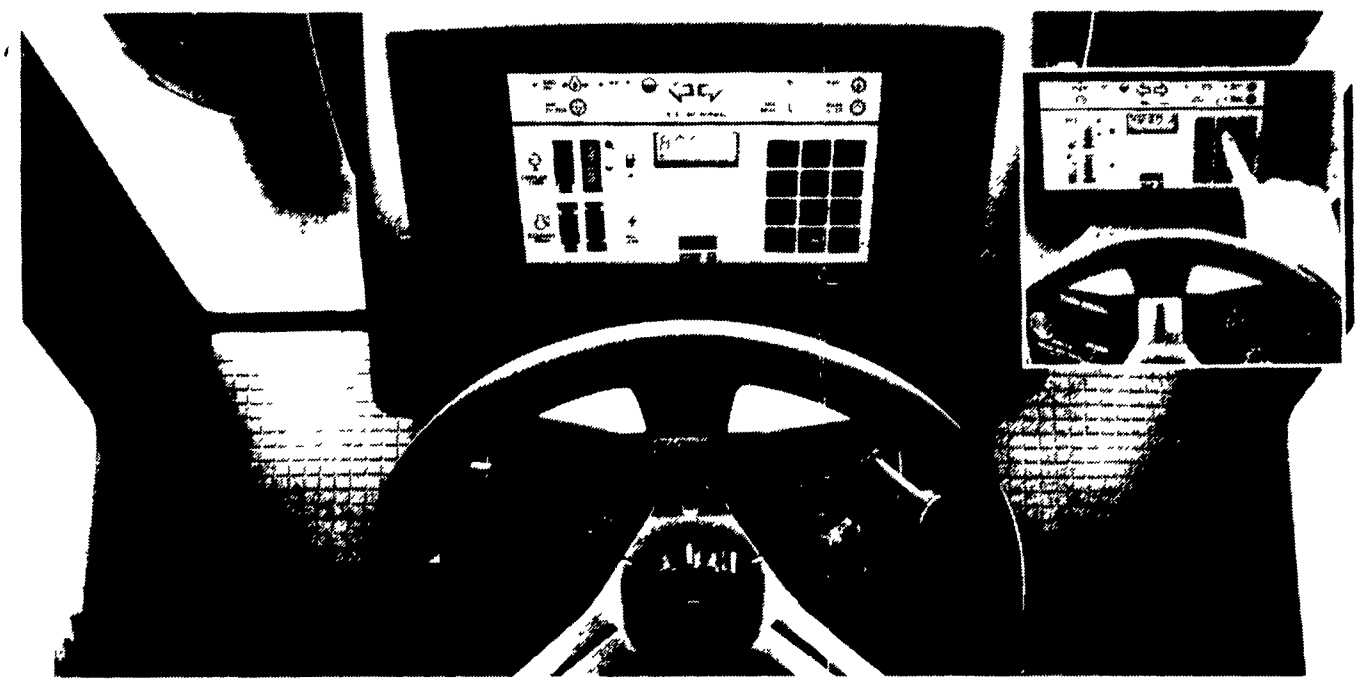
Strong Tractors From A Strong Company
Featuring the most advanced tractor electronic instrumentation in the industry.



New Comfort, New Cabs, New Seating, New Controls AND MORE!!!

Come and see the NEW "94" SERIES TRACTORS From Case, the tractor specialist.

The New 94 Series Tractors Are Here At Binkley & Hurst Bros. And We Are Anxious To Show Them To You

A touch of genius

The most advanced electronic instrumentation in the industry is standard on all new Case 2094 2294 2394 2594 and 3294 tractors

At a glance you can see engine RPM ground speed PTO speed electric tach/hourmeter total area worked area worked rate per hour timer with stop/start control and % of wheel slip (optional) digitals

A separate warning light (red) and audible signal system monitors the critical functions of engine oil pressure engine coolant level transmission oil pressure and temperature and an alternator warning light

A second warning light (yellow) and audible signal system monitors air filter and transmission filter functions Turn signals are indicated in green

Digital instrumentation also converts fuel level engine coolant temperature exhaust temperature gauge and voltage indicator (on turbo models) to bar graph displays with audible warnings at critical levels

Weatherproof and sealed against dust and condensation new Case electronic instrumentation also provides for metric English conversion memory during downtime true engine hour monitoring and diagnostic functions

The 'intelligence of Case state of the art electronic instrumentation can help you be more productive more fuel efficient and more relaxed every hour in the field One of its most exciting features is the Case true ground speed sensor

A true monitor

With this new sensor you can instantly determine your true ground speed or your actual % of wheel slip at the touch of a finger You can weigh your tractor correctly select transmission speed more accurately You'll realize better fuel economy and maximize field performance with the new Case true ground speed sensor

ADD A NEW FREQUENCY EXPERT TO YOUR TEAM AT A NEW LOW PRICE

ADD A NEW EFFICIENCY EXPERT TO YOUR TEAM AT A NEW LOW PRICE

Your first thought may be, "What did they leave off the tractor to get the price down?" Because of special allowances from John Deere, we can honestly tell you, "only the dollars we took off the price tag of 2150 through 2950 models." * Yes, we want your business—but not enough to try to sell you some stripped-down "special" without features to handle the work you have to do. We won't do business that way, neither will John Deere.

To make our new lower priced tractor offer even more attractive, John Deere's making an additional price-reducing offer. Take a cash rebate or interest-free financing to January 1, 1985! * *

Come in, check the specs on this lower-priced John Deere and others in stock. Check the added savings from John Deere financing. Get our trade-in quote. Arrange for a demo. We'll compete for your business with anybody—and deliver a work ready John Deere tractor as our end of the bargain.

* This offer may be reduced in value or withdrawn at any time.

* * Availability of John Deere financing subject to approved credit.

JOHN DEERE

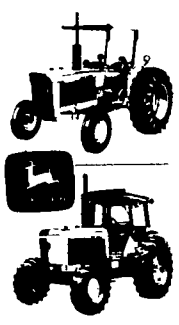
BOTTOM-LINE SPECIALS

Choose a quality used tractor—any make—get our bottom-line deal plus waiver of finance charge to July 1, 1984

Now's the best time to prepare for next season with a quality used tractor. You can upgrade your power, dependability, features and comfort. We're ready to offer you our best bottom line deal on any make of used tractor over 40 hp. And if you finance with John Deere, finance charge will be waived to July 1, 1984.

For 1983 investment tax credit and depreciation deduction you can buy during November or December and still qualify.

Come in and choose the low hour, late model used John Deere or other tractor that will make your operation more cost efficient.



* Availability of John Deere financing and leasing plans subject to approval of credit.

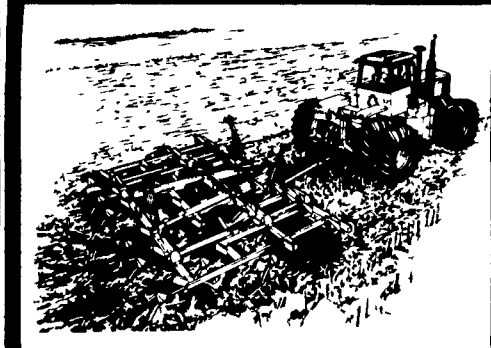
BOTTOM-LINE SPECIALS

Get a 5 or 10 percent discount on these new tillage tools AND pay no finance charge until March 1, 1984



Here's why it makes good dollar-saving sense to buy now. Depending on the tillage tool you choose (see chart below) our dealership will give you our best deal and then deduct another 5 or 10 percent from the latest suggested retail base price. For example, this extra discount on an 18½-foot 235 Disk saves you more than $1,100.

Finance with John Deere and finance charges will be waived to March 1, 1984. Or lease, and your lease payments will be discounted comparable in value to the waiver of finance charge.*

And remember, if you buy during November or December you'll qualify for the 1983 investment tax credit and depreciation.

Machine	Discount from Suggested Retail Price
Moldboard Plows	5 percent
Chisel Plows	10 percent
Field Cultivators	10 percent
Disks	10 percent
Mulch Tillers	10 percent
Mulch Finisher	10 percent

Availability of John Deere financing and leasing plans subject to approval of credit. Leases not eligible for cash rebates or for cash in lieu of waiver. This offer may be reduced in value or withdrawn at any time.

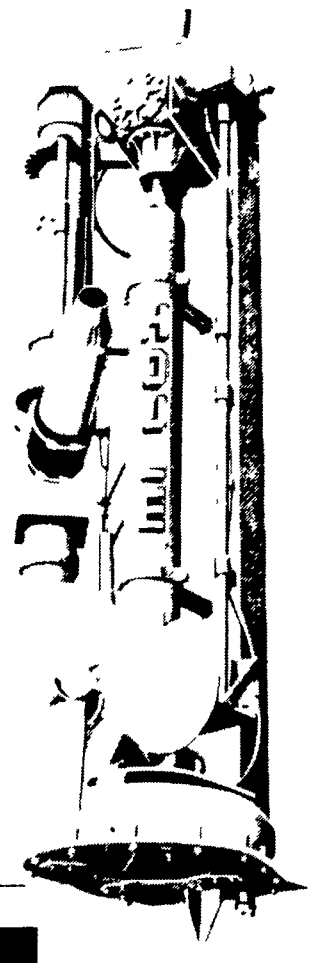
The MANURE PUMP with a BIG BITE

If you are trying to agitate and pump manure without this big propellor and positive cutting blade, you probably aren't doing it as fast as you could.

This big 24" steerable propellor agitates even the hardest of manure storage pits with heavy bedding at displacement rates of 18,000 gallons per minute. The cutting blade will chop long straw bedding and hay from feed bunks to mix it into a rich and creamy fertilizer. This pump is available for all sizes of storage areas in lagoon, trailer, 3-point hitch, and stationary models.



Don't be caught short of enough pump to do the job.

Benefit barbeque set for Eastern National

FREDERICK, Md. — The Third Annual Eastern National Barbecue will be held March 4 from noon to 4 p.m. at the new Frederick Armory located just west of the Monocacy River Bridge off I-70 (Rt. 40) in Frederick, Maryland. The menu will consist of open pit barbecued beef, pork, and lamb, a nine item all homemade relish bar, milk, coffee, and soft drinks.

Tickets are available from: Augie Velisek, 1868 Rt. 94, Woodbine, Md. 21797, phone: 301/489-4519. Tables may be reserved in advance and tickets will be available at the door.

The band "Honey Wagon" will provide country and western music for dancing and listening and a "fun" auction will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. It will include all sorts of interesting items. A Border Collie puppy has been donated by Doreen Suchting of Owings Mills, Md., and a highlight of the auction will be selling of an Angus embryo.

Ed Rishel of Glen Rock, Pa., has donated an embryo of one of his famous Evelyn cows out of Debbie 2 - Edlyns Lady Evelyn 101. She was grand champion at the 1983 Eastern National and first class at the North American International Livestock Expo in Louisville, Ky. Her full sister was grand champion at the 1984 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Dr. Lee Miller of the Mar Lee Embryo Transfer Centre in Woodsboro, Md., is furnishing the recipient cow, the flush and the transfer. She will be bred to a bull of their choice at no charge or a bull of the buyer's choice who must pay for the semen. One half of the proceeds will go to benefit the Eastern National Livestock Show.

Reba McEntire

David Brenner

HARRISBURG — Comedian David Brenner and country/western recording artist Reba McEntire will perform at the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's 1984 Fund Raising Banquet, April 5, at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center Hershey.

Brenner, who began his comedic career in 1971 after enjoying several successful years as a writer and producer of documentary films, is probably best known for his many guest-hosting appearances on "The Tonight Show" and his appearances on all the major TV talk shows. In fact, The Book of Lists #2 cited him the number one most frequent guest on television.

In 1975, Brenner made his first headlining appearance, playing to standing room only audiences at Palumbos in his hometown of Philadelphia. From there, he went on to headline at nightclubs, theatres, college auditoriums and concert halls in forty-nine of the fifty states.

Brenner credits his father, Lou, who was a vaudeville comedian, for his timing, delivery and sense of humor.

His proudest moment as a comedian came in 1978 when the city of Philadelphia proclaimed a "David Brenner Day" and awarded him with the keys to the city.

Reba McEntire, on the other hand, is a star who is on the threshold of super-stardom in the world of country and western music. 1983 was a year of tremendous growth and diversity for Reba. In January, she racked up her first number one hit with the single, "I Can't Even Get the Blues." Soon after, she was given the honor of being the first country artist to have two consecutive number one records in 1983 when "You're The First Time I've Thought About Leaving" reached the number one spot in April. Both singles were released off her top five album Unlimited, which showcased her rich, compelling voice through a variety of music styles.

The excitement Reba generates at radio and on her records is also present in her live show. She's now touring with some of country music's biggest names and is having her biggest concert season yet.

Reba's recording career started to take off with her first album, Reba McEntire, and has continued to gain momentum. Her second album, Out of a Dream, earned her greater success with singles such as "Sweet Dreams," "Runaway Heart," and a popular duet with Jacky Ward called "That Makes Two of Us." Reba's third album, Feel the Fire, finally brought her into the top ten with the single "(Your Lift Me) Up to Heaven," That album also includes the hits "I Don't Think Love Ought To Be That Way" and "I Can See Forever In Your Eyes."

Recently, Reba became associated with MCA records, a move that she hopes will help her career tremendously. She is also busy with television appearances, radio features, and live stage shows, an indication that Reba is reaching levels that will win her more fans and a higher level of recognition. Tickets for the banquet are $100.00 each and can be ordered by calling the office of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation at (717) 652-7530.

Auctioneer is Ken Brubaker of Brubaker Livestock Marketing, West Chester. Catalogs may be obtained from Craig Peterson, chairman, P.O. Box 62, Abbottstown, PA 17301.

Pa. Shorthorn breeders plan 1984 events

SAXONBURG — The 1984 annual Pennsylvania Shorthorn dinner meeting was held recently in Warrendale. In the absence of president Harry Faulk, vice-president George Hunter conducted the meeting to review planned events for 1984.

Events included the Annual Spring Purebred Sale to be held at the Mercer 4-H Park, May 7; the Mercer Livestock Conference March 17; the Shorthorn State Show to be held during Butler Fair Week; and the Keystone Fall Klassic to be held in Waynesburg, Pa. October 20, 1984.

Also, the Pa. Shorthorn Association was invited to participate in the Ohio Valley Field Day at Byland Farms, Loudenville, Ohio, June 24. The membership noted a solid year for shorthorn cattle in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Eugene Byers, a prominent Shorthorn Breeder in Ohio, spoke to the membership on recent changes occurring on the national level in the Shorthorn industry. Collection of performance data for registration of cattle was approved at the Winter Denver Shorthorn meeting. Delegates in the eastern section of the U.S. voted to participate in the annual national meeting. These included Woodside Farm, Waynesburg; Sixes' Polled Shorthorns; Richard McElhaney Stock Farm; and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Allen Jr., of Armstrong Farms.

Dr. Byers also presented talk entitled "Sex and the Single Cow," focusing on generic engineering technology, embryo transfers and how it is affecting the cattle industry. It was also noted that Shorthorn Cattle, a foundation breed for many other cattle breeds, continue to prove its credibility by collecting performance data, large birth and weaning weights, excellent mothering ability, docility and an excellent return on percentage of carcass yield.

Anyone interested in knowing more about Shorthorn Cattle may write to Armstrong Farms, P.O. Box 464, Saxonburg, Pennsylvania 16056.

Livestock Ledger

By

Chester D. Hughes

Extension Livestock Specialist

At the recent Annual Meeting of the Penn State Extension Service of Lancaster County, I had the opportunity to present the staff reports for the Agricultural Agents who serve the citizens of our vast farming community. Jay Irwin, the County Extension Director serves in the areas of Poultry and Farm Management; Glenn Shirk in Dairy, and Arnold Lueck in both Agronomy and Horticulture.

My responsibility lies in the area of Livestock Production and following is what I reported to those attending the Annual Meeting in regards to my area of interest

Working with livestock producers in the county, I find a great need in the areas of improved ventilation and manure management, particularly in swine housing Several new heat saving and cost efficient ventilation ideas have helped many producers improve production while decreasing energy bills Manure management ideas are of concern to many farmers, not only in keeping the inside environment healthy, but keeping our environment outside livestock buildings healthy as well.

The high cost of corn and shortage of feed supplies has forced many county livestock producers to consider and incorporate alternative feedstuffs in their feeding programs. Currently both cattle and swine feeders are encouraged by increased prices for their finished product. Cattle Feeder's Day and the Lanchester Pork Day continue to draw large numbers of concerned livestock producers.

In youth work, projects in beef, sheep and swine continue to be popular 4-H activities with well over 200 members raising both market and breeding animals. The 4-H sheep club has shown the most growth while a new 4-H beef heifer project has attracted interest from young cattlemen

The livestock judging program continues to be a great builder of leadership The Tractor Safety program again involves two clubs with 30 members receiving experience in safe operations as well as mechanical knowledge. Teen leadership and a new 4-H computer program are areas of emphasis for 1984

Damp, cool weather plus confinement equals pseudorabies

GETTYSBURG — Damp cool weather and confinement can bring flare-ups of pseudorabies, a disease that can have a devastating effect on baby pigs in the farrowing house.

According to Dr. Lawrence J. Hutchinson, Penn State Extension veterinarian, confining breeding stock increases the chance of disease spreading within a herd.

"This disease can kill all the baby pigs in a litter but rarely kills adult hogs, Hutchison says. "Pseudorabies also affects cattle, sheep, dogs, cats and wildlife — where it is most often fatal. It doesn't affect humans".

Hutchison says there are five things that producers can do to keep pseudorabies out of their herds.

- Test all breeding stock to be sure the herd is free of disease.
- Buy any replacement animals from a herd that is disease-free and make sure each replacement has been tested and found free of pseudorabies.
- Isolate replacement hogs for 30 days or more and retest them before letting them mix with the rest of the herd.
- Buy feeder pigs from only tested sources.
- Consult local veterinarians about ways to keep pseudorabies out of the herd.

In addition, continues Hutchinson, swine producers should keep visitors out of the hog lots and confinement facilities unless the visitors wear clean, disinfected boots and coveralls. Producers should take the same precautions before they visit other producer's herds and after they visit livestock markets and other producer's premises.

Swine producers should stay alert for the signs of pseudorabies, Hutchison adds.

In pigs less than three weeks of age, Hutchison says that producers should watch for lack of appetite, lack of coordination, depression, vomiting, nervousness, diarrhea and convulsions, often followed by death of the entire litter. In older pigs, signs of the disease include lack of appetite, coughing, rubbing the nose, sneezing, convulsions, reproduction problems, abortions and birth of stillborn and mummified pigs.

"If you suspect pseudorabies, call your veterinarian for a diagnosis", Hutchinson concludes.

Atlantic meeting on March 14

LANCASTER — The 19th Annual Meeting of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative will be held Wednesday, March 14, at the Host Town, 30 Keller Avenue, Lancaster.

Registration with refreshments will begin at 10 a.m. followed by a 10:30 business session which will include reports and certification of Director and Resource/Promotion Committee elections.

Following dinner at noon, H. Louis Moore, Penn State Agricultural Economist, will be the speaker. Our program should adjourn no later than 2:15 p.m.

NY cattlemen elect executive secretary

CORNING, N.Y. — Lee Kraszewski of Corning has been named executive secretary of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association. He succeeds Robert Good of Perry who is retiring after seven years in the position.

Kraszewski is a native of the Elmira area and was educated in the city's parochial school system. He attended both Cornell University and Elmira College and served with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

Kraszewski and his wife Karen have a 225-acre farm on Sticklertown Rd. in the town of Big Flats. They have a herd of Polled Herefords and also raise hogs.

Kraszewski has been a member of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Association for eight years and has served as Chemung County Director for the Southern Tier Division since 1980. He is currently assistant treasurer and his wife assistant secretary for the Division.

He is a member of the Chemung County Farm Bureau Board of Directors and chairman of the local affairs committee. He is also a member of the State Farm Bureau livestock committee, the Chemung County Agricultural District advisory committee, the Chemung County Cooperative Extension agriculture committee, and the Sullivan Trails Resource Conservation and Development Council.

In 1982 he was named Outstanding Cooperator for the Chemung County Soil and Water Conservation District and this winter he organized the Chemung County Beef Short Course.

The Kraszewskis have three children: Jessica, 2½; and twins Andrew and Stephen, 1.

As executive director of the state-wide New York Beef Cattlemen's Association, Kraszewski will be in charge of membership, marketing, sales, producer services, and the many other programs of the organization He was selected for the position from a large group of applicants.

Kraszewski who officially takes over the executive secretary post at the March 17 Council meeting said, "I look forward to the challenges of the position. I will bring my farm background and interest in people and cattle to the job, working with both current and new programs to serve the state's beef cattle industry."

Summer dates set for junior Polled Hereford shows

KANSAS CITY, MO. — The American Polled Hereford Association (APHA) and junior Polled Herefords breeders from across the country are getting set for the 11th National Junior Polled Hereford Show and Forum, as well as the Eastern and Western Regional Junior Polled Hereford Show that will take place this summer.

Iowa will be the host state for the National Junior Polled Hereford Show and Forum, July 22-26 on the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines. In addition to the judging on July 25-26 of 1983-born heifers and cow-calf pairs shown by junior APHA members, there will be a full slate of informative and recreational activities for the youth and their families. Included will be the finals of the National Junior Showmanship contest, selection of the National Junior Merit Award winners, the National Speech contest and the National Polled Hereford Beef Bowl competition

The campus of Middle Tennessee State University at Murfreesboro, Tenn , has been designated as the site for the Eastern Regional Junior Polled Hereford Show. The show dates are July 16-18, with judging scheduled for July 18. The Western Regional Polled Hereford Show is planned for June 21-23 in Puyallup, Wash. Heifer judging at that show is set for June 23.

The ownership and entry deadline for Polled Herefords to be shown in any of the three summer events is May 21. To obtain entry forms or more information about the 11th National Junior Show and Forum, the Eastern Regional or the Western Regional, contact the American Polled Hereford Association Youth Department at 4700 East 63rd Street, Kansas City, Mo., 64130 (816) 333-7731.

Md. safety dinner on March 23

COLLEGE PARK, Md — Nobody really knows how many farmers and other rural residents owe their lives to educational activities during the past 30 years by the Maryland Agricultural Safety and Health Federation (MASHF) or its predecessor, the Maryland Farm and Home Safety Council.

but if all of those people come to the March 23 annual dinner meeting of the federation at Friendly Farms restaurant near Upperco (Baltimore county), it's a sure bet there won't be enough space available to seat everyone.

So says Elmer L. Cooper, associate professor of agricultural and extension education at the University of Maryland. Cooper is the ninth person to serve as chairman of MASHF since it was organized in 1973 by representatives of 28 rural organizations, agribusinesses, educational groups, federal agencies and state government departments.

Since 1975, MASHF has held annual dinner meetings each year in early spring. This year's event on March 23, will begin 7 p.m. in north central Maryland, about five miles west of highway I-83 at Exit 27.

Reservations should be made not later than March 15 by calling Gary L. Smith, the MASHF secretary, at (301) 454-3901, in College Park. Smith is an Extension agricultural engineer and safety specialist at the University of Maryland.

Larry E. Stewart, agricultural engineering department chairman at Maryland, will keynote this year's MASHF meeting with a presentation on "Safety Challenges for the Future." Stewart will give an update on current MASHF safety education programs, including the statewide emergency-stop decal campaign for farm machinery and the second Farm Bureau women-FFA farm accident survey. Both of these projects are just getting under way.

Stewart was a principal organizer of MASHF in 1973 and served as its first secretary.

Other speakers at this year's annual MASHF meeting will reminisce on 10 years of progress by the federation. A proclamation salute, signed by Governor Harry R. Hughes, will be read. And award certificates will be presented to individuals and groups for outstanding achievement in farm and home safety. All interested persons are invited to attend.

ASPC semi-annual meeting in Denver

DENVER, Co —Directors from across the nation will convene March 6-8 at Denver's Brown Palace Hotel for the American Sheep Producers Council Semi-Annual Meeting.

ASPC was created in 1955 by sheepmen as a self-help program to promote their primary products: lamb and wool. Sixty-six directors representing 25 state and area councils meet twice a year to review and provide input into programs. Eleven directors representing major organizations that serve the sheep industry also participate in the governing process.

Wednesday's program features guest speaker Jan Eberly, immediate past president of the Future Farmers of America, and a panel discussion on "The Next 10 years--Problems and Opportunities for the Sheep Industry."

In the regular business session Thursday, directors will review the ASPC budget and plan of work for the 1984-85 fiscal year.

All sheep producers and media are welcome.

Dealers attend meeting

HERSHEY — Representative of area dealers attended a six-state meeting of dealers of Modern Farm Systems held at the Hershey Hotel and Country Club.

Attending were Milford Mast, Dennis Mast and Brett Swailes of Milford Mast Co., of Elverson; and Thomas Backman, of Fallston, Md.

During the two-day meeting, sessions were held on new products, drying, material handling and aeration. Among the major product introductions was a new line of storage bins.

BIOLOGICAL FARMING SEMINAR

Colonel Lee Taylor of Farm Guard Products, Albuquerque, New Mexico, farm advisor and consultant for eighteen years, will be speaking and showing slides on "Farm Production of Nitrogen"; "Building Drought Resistance in Soils"; and "Rehabilitation of Once Productive Agricultural Land".

Agri-Dynamics of Martin's Creek will give a presentation with slides on foliar feeding of crops and baling hay at high moisture.

Tobacco buyers warn growers about market glut

By Suzanne Keene

Tobacco buyers at a meeting of Lancaster County growers this week said demand for tobacco is down this year and warned them that it is possible to get too much of a good thing.

While several farmers indicated that they haven't sold all their tobacco, the buyers said they have bought enough to meet their present demand.

Buyer James Johnson of James R. Miller Co., Wilson, N.C., said he has filled his orders and another buyer, E.J. Parker, from Tenn., said the same.

Organic Plant Foods Co. President Bill Brubaker said he believes Lancaster County farmers have reached the market saturation point because some farmers still have unsold tobacco hanging in their barns.

"I think we've gone overboard," he said.

Johnson stressed that graded tobacco is more marketable than tobacco that is not graded.

"I do not have a market for tobacco that isn't graded," he said.

Parker cautioned farmers against too much moisture and recommended that growers wait to strip until the tobacco is very dry.

Representatives from several chemical companies also had some advice for the growers.

They said that applying chemicals in the proper quantity, at the right time and in the right way is essential to growing quality tobacco.

Jack Beideman from Ciba Geigy introduced Prime +, a chemical that effectively controls suckers and allows natural ripening without leaving any MH residue.

Beideman stressed the importance of applying Prime + properly for best results. He said growers should use a three-nozzle system which will direct the flow down the center of each plant.

If applied properly, the chemical will provide 95 to 100 percent protection through harvest time and "those little suckers will just turn yellow," he said.

Steve Fisher of FMC told the growers that Furadan will give early control of aphids. However, he said, "it's got to be applied right if it's going to work right."

Fisher recommended using Furadan with other insecticides early in the season, then following with an application of Thiodan later.

Dow Chemical representative Todd Grice said Lorsban 15G is the broadest spectrum insecticide available for tobacco and is the only one labeled for cutworm

Grice said when Lorsban is used at a two or three quart rate, it gives 'extremely effective results."

McCracken holds dairy seminar

BY JACK HUBLEY

MANHEIM — Dairymen took a break from their busy schedules on Feb. 21, to gather at Enck's Baron Stiegel Restaurant in Manheim for the second annual Professional Dairyman's Seminar and Dinner sponsored by McCracken's Feed Mill, Inc., Manheim.

The morning's first speaker was David A. Traub, Director of Dairy and Livestock Nutritional Services, for Beacon Milling Company's York plant, who spoke on "Managing the Dairy Herd's Nutritional Needs for Increased Profit".

Traub stressed the importance of close attention to an energy system to insure dairy herd nutrition. The speaker reviewed various numerical systems including the TDN method, the Net Energy Lactation (NE) system developed in 1971, and the most current version of the NE developed in 1978. He concluded that the newer NE values are far more realistic than those of its 1971 predecessor, and more sensitive at both quality extremes than the TDN system

Guidelines for finished feeds under the new NE system were given, with numbers of 73 and higher being high energy feeds, 67 to 72 corresponding to medium energy, and values below 67 representing low energy feeds.

Traub cautioned farmers not to be impressed by numbers in the 90's, as such values do not correspond to the NE system and should not be used for comparisons.

Following Traub's presentation, Dr Gilbert A. Peterson, President of Lancaster Bible College, discussed communications as a means of increasing profits. Punctuating his lecture with audience participation and humorous anecdotes, the speaker illustrated how communicatin can be elevated from simply talking to creating understanding.

Highlighting the importance of listening, the speaker pointed out that everyone we come in contact with has something to teach us.

Next on the agenda was Glenn A. Shirk, Lancaster County Dairy Extension Agent, speaking on herd health and the prevention of mastitis. Shirk stated that although somantic cell counts of 500,000 were acceptable in the past, dairymen should be striving for much lower levels.

Based on the fact that reducing somatic cell counts by one-half results in a 1.5 lb.-per-cow increase in milk production per day, the speaker demonstrated why big increases in production result from reducing cell counts at the lower levels. As an example, Shirk stated that reducing counts from 1,600,000 to 800,000 increased milk production by 1.5 lbs., the same increase as from 800,000 to 400,000, or 400,000 to 200,000, and so on.

The speaker urged farmers not to be discouraged by slow gains during the early stages of treatment. Since badly damaged milk-producing cells may not recuperate until a dry period, an increase in production may not be noted until the second lactation. He also discussed the role of a clean, dry environment in keeping infection to a minimum

Following dinner, two speakers concluded the day's events Veterinarian Donald M. Shellenberger from the Smoketown Veterinary Hospital, also took up the topic of mastitis, discussing vaccination and recommended treatment schedules.

McCracken's Ruminant Nutritional Consultant, J. Nevin Gish, discussed Beacon's preservative program for hay and silage as a means of increasing both the quantity and quality of feed available to the herd. Gish cited prevention of leaf shatter and the ability to bale at a 25% moisture level as benefits realized through the use of hay preservatives. He also encouraged the use of preservatives in silage to reduce heat, thereby decreasing spoilage and energy loss.

Gish also covered the importance of the dry cow program, stressing that what the farmer does during the dry period determines production during lactation.

Hog ration helps efficiency

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — While higher grain prices caused by the PIK program and last year's drought might be good news for some farmers, hog producers without adequate grain supplies are facing a cost/price squeeze which could make it even tougher to produce a pound of pork profitably

That's the opinion of Dr. Bud Harmon, director of swine research for Ralston Purina Company, who says hog producers can overcome this threat by improving feed efficiency. "Especially when grain prices are high, any improvement in feed efficiency can prove extremely valuable," Harmon contends.

Recognizing this need, he says, producers can now turn to Purina's new line of high energy complete feeds specifically designed to improve feed efficiency and provide best value in the face of high prices and scarce grain "We developed Super High Octane Grower and Finisher rations specially to help hogmen produce pork at a lower cost," Harmon declares.

"Super High Octane rations are formulated with higher levels of energy and nutrients that can improve feed efficiency by 9 percent and average daily gain by 4 percent over High Octane Hog Chows, our next most efficient rations," he explains. "Because Super High Octane contains this higher concentration of energy and nutrients, hogs get even more growth from a smaller amount of feed," he adds.

The new line, Harmon continues, is designed to deliver more than just top performance. "Its best value formulation will deliver optimum performance at best relative value to producers. Depending on grain prices the performance of hogs fed Super High Octane could vary within a specific high range," he explains. "This way, our dealers can respond to changing ingredient costs and still provide producers with a best value ration."

In addition, Harmon points out, the new complete feed formulation eliminates the need to supplement with higher priced grain, and saves time, labor and equipment costs. "Also, Purina research shows that the ration reduces dust, promotes digestion and reduces feed waste," he adds, "providing an additional 8 percent feed efficiency improvement over meal rations."

"Producers now have a choice in today's tight and high-priced grain picture," Harmon suggests. "They can use cheaper, less efficient feeds which will cost them more in lost performance On the other hand, they can feed best value, and save money on each pound of pork produced," he concludes

John Yocum, from the Penn State University research farm in Landisville, told farmers it is important to use proper quantities of fertilizer, especially in the seed beds.

With too much fertilizer, he said, "what happens is you burn those little plants up."

He recommended using 1 to 1½ pounds of corn starter on a 50-square foot bed and 12 pounds of a 6-feet by 100-feet bed.

"You don't need a tremendous amount of fertilizer," he said, adding that those amounts should be followed with other applications during the growing season.

Yocum advised farmers to have their soil tested so they will know what amounts of fertilizer to use.

While manure provides many nutrients to the soil, Yocum said different manure contains different quantities of vital nutrients.

He said chicken manure should not be used on tobacco because it contains such a high percentage of nitrogen that it is impossible to spread it thinly enough. Only about two tons per acre are needed.

When the manure is incorporated into the soil also affects the amount of nitrogen the soil absorbs, Yocum said. If the manure is plowed under within 48 hours only 50 percent of the nitrogen will be available the first year.

If it is incorporated within two days, only 35 percent will be available. The percentages continue to decrease with longer time periods, Yocum said.

Yocum also stressed that farmers should not buy their plants out of state because many of the imported plants carry diseases such as black shank and bacterial wilt.

"Many have diseases we don't want in Lancaster County," he said.

Hornworms have also been plaguing tobacco farmers They have been showing up in increasing numbers and Yocum warned farmers to "be aware of those hornworms" that hide underneath the leaves.

Bill Brubaker warned the growers about increasing phosphorus levels that are starting to show up in Lancaster County wells.

"We've got to watch the manure rates per acre," he told them.

Following the speaker's presentations tobacco farmers were given an opportunity to ask questions. Brubaker said he has been sponsoring this meeting for about four years.

Farrowing drug approved

KALAMAZOO, Mich — Lutalyse sterile solution (dinoprost tromethamine), a prostaglandin product developed by The Upjohn Company, has received FDA approval for use in inducing farrowing in swine.

Available through veterinarians, Lutalyse is also cleared for synchronizing estrus in beef cows and heifers and non-lactating dairy heifers, treating silent heat in lactating dairy cows and treating pyometra in cows. It is also cleared for use as an abortifacient in feedlot heifers.

"This clearance of Lutalyse makes it the only FDA-approved prostaglandin product currently available for the purpose of inducing farrowing in swine," explains Jim Van Buren, Upjohn technical services veterinarian.

"Being able to induce farrowing enables a swine producer to arrange his labor so farrowing can be supervised. It also maximizes use of high-priced facilities on the operation by allowing an all-in/all-out farrowing and allows for grouping more routine activities such as vaccinating, tail docking and clipping needle teeth."

It is important to maintain up-to-date records on each animal so the injection can be given at the proper time.

"Field studies show that Lutalyse effectively induces farrowing in sows and gilts known to be 111 to 113 days into gestation.

When Lutalyse was administered at the proper level of 2 ml, the time from injection until parturition averaged 29 hours, while the controls showed 78 hours. All treated sows have farrowed within 72 hours after the injection, whereas it required 144 hours for all control sows to farrow," reports Dr. Van Buren.

You hold the key to ag's future

BY KIMBERLY HERR

LANCASTER — Point your index finger, raising it upward to the ceiling. Where is your thumb pointing? If you followed directions, your thumb is pointing to you, and that was the point made by John R. Moulton, director of operation for PFA's Farm Management Services.

Moulton spoke on "What It Will Take to be Successful in Ag in the 1980s" during the Hamilton Bank Agri-Education Seminar, held Feb. 23 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. "Analyzing Your Operation for Profits" was this year's theme

"We in agriculture have a habit of pointing our finger at someone else," Moulton said "Always remember where that thumb is pointing It all comes back to you "

Moulton used several charts to illustrate the current and past farming trends One such chart illustrated how at one time a farmer could sell his livestock and equipment assets to pay his debts and remain in busines but "in 1982, a farmer could sell all of his equipment and livestock assets and still have $60,000 worth of debt "

Moulton explained that farmers are in a situation they have not been in before, meaning farmers today may have to sell their farms to get out of debt

Why? Moulton put much emphasis on planning and management

"Part of the reason why farmers are in trouble today is because they haven't considered their total costs," Moulton said

He encouraged the farmers present to consider everything before making decisions and especially before expanding

"You may be decreasing profitability by trying to be the biggest and the best," Moulton said

Moulton explained how he thought agriculture got to be where it is today During the good years when profits were comfortable, Moulton explained, management may have become lax

"As the profit margin narrowed, management practices did not change to adjust," he explained "Our present profits cannot service the debt that we have come up with

"I see that pressure has been building up for the past 17 years like a time bomb slowly ticking away," Moulton said "For some, the bomb has already gone off and they are picking up the pieces right now "

Moulton urged the some 300 people in attendance not to give up, that there was still time to do something about the current state of agriculture

'If you plan ahead, you can use all of your resources," he said "Whether you like it or not, farming is big business Farming will not be a way of life, you will have to look at it as a business "

Moulton urged the women in attendance to get the whole family around the kitchen table, to get everyone to discuss and consider their resources and options

"I rest my whole case on management," he said "There was a time when brawn and hard work was all you had to do to be successful, but times have changed "

Hand in hand with good management practices, according to Moulton, are good records and the appropriate amount of credit

"You need to work with lenders who can say no," he said "Go with those who understand agriculture "

As a final note of advice, Moulton told his audience to make sure their bankers come out and meet with them on their farm, their "own turf "

"And if he doesn't," Moulton said, "find another creditor "

Following Moulton's presentation was H Louis Moore, agricultural economist at Penn State, who spoke on "Hedging for Extra Profits "

Moore spoke on the advantages and disadvantages of dealing in the commodities market

According to Moore, the advantages of hedging, which is contracting a commodity you now or will have, are letting someone else carry the risk of price changes and letting you price your goods up to two years prior to delivery

The disadvantages, according to Moore, are foregoing profit and running the risk of becoming a speculator, which is someone who deals in commodities he does not have

Those in attendance also heard from Moore on the 'Economic Outlook and Other Witchcraft," and from Jay M Siegrist, CPA, Kuntz LaManna Associates, on

Gehl observes 125 years

WEST BEND, Wisc. — 1984 marks the 125th year of operation for Gehl Company, West Bend, Wisc. As a leading manufacturer and marketer of specialized farm equipment, concentrating on feed and forage equipment along with skid-steer loaders, Gehl will be celebrating its 125th anniversary throughout 1984.

Although 125 years old, Gehl continually strives to be a progressive, innovative company with well-engineered products, according to executive vice president John Gehl.

On remaining a specialized farm equipment company since 1859, John Gehl says: "We're built on reliability, durability, quality and above all, service to our customers. We've tried to meet the needs of farmers over the years, and not tried to be everything to everybody. We believe in doing better what we do best."

Gehl will salute their 125 years by recognizing their dealers this summer at a worldwide dealer meeting. Gehl currently has 1,200 dealers nationwide. It has also entered the industrial skid-steer market internationally with heavy sales emphasis in European countries.

What does the future hold for farm equipment companies? "We'll probably be seeing more specialized companies," Gehl explains. "And that's right where we're positioned."

Closing the day's program was Laurence M. Strassner, president and chief operating officer of the Hamilton Bank, who ended the day on a positive note.

"It is time to go against the grain and be optimistic about the future," he said, expressing his confidence that the problems facing agriculture today will be solved as those in the past have been

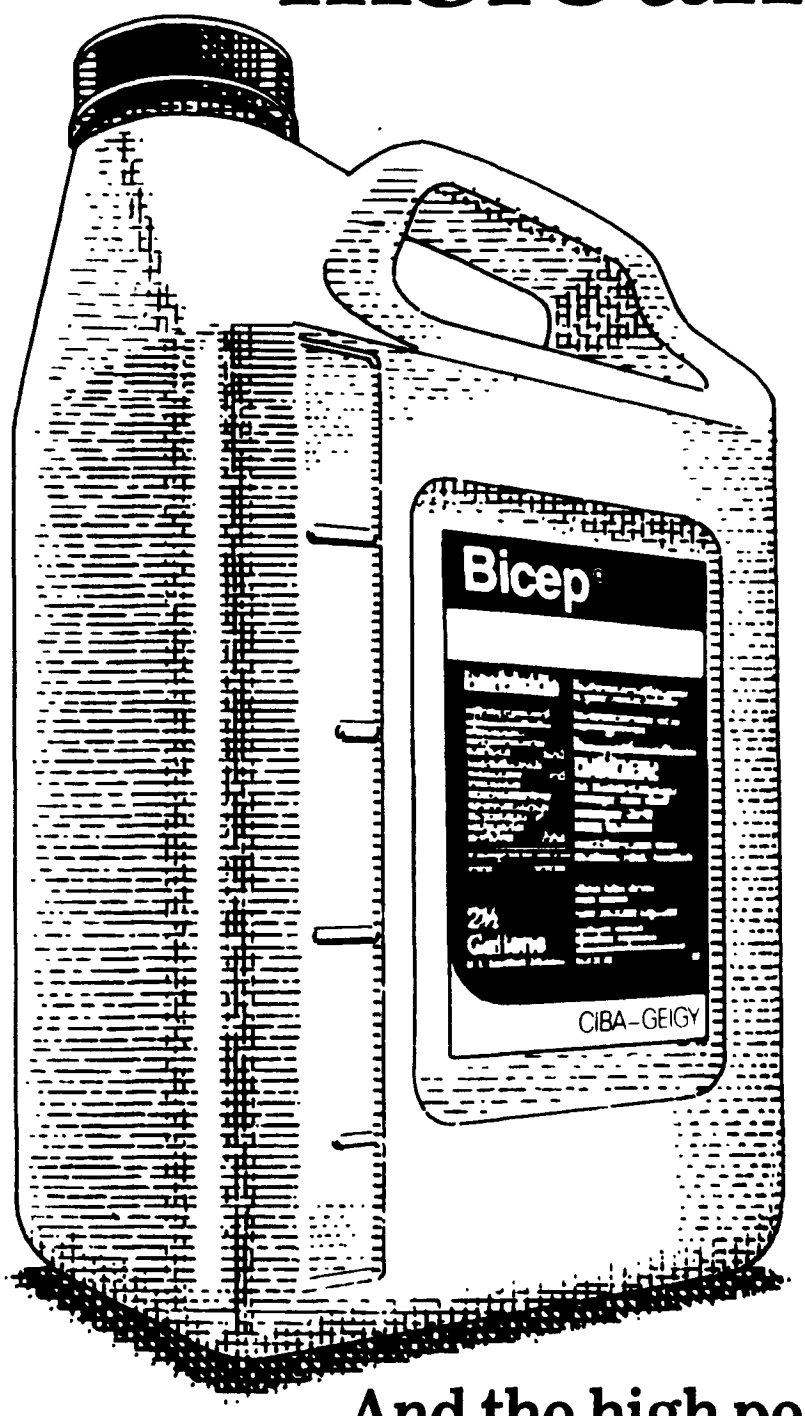
Bicep®

The one that does more and helps you hold the line on cost.



It only makes sense — to use the one herbicide that can keep your herbicide costs from rising while so many other costs are going up.

The cost of Bicep is especially important now — when you need the kind of double-duty weed control Bicep affords: to bring idle acres back into weed-free, high-yielding production.

And the high performance of Bicep gives you the alternative to tank mixes — the one herbicide that controls both grasses and broad-leafs without the trouble of tank mixing.

Get the easy-to-use-liquid, no carryover to soybeans, full-season control of Bicep.

Stop in and let's look at what cost effective Bicep can do for you.

Ag policy must be geared to food tech

WASHINGTON, D.C. — America's future agricultural policy must be geared to the entire food system, not just to the three percent of our population who are farmers, according to Tom Urban, president of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., a major seed research firm.

In an address this week before the National Governor's Association Committee on Agriculture, Urban pointed out that America's food system is a "high tech" industry involving 23 million people. Of these, only a small percentage are responsible for most of our farm production. Future government policy, he said, must be developed from this perspective and not from tradition.

"The largest single cost in your food bill is now off-farm labor; that is, labor that takes place after the food has left the farm. Economic policies which affect the long-term cost and productivity of U S. labor have a great deal more to do with the cost of food than do farm price support programs," Urban said.

"Almost 85 percent of farm output is now produced by only 700,000 farmers. Other agricultural tasks are still there; they have simply shifted up or down the food chain. We need to begin to talk about the total food system today, not about farming, per se

"Let me suggest that the time has come to reposition food and agricultural support programs; to reshape the image of our American food system. We have traditionally related program costs to the farming segment of the food system A more proper analysis should related food and agricultural support programs to the entire food system, a system which accounted for one-fifth of our $3.4 trillion gross national product," Urban said.

The U.S. has moved well beyond the production of food solely for itself and is committed to world markets, according to Urban About 40% of the land in this country produced for exports in 1981

"The cost to producers, lenders, suppliers and buyers of reducing the size of the U.S. food supply system to solely meet internal consumption — to ignore the world market — would bankrupt a significant segment of our industry and require quite unacceptable subsidies from the non-food sector of our economy. Such downsizing is simply not an acceptable alternative," Urban said.

He also told the governors that the U S food system has quietly become the largest "high tech" business in America. Researchers are now working to combine classical genetics with biotechnology to significantly improve agricultural productivity. In addition, Urban said, microbiologists are beginning to learn about the mutually beneficial relationships between microbes, animals and plants in order to manipulate those microbes for further productivity gains.

"Farmers are rapidly adopting new technologies. They're now buying computers to control their costs and improve the quality of their decisions. Extraordinary progress is also being made in the processing and delivery of food products. Witness the technologies presented to you in the supermarket. These advances are equal to or greater than the mechanizations of yesterday," Urban said. "They do not describe traditional farming at all."

"Food tech" has been a crucial element in America's economic growth over the past 20 years, Urban said. The food industry has shown a 30% to 50% annual return to the public on research investments, has improved labor productivity by an average of 4.53% per year since 1920 and operated at 25% to 30% greater internal efficiency than food systems in other nations, he added.

The governors were urged by Urban to take a close look at the food system in each of their states and to support research and development and to encourage political and social allies to rethink our food policy. He also asked them to consider the formation of coalitions in each state to bring new concepts to policy making at the federal level.

"We still have a distinct comparative advantage in food production and distribution over the rest of the world," Urban said.

"Policies which allow those 700,000 or so farms and the attendant sectors of the food system to add to their productivity, to operate in an environment which is more predictable, where basic research in food production, distribution and marketing has a priority," he said, "will continue to return enormous benefits to our nation."

Corn champ outlines program

STEWARTSVILLE, N.J. — William Voorhees recently captured first place in the 1983 New Jersey no-till corn yield contest sponsored by the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). Voorhees led the competition with the Dekalb-Pfizer Genetics hybrid EW-720, which yielded 171.88 bushels per acre.

"Despite a wet spring and dry summer," Woorhees says, "EW-720 stood fairly well and had a good yield. It also has a good husk cover to keep birds out."

Voorhees, whose farm is only three miles from the Delaware River, planted the 14-acre field of EW-720 on May 6. "I had a plant population of 24,200 at planting in a 30-inch row," he adds.

The winning combination of management practices used by Voorhees included 190 pounds of nitrogen applied in four applications. The nitrogen sequence included 20 pounds applied prior to planting, 15 pounds at planting in the row, 85 pounds applied soon after planting, and a final 70 pounds put down in mid-June.

To knock out pesky weeds, Voorhees sprayed 1.74 pounds of Atrazine mixed with two quarts of Lasso in liquid nitrogen after planting. During the first week of June he also sprayed on Banvel at the recommended rate for his soil type.

Voorhees farms 950 acres with his father, Arthur. They raise soybeans, wheat, barley and alfalfa hay and have 20 steers. He is a member of the Warren County Farm Bureau. He and his wife, Georgene, have three children, Bill, Natalie and Tara.

Harvestore makes appointments

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, IL — Jack J. Estes, president of A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., has nominated three executives to become company officers. He said the company's board of directors will act on the nominations during the board's next meeting. Estes also announced the promotion of two executives to positions of increased responsibilities.

James C. Schaap has been named executive vice president-marketing; Vern W. Crist has been appointed vice president and controller; William W. Smith, Jr. has been made vice president-product engineering.

Along with these assignments, Estes announced that Joseph A. Podawiltz has been promoted to the post of director-human resources; Francis A. Grillot, Jr. has been named director-municipal and industrial marketing; Richard L. Vetter will continue in his position as director of research.

BUSH HOG® GT42 GAS POWERED ROTARY CUTTERS...

Puts Fun Back Into Grass Cutting Chores!

Over thirty years ago Bush Hog pioneered the rotary cutter. We're still No. 1 in cutter sales
And now we're blazing new trails, with the introduction of the GT-42 a new concept in rotary cutter development and usage

Hook a GT-42 behind your all-terrain vehicle
Mount one to your garden tractor
You'll get all the workhorse cutting performance of a genuine Bush Hog
And you'll rediscover the fun of grass cutting — right in your own back yard!

SPECIFICATIONS
TRANSPORT WIDTH	54
LENGTH	69
CUTTING HEIGHT	1 — 6 inches
CUTTING CAPACITY	Through 1 2 diameter

WARNING Because of the possibility of injury from thrown objects all rotary cutters are potentially dangerous and should be operated a safe distance from people

A handy turnbuckle allows fast, easy cutting height adjustment — from 1 to 6 inches

The drive belt is constructed with strands of Kevlar,' the strongest belt material known This reduces slippage and belt stretch, adding years of trouble-free operation

Cutter blades are made from high-strength steel and are reversible—for double the blade life

Does Lasso® outperform Dual[1]?

Consider the facts.

FACT: Lasso® herbicide not only gives you full-season grass control, Lasso provides better control of pigweed and black nightshade than Dual—and better suppression of lambsquarters and common ragweed.

FACT: Lasso stresses young corn and soybean plants less than Dual.

FACT: Universities around the country have conducted herbicide tests in corn for eight straight years, 1975 through 1982. In those independent tests, plots treated with Lasso consistently produced bigger yields than plots treated with Dual.

FACT: Lasso averaged over four bushels per acre more than Dual[3] whether the herbicides were used alone or tank mixed with atrazine or Bladex[2] herbicides.

FACT: All available comparisons (more than 1,000) from published university experiments were reviewed to obtain these results.

FACT: Comparisons were made at universities in many different states. They included a wide range of weather conditions, soil types and weed infestations, as well as many popular varieties of corn.

FACT: No Monsanto data were used. All tests were conducted independently by each university as part of its regular weed control testing program.

ADD IT UP: Full-season grass control, better control of some tough broadleaf weeds, less herbicide stress, a significant yield advantage verified by independent university tests—clearly, Lasso outperforms Dual. Count on Lasso for all the yield you're entitled to. Monsanto

Case introduces tractor series

RACINE, Wi. — J I Case has unveiled four new 94 Series high horsepower four-whee-drive agricultural tractors — the most powerful models in the Case line. Models 4494, 4694, 4894 and the all-new 4994 feature manufacturer's estimated gross engine horsepower of 213, 261, 300 and 400 respectively (159 kW, 194 kW, 223 kW and 298 kW).

These new energy- and tractive-efficient models feature new human engineering designs that help improve operating efficiency and productivity while increasing the farmer's sensitivity to the tractor's actual field operations. These models also incorporate several new internal designs to extend service life.

New Instrumentation

The new digital instrumentation cluster, the most advanced in the agricultural tractor industry, provides systems monitoring and field operating data for the operator. It opens a new line of communication between the tractor and the operator and is available in either English or metric units of measurement.

All critical functions are monitored with a multi-leveled warning system that provides both visual and audible alarms. Farmers are able to monitor various performance outputs and tractor functions at the touch of a button.

Another advantage of the "Intelligence Monitoring System" is the use of the true ground speed sensor option to determine actual wheel slippage.

Power Shift Transmission

Case Models 4494, 4694 and 4894 feature a standard 12-speed powershift transmission with electrically activated, hydraulically activated sequenced power shifts. This new shifting feature provides a low effort, consistent shifting sequence, regardless of temperature variations.

Standard on the Model 4994 is a single control lever, full range 12-speed full powershift transmission and an electronic microprocessor control with diagnostics to monitor the electrical and electronic functions of the transmission and the electronic four-way selective steering system.

Silent Guardian Cab

The new Case "Silent Guardian" cab is designed to help the operator work more comfortably and productively, in a pleasing gray, color-coordinated interior.

Cab entry is simplified by a repositioned handrail and a top mount door cylinder that opens the door at the "touch" of a handle. Operator entry is further enhanced by a three-step design on Models 4494, 4694 and 4894, with one additional step available as an option. Four steps are standard on the 4994.

Standard is a new Case air/oil suspension seat that operates and adjusts more smoothly than mechanical systems. It is designed to isolate the operator fromf atigue caused by the constant movements experienced during tractor operation. Features include a lumbar adjustment, 20 degree right and left swivel capabilities, weight/height adjustments and pressure regulation to fit the ride to the individual operator.

Consistent performance is corn hybrid measurement tool

BLOOMINGTON, Il.— After literally weathering the last four years, corn growers must search their memories to recall a "normal" growing season. Heat and drouth characterized 1980 and 1983. And "wet and late" describe 1981 in the eastern Corn Belt and 1982 in the West.

With such disparate growing conditions, how can growers tell if they are receiving good, consistent performance from corn hybrids they select? And just what is consistent hybrid performance?

"In the simplest terms, consistent performance is the ability to produce reasonably good yield under bad conditions," says Charles Brim, vice president of research for Funk Seeds International. "Consistency is a tough characteristic to accurately define," Brim adds, "because there are weather conditions under which no hybrid can perform well. Unfortunately, a lot of areas experienced those kinds of growing conditions last year."

When weather permits, however, several traits work together to make corn hybrids consistent performers, Brim continues "Yieldability, standability, disease and insect resistance and stress tolerance are the major contributors to dependable production.

"Most growers measure yield by gut feeling," Brim admits. "Everyone who farms knows that there are certain pieces of land which simply produce better yields from year to year."

Part of Brim's responsibilities as vice president of research for Funk include traveling across the country to evaluate test plots grown by farmers cooperating with the company.

"Farmers are into risk analysis now, just like other businessmen. Many of them have told me they've given up going for high yield only. They say they want hybrids that perform relatively well from year to year over a variety of conditions.

"Farmers generally put yield and standability at the top of their hybrid selection lists," Brim says. "These two traits probably should be combined into one characteristic called harvestable yield. A hybrid's biological yield potential can be very high, but without standability, the high potential is lost. So the stalk needs to be strong enough to hold the plant up until harvest, yet combine relatively easily.

"That kind of stalk results from overall good plant health, which is a function of tolerance or resistance to prevalent diseases and insects and stress tolerance. These defense mechanisms allow a hybrid to express its yieldability from year to year, over a wide range of growing conditions," the researcher says.

A hybrid's ear type may affect consistency. "Hybrids with determinant ears almost always produced one while indeterminant types may be barren under very harsh conditions," Brim explains.

With the large number of hybrids available, what's the best way to select a hybrid for consistent performance?

"Strip tests are the best technique to evaluate consistent performance on the farm," says Paul Christensen, Funk advanced testing manager. "This involves planting a few rows of four or five hybrids side-by-side and tracking yield, standability and other traits

"One year's data will give an indication of relative performance. Measurement of consistent performance requires data for the hybrid's performance over a number of years."

The following chart shows three-year evaluations for five hybrids:

Hybrid	1981 Yield	1982 Yield	1983 Yield	Hybrid Mean
A	138	110	122	123.3
B	134	108	115	119.0
C	139	112	136	129.0
D	120	104	105	109.6
E	126	120	99	115.0
Plot Mean	131 4	110.8	115.4

Tabulations such as these can be done manually or with help from a personal computer. "VisiCalc, which is one of the most common microcomputer software programs, would work very well for a hybrid evaluation program," Christensen says.

"At least three years of data are needed for results to be meaningful," he adds. "But tests need not be run on the same land every year. The soil should be well drained and representative of the entire farm." Hybrids should not be planted in the same order every year.

To interpret data, look at individual yields in relation to the mean or average of each hybrid in the trial. For example, if the mean for the trial is 107 bushes, and hybrid A yields 122 bushels, its score would be a +15 If hybrid B yields 103 bushes, its score would equal -4.

The mean for the whole trial will serve as an indicator of the environment that year. Lower means indicate more stressful growing conditions

As individual hybrid data is evaluated, Christensen recommends looking for yields that are significantly lower than the mean, a signal of weakness under stress.

He cautions, however, than means alone may not give a true picture of a hybrid's performance. "Closely scrutinize the figures that make up the mean to see if there are any low values in the line. A consistent hybrid will not bounce around a lot in its values, but will achieve a steady average. A low yield in the line should stir suspicion. Look for additional information if a hybrid appears to perform erratically."

In fact, Christensen recommends building in yield results from sources other than just the on-farm strip tests. "Try to obtain individual location data from state universities," he says. "And neighboring farmers may want to consider cooperating on several trials and trade the results. The more that can be built into the hybrid ratings, the more reliable the final evaluations will be."

The rating system can be expanded to include evaluations for standability, test weight, and synchrony of flowering.

"There are several methods to measure standability," says Christensen, "including making three random counts of 100 plants each in the field and then figuring a percent standing rating on the count. Another, less scientific method, would be to eyeball the field and estimate the percent of plants still standing. The results of these counts can be set up on a spread sheet similar to yield ratings," he concludes.

BALTIMORE — Scarlett Company, The International Seed Distribution Firm headquartered in Baltimore, Md, has announced the appointment of two new employees.

David Galer has been hired as sales representative for Scarlett Company's extensive line of seed, agricultural products and lawn care supplies. Working from the company's newly acquired storage and delivery facility in Mifflinburg, Pa. He will serve the central and western Pennsylvania regions.

Galer comes to Scarlett Company from the Boyd Seed Center in Mifflinburg. He holds a degree in business management from Susquehanna University

Nancy Kornfeld is joining Scarlett Company's sales force as Baltimore-based representative for the company in West Virginia, Western Maryland, Frederick, Montgomery and Howard Counties in Maryland.

Kornfeld received a degree in Agronomy from the University of Maryland in College Park and was formerly employed by southern states and by the Maryland Department of Agriculture as a Seed Analyst. Additional responsibilities include representing Scarlett Company to Maryland Sod Growers, as well as acting representative to the Maryland Turfgrass Association.

Corell completes course

Tim Correll of K.C. Dairy Service, of Mt. Bethel, has completed a technical course in milk cooler refrigeration service. The course was offered in the Paul Mueller Company Technical Training Center in Springfield, Mo.

The course covered the stainless steel dairy farm equipment manufactured by Paul Mueller Company. Included were the HiPerForm milk cooling system, the Mueller Matic automatic washing system, refrigerated receivers, and Mueller Fre-Heater heat energy recovery units.

The Portable Roller Mill

1 DUST COLLECTOR ELIMINATED
- A Greatly reduces feed loss from flour & fines
- B Reduces respiratory problems in animals
- C Reduces dust in confinement facilities
- D Improves feed palatability
- E Reduces bridging in bins & feeders
- F Helps improve butterfat test
- G Helps to reduce ulcers in hogs

2 SELF-CONTAINED HYDRAULIC DRIVE
- A Operates infeed & unloading augers
- B Eliminates hose coupler problems and hydraulic fluid contamination
- C Convenient to use with any 540 PTO tractor
- D No drive shafts, gear boxes or bevel gears

3 EAR CORN CRUSHER
- A Whole kernels pass through screen after being shelled from the cob
- B Cob is reduced to uniform size by forcing it through the screen (no grinding)
- C All husks are shreaded to small pieces that won't wrap or cause bridging An asset in automatic feeders
- D No knives to get dull, sharpen or replace

4 SOLID WHITE IRON ROLLS
- A Rolls turn at the same speed (regardless of moisture content) to reduce flour & fines
- B Rolls are self cleaning at any moisture because of the metal and shape of the corrugations
- C Rolls can be recorrugated (after considerable usage) many times very economically
- D All grain is crushed not shreaded or ground as occurs when one roll turns faster than the other Process small grain and compare
- E Used in feed mills in over 40 countries around the world
- F Low maintenance cost & quiet operating V-belt drive

5 ENERGY EFFICIENT
- A Low horsepower requirements (30-50 h p) for high capacity
- B University research proves an average of 10% better feed conversion
- C High capacity & low horsepower to fill silo with high moisture ear corn

Farm Bureau lists payments

SOUDERTON — Members of Bucks Farm Bureau, based in Souderton, has announced payments of over $200,000 to members and stockholders in the form of dividends and patronage refunds. The announcement was made at annual meetings held throughout Pennsylvania during February by the board of directors.

Farm Bureau Cooperative achieved sales of $25 million and earnings of $320,000 in 1983. The increases in volumes and earnings were attributed to increased volume in feed sales and grain marketing.

The seven Farm Bureau retail stores located throughout Pennsylvania showed continued growth and profitability. Poor growing conditions and the payment in kind program reduced plantings and member purchases.

During the fiscal year, Farm Bureau was able to come to the aid of a large segment of the Pennsylvania poultry industry by finding markets for one million broilers during the Mandata Bankruptcy proceedings. Farm Bureau was cited for appreciation by the growers and many agriculture industry organizations.

General Manager of Farm Bureau, Michael Zapach, commented that in the 47 years of Farm Bureau's existence, the cooperative has returned more than 6.5 million dollars to its stockholders and patron members in the form of dividends and patronage refunds.

Midwest offers Hoover bull

SHAWANO, Wi. — A Holstein bull calf, acquired from Dale W Hoover, Martinsburg, has been released for sampling from Midwest Breeders Cooperative.

The newest offering from the Wisconsin-based cattle breeding cooperative is 21H845 Hi-De-Ho Twin-Lawn Jason.

Hi-De-Ho was sired by Twin-Lawn Elevation Jason, who has January 1984 USDA credentials of +1199M, +30F, +$128. Combined with his maternal grandsire, Penstate Ivanhoe Star, Hi-De-Ho has a Pedigree Index of +611M, +19F, +$71, and a Genetic Index of +653M, +26F, +$86.

Hi-De-Ho's dam is Simpsons Star Doreen, VG-88. She has a current Cow Index of +108M, +22F, +$45. As a five-year-old, she had a 305-day lactation of 26,590 pounds of milk, 1,084 pounds of fat, and a 4.1 percent fat test. In five lactations, she has averaged 4.2 percent in fat test.

Hi-De-Ho is now housed at the Midwest Breeders' young sire housing facility in Stewartville, Mn. He is one of about 100 high genetic potential young sires sampled each year in the Shawano, Wi.-based cooperative's program.

Dairymen asked to cooperate in Johne's study

UNIVERSITY PARK — Johne's disease. How common is it? How can we develop faster, more accurate tests to diagnose it? What is its economic impact on the dairy industry in Pennsylvania? These are some of the questions that a team of researchers now studying Johne's disease are hoping to answer. They are working on a Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture-funded project being conducted by the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine and The Penn State Veterinary Science Department.

During the first year of the project, a survey is being made of cull dairy cows at time of slaughter. Cattle to be studied are chosen at random. Blood, tissue and fecal samples are taken from each animal selected, and identification is recorded. These cattle come from all over the northeastern United States.

The owner of each Pennsylvania cow that is sampled will receive a letter explaining the project and a questionnaire concerning his management practices and herd conditions. Since these questionnaries are being sent to the owners of every Pennsylvania cow sampled whether positive or negative for Johne's, a large number of dairymen — about 500 — will be receiving them. Accurate answers to the questionnaire will be important in determining the economic affect of the disease and the factors that contribute to its spread and survival.

The owner of a cow that tests positive for Johne's will also be contacted by the Bureau of Animal Industries to inform the farmer of the findings and to give him their recommendations. The finding of a positive Johne's cow at slaughter will not affect the herd status of the source herd or the eligiblity for health charts since the positive animal has been slaughtered.

During the second and third year of the three-year project, dairymen will be asked to cooperate in on-farm studies.

Johne's disease is a contagious, intestinal disease which affects cattle, sheep, goats and deer but not humans. It is caused by a bacterium, Mycrobacterium paratuberculosis. In its severe form, it causes watery diarrhea that does not respond to treatment and eventually leads to weight loss and death. It is believed that even those cattle that are infected and do not develop the more severe form may have lower milk production, poorer reproductive efficiency, and higher incidence of mastitis than noninfected cows. All of these problems contribute to the economic significance of the disease. The prevalence of Johne's disease in dairy cows is estimated to be between five and twenty percent.

The most accurate test for the disease in the live animal is a fecal culture. A culture takes 3 to 5 months to get results. For a farmer who is trying to eliminate Johne's disease from his herd, this can be a long wait. The blood tests which are now available, while much more rapid, are not accurate enough to be used to determine the status of an individual animal.

Project researchers, with the cooperation of [illegible] dairymen, hope to assess the number of Pennsylvania dairy cows infected with Johne's disease and its economic impact. As part of this project, faster, more accurate diagnostic methods are also being developed. Once it is determined exactly where we stand with Johne's, we will be much closer to controlling its spread and reducing the resultant losses to Pennsylvania dairymen.

Rabbit conference to be held

DENTON, Md — In response to interest in rabbit production for meat, a "Tri-State Rabbit Conference and Trade Show" will be held in Maryland on Saturday, March 17.

Aimed to appeal to existing domestic rabbit producers and those thinking of entering the business, the conference will feature workshops on such topics as behavior as a management tool, economics of rabbit production and housing and environmental requirements.

A trade show featuring the latest equipment, feeds, financing and electronic record-keeping for the business will be held throughout the day. There will also be a special demonstration on the evaluation of live rabbits and dressed carcasses.

The meeting is open to all interested persons from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia and neighboring states.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m with a $3 fee set to cover expenses incurred from a special luncheon that will include various rabbit dishes All payments are to be made at the door.

Those wishing to register in advance or in need of further information should contact either Jack Frey of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, Md. 21401 (telephone 301-841-5770) or Wayne Porter, Route 1, Box 274, Federalsburg, Md. 21632 (telephone: 301-754-9520). Pre-registration is required.

The rabbit conference and trade show will be held on the grounds of the Caroline County (MD) 4-H Park, which is east of Denton off Route 404 at Route 16 and Detour Road

Joining together to put on the conference and trade show are representatives from the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Marketing Services, Caroline County Extension Office and Delmarva Rabbit Growers Association.

Hesston reports profit

HESSTON, Ks. — A program of cost reduction, including factory consolidations to cope with a depressed farm equipment market and the sale of its French subsidiary, has resulted in a profit for Hesston Corporation for the 1983 year ending Dec. 1.

The farm equipment company reported a profit of $2,028,000, or $.27 cents a share, assuming no dilution, on sales of $197,962,000 This compared to a loss in 1982 of $4,238,000 on sales of $202,081,000 from continuing operations, excluding the results of its French subsidiary, Hesston S.A., which was sold in November 1982 to Ditta Pietro Laverda S.p.A., a subsidiary of Fiat Trattori. The 1982 consolidated loss including the results of the French subsidiary was $7,947,000, or $2.69 per share, on consolidated sales of $254,417,000.

Geotextile - erosion workship planned

LANCASTER — Geotextiles are a relatively new product used in the field of soil engineering. Fabrics made from petrochemicals, their uses include embankment protection, erosion and sedimentation control, subsurface drainage, and soil stabilization.

The Lancaster County Conservation District has long been concerned and invovled in erosion and sedimentation control both on agriculture and developing lands. Land actively being developed is particularly susceptible to excessively high erosion rates. Movement of soil creates problems on and off-site. Sediment creates problems off-site in the lowering of water quality in streams and creeks.

Erosion and sedimentation control has been required on all earthmoving sites the past 10 years since the Pennsylvania Clean Steams Law was enacted. Straw or hay bale filters have been used extensively as a sedimentation control measure. They are inadequate in certain situations and act more as a diversion than as a filter They did serve a purpose in the "early days" of erosion and sedimentation control, though

Today, however, the technology has improved. Geotextiles, or filter fabric, has become a superior replacement of bales. It is less maintenance intensive, filters much more efficiently, and is cost-effective. Filter fabric is easier to transport to the site and easier to install. Filter fabrics have revolutionized erosion and sedimentation control.

The Lancaster County Conservation District is sponsoring a Workshop on March 29, for anyone associated with erosion and sedimentation control... developers, contractors, engineers, architects, surveyors, and municipal officials. The purpose of this workshop is to acquaint those concerned with urban development with geotextiles and their uses as they relate to soils and erosion and sedimentation control. The workshop will be held at the Farm and Home Center Auditorium, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster. The morning session will deal with erosion and sedimentation control and be followed by an introduction to fabric uses by manufacturer's representatives.

The afternoon session will be a "hands-on" experience. Workshop participants will be bused to an active earthmoving site to see first hand how the fabrics are installed. Installation will be done by a local contractor and manufacturer's representatives. Sufficient time will be allowed for questions and answers.

Included in the day's activities will be a buffet luncheon in the Auditorium. Handout materials will also be available. The cost is $15.00 per person if preregistration is made by March 23, 1984. After that date, registration is $18.00 per person. Registration/Agenda Forms can be secured from the Lancaster County Conservation District by calling 299-5361 or visiting the Office in Room 6 of the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, Pa.

Bramble seminar planned

MARLIN — A day long seminar on brambles sponsored by the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Service will be held on March 20 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Schuylkill County Area Vocational Technical School at Marlin.

This meeting is for all individuals interested in growing brambles. Registration is $6.50 which includes lunch and morning coffee and donuts.

Topics to be covered are site selection, planting, fertility, herbicide control, insect and disease control, variety selection, pruning, harvesting and marketing. The guest speakers are Roland Daniels, Penn State Horticulture Department; James Travis, Extension Pathologist, Wayne Marz, Stauffer Chemical and four Extension agents.

For additional information contact the Schuylkill County Cooperative Extension Service, P.O. Box 250, Schuylkill Haven, Pa 17972 - telephone. (717) 385-3431, George P. Perry, Jr., County Agent - Horticulture or your local Extension office for more information. Deadline for reservations is Friday, March 16.

Hog operation disinfectants discussed

NEWARK, Del — Cleanup and disinfection are two vitally important parts of any swine-management program. Most producers are more familiar than they would like to be with the cleanup process. Disinfectants are another matter.

Why should you use a disinfectant? "It's cheap insurance," says University of Delaware extension livestock specialist Ken Kephart. "We often talk about disease build-up. That's the continuous growth of disease-causing bacteria, with no break in the cycle. Cleaning and disinfection provide the break and will go a long way in keeping the lid on disease problems in your operation. For example, bacterial scours in the farrowing house are largely a problem of sanitation. Control and management of another important disease — swine dysentery — also center around sanitation."

How does one choose a disinfectant? That depends on several things, says Kephart.

What are you trying to disinfect? The product you use to sterilize a manure pit may not be the best one to use on the udder of a cow.

How clean will the surface be when you apply the disinfectant? Only a few products retain good germicidal properties in the presence of organic debris.

What kinds of organisms do you want to kill? All disinfectants kill most bacteria. But many have little effect on viruses

What compounds are available?

- Formaldehyde and other aldehydes (Cidex, DC & R, Formaldegen, Formalin).
- Creosols and phenols (Cresl-400, Environ, Laro, Lysol).
- Quaternary ammonium compounds (Germex, Hi-Lethol, San-O-Fec, Warden, Zephiran).
- Iodophors (Iofec, Isodyne, Betadine, Losan, Tamed Iodine, Weladol).
- Sodium hydroxide (lye)

Formaldehyde is probably the most effective disinfectant available, Kephart says. It kills nearly all types of microbes and viruses under a wide variety of conditions. Unfortunately, at high concentrations its fumes are very irritating. When used as a gas it's an excellent fumigant, but it must be used with caution. Solutions of formaldehyde also provide good germicidal activity and are safer to use than the gas.

Creosols and phenols, like formaldehyde, can produce objectionable odors. That's especially true with creosol, the specialist says. But they have excellent resistance to organic debris. So if a swine facility contains a lot of wood or hidden crevices, these compounds might be the best choice. They also provide good results in foot baths.

Quarternary ammonium compounds are not recommended for disinfecting livestock facilities, since organic matter quickly inactivates them. They have limited effect on viruses, fungi and spores. They do work well for sanitizing dairy and food handling equipment. But since these compounds are neutralized by soap, be sure that surfaces are rinsed well before using the quarternary ammoniums.

Iodophors are a combination of iodine and detergents. They aren't very effective in the presence of organic material. And they provide only limited activity against viruses and salmonella bacteria. But the iodophors are non-irritating and rarely cause skin reactions. For producers who wash and disinfect sows before farrowing, one of the iodophors is a good choice.

Sodium hydroxide provides good germidical properties under most conditions. And it's cheap. But it's also very caustic and can cause serious burns, Kephart cautions Use accordingly.

"So, to get the most from your disinfectant dollar, think about how and where you plan to use the disinfectant," he advises "Remember that good sanitation is a must An effective cleanup will remove 95 percednt of the contamination. And it allows the disinfectant to penetrate and do the job you expect."

"WE'RE HERE TO SERVE YOU"

Tax session on Monday

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The how-to of filling an I.R.S. scheudle F form will be the subject of the Monday meeting of the Hunterdon County Sheep Breeders' Association, according to Richard Betts, vice-president and program chairman. Speaker will be Rachel Matto of H & R Block.

Rachel Matto is the farm tax consultant in the Flemington office of H & R Block. She will discuss the do's and don't's, provide up-to-date information on I.R.S. regulations as they pertain to farm operations. She will emphasize the small farm, the part-time operation.

The Sheep Breeders' meeting, held monthly in the Hunterdon Extension Center, begins at 8 p.m. It is open to everyone interested in the Schedule "F" regulations and having an opportunity to ask questions of one of the leading tax authorities in the area.

Estate, tax specialist named

YORK — Robert E. Vinson, General Manager of the York Farm Credit Service, has announced the recent appointment of Robert Clofine to the position of Business, Estate and Tax Planning Specialist for the York Associations.

In this position, Clofine will be implementing a new Business, Estate and Tax Planning Service to be offered by the York Associations to members in its six-county servicing area. The program is structured to help Association members understand income tax, retirement, business and estate planning concepts, assist them in selecting alternatives which are consistent with their personal and financial objectives, and accompany them through the implementation of their plans with their personal attorney.

Clofine is a 1978 cum laude graduate of Villanova University and a 1982 cum laude graduate of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law. He was previously employed by the law firm of Gefsky & Lehman in Pittsburgh.

STRAY VOLTAGE SOLUTION

The HAMMOND TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER is a new development in the technology of stray voltage reduction.
The TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER has recently been installed on the following dairy farms.

BEN JACKSON FARM
COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS, PA.
Before installation had 2.5 volts at peak times, this was reduced to .04 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter.

WILLIAM EICK FARM
COLUMBIA CROSS ROADS, PA.
Before installation had 3.5 volts at peak times was reduced to .14 volts with installation of the Tingle Voltage Filter.

The TINGLE VOLTAGE FILTER is safe, effective, permanent, inexpensive and are completely maintenance free.
If installed with Dairylands Stray Voltage Indicator permanently will show electrical faults before they become hazardous.

Dealers Wanted: To sell and install this fast moving, much needed product in your areas.
Qualifications: Must have complete electrical knowledge of dairy farm equipment, and electrical service entrance.
Please send qualifications and credit references to your Dairy Equipment Specialist.

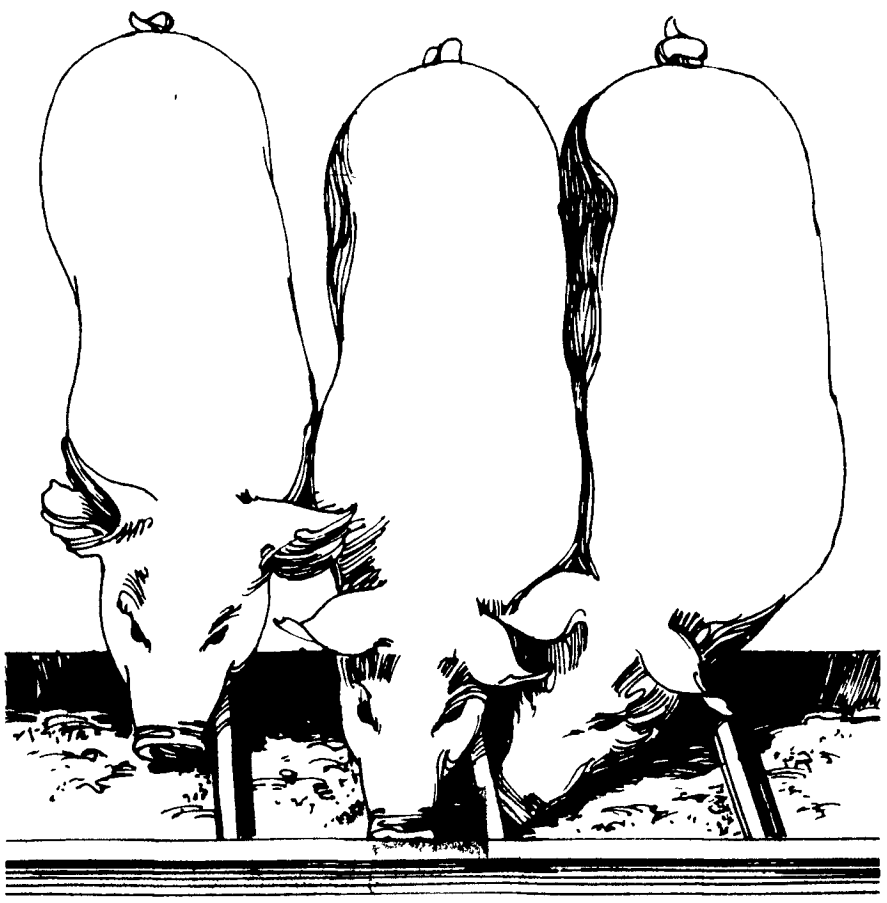
New Premagro™

Potency Formulated for results.

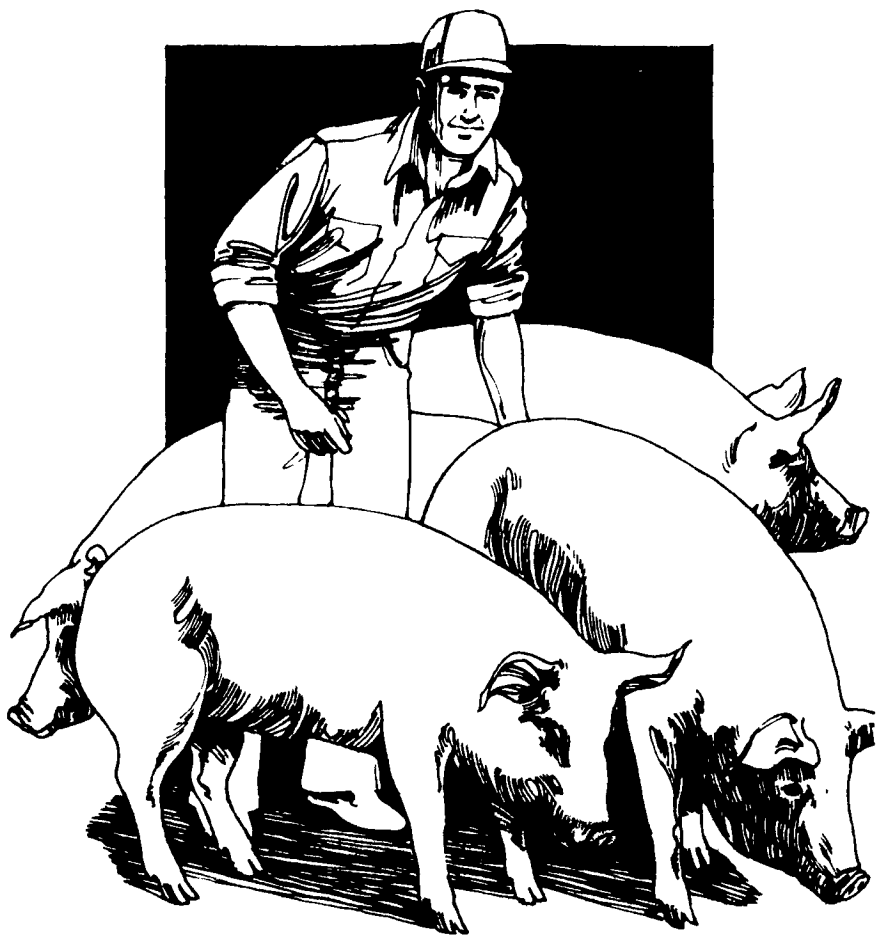


New Premagro™ concentrate is based on Potency Formulation, a Master Mix breakthrough in feed formulation. This new concept provides a precise balance of available amino acids coupled with the correct level of usable energy for increased growth rate and improved feed conversion.

From breeding herd through nursery and on up to market weight, Potency Formulated Premagro is the concentrate for your hogs. Only from Master Mix.

New Premaplus™

Potency Formulated for the performance minded.



If you demand exceptional performance from your hogs, new Premaplus™ is the concentrate for you.

New Premaplus is Potency Formulated with high levels of available amino acids coupled with the correct levels of usable energy. And it's highly fortified and properly balanced with all other required nutrients. Premaplus gives maximum daily gains and the best possible feed conversions.

New Premaplus has proven its performance in both on-farm and Central Soya Feed Research testing. Results confirm gains of 1.82 pounds per day with 2.96 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

For the performance you demand, try new Premaplus. A Potency Formulated concentrate from Master Mix.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett
Farm Management Agent
Lewistown Extension Office

I have a very brief time left to write about financial management. Once grass starts to "green up" and leaves start to pop, you will no longer be interested in this topic. Planting time is a tonic. It is also an opiate that can cause even the most destitute farmer to be optimistic. The next two years will be hard on farmers in general. Meat prices will probably move up later this year, but the initial feed costs are high and so will reduce profits. High grain prices now will cause excess plantings and probably depressed prices by June. The only way out of the milk surplus problem is for a rather large number of dairymen to go out of business. The number who will have to go under to correct the situation will depend on the success of the suggested promotion and product development plan. Now that I have laid out the rationale for a discussion on financial management let us begin.

The biggest single problem for farmers is cost-return control. Agriculture is not the only business that has this problem. This was the reason for Chrysler's and International Harvester's financial trouble. It is the reason banks fail. It is the reason why so many small businesses fail in their first 2 years. It is why individuals fail financially. As my wife used to tell me, "we each have our job - yours is to make money and mine is to spend it. The only problem is that I do a better job than you". We use that as a family joke, but too often in the case of a farm business there is no joke, because when spending exceeds making, the result is a business failure.

Some farmers say "if I could get $X for my product, I could make it". I remember when $10 milk and $2 corn were the dreams. It seemed that we could weather any storm at those levels. The sad truth is that very few farmers really know where their breakeven price is For most farmers the breakeven price they use is one they heard or read. If every farmer in Pennsylvania were given a guarantee that they would get at least their breakeven price plus 10%, what range of figures would be get? If a stipulation was made that to get that return, you had to prove it, could you qualify?

Cost of production is a very evasive figure. I can give you the average cost of producing most farm products. Unfortunately that average figure is virtually worthless to you. I can tell you the cost of production for the most efficient operators as well as the least efficient operators. Either one would be as worthless to you as knowing where you stand in the DHIA listings. (that one should rile someone). The only cost figure that is worth anything is yours. And its major value is to help you set soem goals and make some management decisions.

Even cost of production ranges are indadequate. for example: in the 1982 farm enterprise analyses that I ran, the cost of producing milk ranged from under $10 per cwt to nearly $18 per cwt. Or look at this, the range of costs of producing corn in 1983 ranged from a little over $2 to nearly $4 per bushel according to my first 20 enterprise analyses.

If you don't know what it cost you to produce a product, how do you know what price you need to be profitable? Do you want to prosper as a farmer? If so, then keep and use records and learn your production costs.

Ye who want profits must strive to that end.

Chester plans meeting on bay

WEST CHESTER — The Chester Co. Conservation District will host a meeting March 19 on "The Chester County Farmer and the Chesapeake Bay" at the Russellville Grande Hall on Rte. 10 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

All farmers, landowners and township officials in the Octoraro and Elks Creeks watersheds are urged to attend.

Wayne dairy day set

HONESDALE — Committees for the 1984 Wayne County Dairy Day, which will be held March 15 from 9:30 a.m. - 3:15 p.m. at the Wayne County Veteran's Memorial Armory, have been announced by the Wayne County Agricultural Extension Service.

They include program co-chairmen - Arthur Noble and Robert Terrel; Lunch - William Werner, Ed DeVrieze, Scottie Swingle, Garry Sheard, Arthur Davis, Robert Nearing, Richard Gillette and Wayne Olver; Space assignment - Peter Wilken and Ed Perkin.

Sound systems - Clark Williams and Clay Thompson; Registration - Patricia Mohn, Fred Nordenhold, Ted Kostige and Dale Teeple; Seating - John Pawloski, Robert Williams, John Mazzga, Donald Schmidt, Joseph Krompsky, Joe Schweighofer and Karl Eisenhauer; Dairy Princess - Lynita Vail; Door prize - Phil Gottschalk and Andrew Goodrich.

Dairy Day will feature commercial exhibits, educational talks, door awards, and lunch. According to John Creighton, County Extension Director, there are still a few spaces available for commercial exhibits so any agribusiness firms or organizations wishing to participate in Dairy Day should contact the Extension Office at 717-253-5970. All dairy farm families are welcome to attend Dairy Day and should make reservations by contacting the Extension Office.

40 years of proof

Since 1940, Gehl has been building field choppers and forage harvesters with one thought in mind ...performance. And, year after year, thousands of satisfied owners prove that we know how to use that specialized experience to build better machines. Today, Gehl concentrates those 40 years of chopping know-how into three fuel-efficient, high-capacity forage harvesters:

Capacity King 1250. The largest capacity pull-type harvester on the market Gehl's exclusive 24" spinner delivery system keeps forage moving with no cross augers to plug The giant, 9-knife, 25½" cylinder gives a quality cut And the new cutterbar adjustment is the easiest anywhere. In-head hydraulic knife sharpener and electric controls are standard too,

New mid-range 1000 gives you the high capacity you'd expect from the big 21" cylinder and fast spinner delivery system Like the 1250, standard features include the in-head hydraulic knife sharpener, adjustable axles, one-way shear bolt protection and attachment down-stop

Fuel saver 750 tackles just about any chopping job Uses less horsepower per ton chopped than many bigger harvesters. Uses less fuel. The 8-knife cutterhead is set into the blower compartment for smooth, continuous material flow Add Gehl's patented in-head hydraulic knife sharpener for even more cutting efficiency

Prove to yourself that there's no substitute for Gehl's 40 years of forage harvester experience See your Gehl dealer soon

Stress affects lima yields

NEWARK, Del. — Lima beans have been an important crop for Delaware farmers since the turn of the century. The smaller seeded baby lima, as opposed to the larger seeded Fordhook, has been the main type grown. Delaware still produces more baby limas than any other state except California. Acreage in recent years has leveled off at the 10,000 acre mark, but got as high as 24,500 in 1949.

Yields per acre have fluctuated, too, but don't seem to have improved over the years, like peas. Compared to lima beans, the historic yield per acre of Delaware grown peas shows a general trend upward from 1,000 pounds of shelled peas per acre in Delaware in the 1910's to between 2,600 and 3,000 pounds in the eighties. This is primarily the result of better varieties and improved irrigation practices, says University of Delaware extension vegetable specialist Ed Kee.

Lime bean yields, on the other hand, have hovered between 1,500 and 2,000 pounds an acre over the same 30-year period, except for some occasional dips down to 1,000 pounds.

What's the problem with limas? "Why aren't we seeing the kind of improvement peas have shown?," Kee asks. "Some very good varieties have been introduced. Most have resistance to several strains of downey mildew disease, making it possible to reduce or even eliminate spraying some years."

Advances in irrigation technology have been applied to lima bean acreage, just as they have to peas. Why haven't these improvements boosted yield averages?

"The fact is," says Kee, "lima beans are simply more sensitive to the extreme summer growing conditions on Delmarva. Flowers and newly set pods, called 'pins,' will drop off under moisture or temperature stress. And we get a lot of both."

For years, area scientists have studied the effects of these stresses, measuring the relationships between rainfall, temperature, humidity and yield. They have found that vegetative growth of the lima bean plant is adversely affected during any period with temperatures above 94 degrees, or when temperatures above 90 degrees are combined with high humidity

Pollination, on the other hand, suffers whenever temperatures reach 90 degrees under low relative humidity. Lack of rainfall or irrigation for seven days negatively affects both general plant growth and pollination.

When researchers at the University of Delaware Agricultural Experiment Station plotted actual weather conditions over past growing seasons, and compared these with lima bean yields, they found a definite correlation between the frequency of stress periods and average statewide yield.

In 1966, for example, the average Delaware yield was 1,000 pounds an acre. "That year, there was an extended drought," Kee says, "with no 7-day period between June 30 to September 19 receiving more than one inch of rain. As you would expect, there were also periods of high temperature throughout the season."

The following year both rainfall and temperatures were more moderate and in response, Delaware's average lima bean yield rose to 1,740 pounds per acre.

"Understanding the climatic factors which affect lima bean yield has clear implications for irrigation management," Kee says. "Not only is soil moisture important, but higher humidity levels will also encourage pod set. We also use this information about the lima bean plant's response to stress when we test new lima varieties for their adaptability to this region."

Computer program slated

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — A one-morning program on farm and home computers is being planned by Hunterdon County, N.J. Extension on Friday. This will be an opportunity to see how computers apply to present day farm operations.

Topics include "Do I Need a Farm Computer?"; "Crop Management by Computer;" and a discussion panel and actual demonstrations to round out the program.

Speakers will be David Lee, Salem County Agent, and Ray Samulis, Burlington County Agent. Both have had extensive experience in working with crop growers in computerizing their operations. Lee is a dairy and field crop agent and Samulis works principally with vegetable and fruit growers.

Supporting the program is the First National State Bank of West Jersey. David Buchholz of its staff will be on the panel and will also provide a computer and a few programs for demonstration.

Frank Wright, Rutgers' Dairy Specialist, and Bill Bachenberg, farmer and computer systems consultant, will also participate in the panel discussions and demonstrations.

A forward thinker who's a little out ahead

NEWARK, Del. — Agronomist William H. Mitchell retired Dec. 31, after more than 35 years of service as a teacher, researcher and extension specialist at the University of Delaware. Described by one long-time colleague as a "forward thinker who's always a little out ahead," Mitchell is well-known for his innovative approach to production problems and his willingness to adopt new agricultural technologies to solve them. A native of New England, he possesses a generous amount of that legendary commodity, Yankee ingenuity, too.

During his tenure at the university, the agronomist participated in many successful research and extension programs involving forage, turf, corn, and soybean production. He is probably best known for his work in the areas of crop nutrition, no-tillage and irrigation. He also was an inspired teacher with a knack for involving both undergraduate and graduate students in research. Many of his former students are now working in agriculture, particularly in the chemical industry.

As a boy growing up on a New Hampshire farm, Mitchell never dreamed that one day he would help educate other farmers. "If it hadn't been for an uncle who was a real scholar and taught in a private school all his life, I'd probably still be farming. He took a special interest in me and he's the one who encouraged me to go to college."

Mitchell's education was interrupted by the outbreak of World War II, which he spent in China as a pilot with General Claire Chennault's famed Flying Tigers. He also spent two years as herdsman on a 200-acre dairy farm in Connecticut, and two more as headmaster of a high school in Henniker, N.H.

He joined the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences in 1949 as extension agronomist and researcher, and later received a teaching appointment as well.

One of the first things Mitchell got involved in after his arrival in Delaware was the extension sponsored Greener Pastures program. Modeled after a similar New England program, its purpose was to help local dairy farmers improve pasture and roughage quality through the adoption of new forage research and so improve milk production.

Another of Mitchell's major commitments during the 1950s was a joint extension/industry project called the "100 Bushel Corn Club." Many older farmers probably remember this educational effort, which was aimed at boosting corn yields through the application of new technology.

In the area of turf research, during the 1970s Mitchell introduced a method for speeding commercial sod production by incorporating plastic netting into the soil at planting time to serve as support for the young grass. With netting, sod can be harvested six months after seeding, rather than the usual two years. The technique, now in commercial use on some area sod farms, also saves valuable topsoil and gives a lighter, stronger, more manageable product. He also showed that, with proper management, sewage sludge and recycled solid waste can be used as growing mediums for sod.

As an agronomist, Mitchell did considerable work on the use of winter legumes as a nitrogen source, once a standard farming practice. As commercial nitrogen supplies became more expensive, he encouraged growers to resume using these crops and demonstrated the overall benefits of leguminous covers in no-till corn production.

Agronomist Bill Mitchell reminisces about his long career helping Delaware farmers. The former researcher, teacher and extension specialist retired Dec. 31 from the University of Delaware after 35 years of service.

He was also one of the first scientists to pointout the economies that financially hard-pressed farmers could realize by fertilizing crops on the basis of soil tests rather than habit and by taking advantage of the tremendous residual base of potassium and phosphorus in many Delaware soils. To help corn producers get maximum benefit from starter fertilizers, he conducted considerable research on the effects on seedling development and yield of various nitrogen forms and their placement in the seedbed.

Long a champion of irrigation, in the late 1970s Mitchell helped organize the extension service's First State Irrigation Program. This program was designed to help corn farmers obtain consistently higher yields under overhead sprinkler systems by identifying factors, other than water, which limit yield. The work involved looking closely at the corn plant's nutritional needs through periodic tissue analysis, then modifying cultural practices to meet these needs.

A few years later the agronomist conducted further studies on the effects of irrigation on crop performance, during a forage research project sponsored by the University of Delaware Research Foundation on the George Weymouth horse in farm in Middletown. Corn prices were severely depressed at the time and Mitchell and former extension farm management specialist W.T. McAllister decided to find out whether there was a profitable way farmers could grow hay as a cash crop for the state's then sizeable race horse industry.

"When we started the project, one of the first things we did was dig a 2 million-gallon pond and put sprinkler irrigation on 100 acres of red clover, timothy and alfalfa," Mitchell recalled. As a result of this project local breeders and trainers abandoned their prejudice against alfalfa hay and began feeding it to their horses.

Mitchell also studied horse preferences for different hays and found that chopping and pelleting made the less favored kinds more palatable. As a result, a substantial number of Delaware farmers went into hay production for the cash market

Another of the agronomist's long-standing research interests was drip irrigation as a more efficient means of delivering precious water to field crops. "In comparing trickle irrigation to overhead sprinkler systems, you just had to look down the road to the time when water would be in short supply, to realize drip irrigation would eventually have a place in row crop production," he said.

In the early 1960s, following the lead of a graduate student who had done research on the technique in Texas, Mitchell punched holes in some plastic tubing and set up a subsurface system for corn at the Georgetown substation. Results the first season were dramatic — 167 bushels an acre with subsurface drip irrigation versus 7 bushels without water. So many people came to look at the corn that they wore paths around the plots, he recalled.

"I was so impressed that I felt we should be using water in our test work so that it wouldn't be the limiting factor in yields. When we started using drip irrigation as the water source, we were very apologetic because people weren't irrigating then and they didn't think the results meant anything," he said.

Mitchell is currently writing up the results of a corn fertility study with subsurface drip irrigation, which he started 18 years ago on the University of Delaware's Newark research farm. A preliminary look at the results suggests this study will shed further light on the availability of phosphorus and potassium to corn grown on Delaware soils and the value of tissue analysis as a tool in managing crop fertility.

The agronomist said he feels it's just a matter of time before subsurface irrigation becomes accepted in the production of row crops like corn. Cotton farmers in the U.S. have already begun to use it as the technology improves, the practice should attract others.

"In extension educational work you never know when an idea will take hold," Mitchell said. "Economic reasons are often behind people's slowness to adopt an idea. You can't do a dang thing until the industry comes along with the equipment or — in the case of no-tillage — the chemicals. After you have the materials, you need someone who can put the package together. Given the right tools, there's no telling what people can accomplish."

Looking back, the most satisfying part of his work over the past 35 years has been helping people, he said "It takes time before you know whether you've really helped them, but it's very gratifying to see young people come along and then become established farmers."

Delaware Extension

Delaware farmers have achieved an important distinction. They are number one in conservation tillage. Information released by the Soil Conservation Service puts Delaware at the top percentagewise in the number of crop acres utilizing some form of minimum tillage. Maryland is No. 2 on that same list.

To be number one in any phase of agricultural production is important, but to be first in the adoption of techniques that reduce erosion and improve the soil is quite an accomplishment. Minimum till, no-till and all those other phrases that describe the many forms of conservation tillage were virtually unheard of a couple of decades ago. And then for a variety of reasons, farmers started trying some of the new technology and the rush was on.

It would be nice to honor one individual as the father of no-till farming on the Delmarva peninsula, but it's not that simple. No one farmer can say he started it, nor can a researcher, extension worker, industry rep, or anyone else claim the credit. Conservation tillage in some of its forms has been around for a hundred years, but only in the last two or three decades has there been a concentrated effort to pull the best information together and then spread the word.

Most of the early information on conservation tillage in these parts was borrowed from Kentucky. Researchers and extension workers at the University of Delaware started experimenting in the late 60s and early 70s. Innovative farmers were reading in the farm magazines about this new technology, and some of them were starting to give it a try. The whole thing just sort of snowballed. The technology was available and the reasons for using it, primarily energy saving, appeared at a time when a lot of farmers were in a mood to make the change. And, above all, it worked.

There are places where many of the forms of conservation tillage aren't very practical, but here on the Delmarva peninsula soil and cropping conditions seem to be just right. So one farmer would try it and tell another, and he would try it and it spread very quickly from one end of the peninsula to the other. And by the early 80s, there was hardly a farmer who hadn't at least tried some kind of minimum tillage and not many who weren't practicing it, at least in a limited way.

Some farmers went whole hog. After a year or two of experimenting, they sold their plows, bought no-till planters and drills and parked their cultivators. Others moved more slowly to the point where virtually all of their acres are now involved in some form of conservation tillage.

The paybacks aren't great. Sure there's an energy saving and in some cases slightly better yields. There are also added expenses — more chemicals, new and more expensive planters and perhaps bigger tractors. And yet it seems to suit the style of most Delmarva farmers. They can get their crops planted quicker, cover more acres, doublecrop where before it wasn't practical. And the bottom line, as they say, is a better profit picture.

The long-range payoff, however, may not be as obvious when looking at a profit and loss statement. Farmers are doing something for their ground that they were unwilling or unable to do before. They're actually improving it. Not only is soil erosion in its many forms reduced, but the soil structure is actually being improved, water-holding capacity increased and the general feel of the soil much better. That is truly important when you think a few decades ahead to a time when those conservation tilled acres will be needed for all-out food production once again.

It's really nice when a technology comes along that helps farmers make money and at the same time serves an even higher purpose. Conservation tillage is just that. Farmers like it because it works for them. Society likes it because it saves the soil. And best of all, it hasn't required any government programs, bureaucratic boondoggling, or political rhetoric to make it happen.

Conservation tillage is a classic example of what can be done when farmers, researchers, extension workers, educators, industry representatives, the whole agricultural complex starts to rally around a concept. A lot of bits and pieces are fitted together to create a working system. Chemicals are developed to control insects and diseases. Production systems are researched and tested, and information exchanges go on among farmers and others that enabled the state of the art to move ahead.

Conservation tillage is still sweeping the country. There's hardly a state where it isn't an important crop production technique. It just so happens that Delaware is ahead of them all.

Chester contacts continue

WEST CHESTER — Farmers within the Octoraro Creek Watershed in Chester County who have requested conservation plans through the Chester County Conservation District will continue to be contacted during March by Soil Conservationists from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service (SCS) office in West Chester.

The SCS conservationists will be arranging meetings with individual farmers to help the farmers develop conservation plans on their farms. Cost-share funds for implementation of conservation plans may be available through the U.S.D.A.'s Agriculture Conservation and Stabilization Service (ASCS).

Ag Day events listed

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A variety of Agriculture Day activities - led by Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block, honorary chairman of the national observance, and his wife, Sue - will be conducted in Washington, D.C., on March 20 by the National Ariculture Day Steering Committee.

Agriculture Day, the first day of spring, has been authorized as an official national observance every year since 1981, by a joint resolution of Congress and a presidential proclamation. It was first celebrated in 1973 and has grown since then to include thousands of events at the state and community level nationwide.

Mrs. Block will host a mid-morning news conference and reception March 20 for the new "Miss Agriculture" at the Department of Agriculture.

The finalists will be interviewed March 16, the start of Agriculture Week, by Christina M. Wilson, Secretary Block's public-liaison assistant; Marsha Herndon of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Laura Heuser, a Michigan farm wife; James Robertson, Monsanto Co., and Jam Westmoreland, Pfizer, Inc.

Secretary Block will attend and speak at a National Press Club luncheon March 20, beginning with a reception at noon.

The evening of the 20th, members of Congress and the Cabinet, along with state and national agricultural organization leaders, will attend a "Taste of the Country" barbeque/reception on the patio at the USDA Administration Building, featuring both Texas- and North Carolina- style barbeque and an array of other foods to be enjoyed while the "Bluegrass Bureaucrats" band entertains. Breads for the reception are being contributed by U.S. Wheat Associates; potato chips and other snacks, by Frito-Lay, Inc., and flowers, through SAF/The Center for Commercial Floriculture.

Schuylkill makes fair plans

SCHUYLKILL HAVEN — The 1984 Schuylkill County Fair will be held Wednesday, Aug. 15, to Sunday, Aug. 19, on the "old county farm" just outside of Schuylkill Haven. The Fair will begin at 5 p.m. on Wednesday with opening ceremonies and will close about 6 p.m. on Sunday.

The Fair will feature the area's agricultural community with livestock, livestock shows, horticulture, family living, and 4-H and FFA projects and exhibits. Over 450 classes of competition will be available for participation. The classes range from vegetables and fruit to quilts and foods.

A Fair Premium Book will be available by June 1 by contacting the Extension Office. The cost will be one dollar. All classes, rules, entry fees, premiums, registration forms, activities, entertainment, and advertisers will be published in the fair book. All entries must be made on the official entry form(s) printed in the fair book. Anyone wishing to place an ad in the Fair book should contact a 4-H member or the Extension Office by March 23. An advertising form will be sent to you for your information.

The Fair Association is also seeking individuals or organizations to display, exhibit, or sell their items. All educational, non-selling exhibits can be set up free. Anyone that will be selling or promoting anything for sale will be charged $5.00 a front foot for exhibits. The depth is unknown at this time, but will probably be about 15 feet. Equipment dealers will receive a 50 x 50 foot space for $50.00. Also, the Fair will collect 10%of the seller's gross over $500.00.

Anyone interested in display areas should contact the Extension Office for a reservation form. Everything is on a first-come, first-serve basis. Family booster cards are available for a minimum $3.00 donation.

The 1984 edition of the Schuylkill County Fair will be chock-full of entertainment and activities. Some of the highlights include entertainment by "Midnight Express", "Cheyenne", "Desire", "Far From the City" (a blue-grass group from Allentown), plus two gospel groups. There'll be a livestock show in open, 4-H, and FFA dairy, open and 4-H horse, open goat, 4-H and open rabbit, youth dog, 4-H and FFA sheep. Handmilking contests and family games will be held and all kinds of Schuylkill County ag products will be on display.

ANOTHER PURINA® RESEARCH BREAKTHROUGH FOR GROWING AND FINISHING HOGS

Purposely designed for today's tight grain situation.

Purina® Research has just created a breakthrough solution to feeding growing and finishing hogs in the face of high prices and shortages of grain. Super High Octane™ brand complete rations. Super High Octane Completes are formulated with such high levels of energy and nutrient concentration, they build a pound of pork on up to 9% less feed than our previous most efficient ration. Super High Octane boosts average daily gains as much as 4%, too.

Because Super High Octane Completes use more energy and nutrients, efficiency is improved. And, with the current high cost of grain, feed efficiency has greater value than ever.

Let us show you how much extra value per ton you can get with new Super High Octane. Stop by or give us a call today.
